Broncho Team Is Back in Form to Win 2 Contests

Ponies Defeat Palatine; One More Victory Will Insure Championship

The Bronchos snapped back into their stride last week-end and the results were a victory over the second place Palatine Pirates and a decisive triumph over the Wauconda five. The scores were Barrington 27, Palatine 17 on Friday night and Barrington 29, Wauconda 11 in the game Saturday night.

The Palatine game was the more important of the two as it counts in the conference standings. There was also that element of sporting revenge for the last minute defeat which the Bronks were given by Palatine earlier in the season. Palatine had lost only two games all season, one of them to the league leading Leyden quintet. They had visions of getting into a tie for first place before the race was over. The victory also boosted the Broncho standing and might enable the team to finish in the first division. The game was an exciting and hard fought contest, but Barrington took an early lead and kept adding to it as the game progressed. At one stage in the last half Palatine started a rally but it failed to materialize. For Barrington, Bill Landwer came through with 10 points which had a lot to do with the final result. Bill Grabenkort was the center of the entire Broncho attack and played a fine game. Beerman did not score as many points as usual but his general floor work helped his team's scoring attack. At guard, Russ LaPointe played his best game of the year in stopping the Pirates' attack and he was well supported by Harold Roth at the other defense position.

The Saturday night affair with Wauconda was a rough and tumble scramble which increased in intensity as the game progressed. Both teams were tired from their Friday games and fouls were numerous as a result. Fifteen of them were called on Wauconda and 13 on Barrington. Again the Bronchos took an early lead and kept adding to it even though Coach Clark inserted his entire squad. Beerman led his teammates in scoring with six baskets.

The Ponies made themselves sure of at least a tie for first place in the conference when they defeated Palatine 31 to 22 in a hard game. They have two more games to play, one with Antioch and one with Elgin. If they can win either one of these they will be undisputed possessors of first place. The line of this team all season has consisted of Earl Etters, Buck Rowland and Eugene Latta. These boys have each scored over 90 points already this year. With such a triple threat they have been mighty dangerous against the enemy. Art Workman and Herb Mollenkamp have both performed ably at the guard positions where their size and ball handling ability have kept down their opponents' scores. Fritz Wendt has been their most capable understudy and Bob Ulbrich has been the chief relief man at the forward position. On Saturday night the reserves of the squad kept a lead over Wauconda and in the last half the regulars pulled up to a seven-point victory, 28 to 21.

The last home game of the season will be played here Friday night when the Antioch Indians come to town. They are a fast breaking outfit and no matter who wins or what the score is, it will be action from start to finish. The speedy but erratic Kashevos is their main threat and he may get 10 baskets or none. It will be the last home appearance for Banks, Beerman, Capulli, Christenson, Grabenkort, Landwer, LaPointe and Roth, all seniors.

He Saved Queen Victoria When Team Ran Away

On Highgate hill, London, there stood until about thirty years ago an inn, the Fox and Crown, which used to have a little courtyard in front of it, with seats where thirsty wayfarers could refresh themselves under the trees, a writer in the London Times recalls. The courtyard is still there, but the site of the inn carries a good modern house.

The inn bore the Royal Cipher, V. R. and arms and an inscription: "This coat of arms is a grant from Queen Victoria for services rendered her majesty when in danger traveling down this hill (1837)." The carriage wheel came off and the horses got out of hand. The landlord of the inn stopped them and had the honor of providing a chair for Queen Victoria while the repairs were being made. He was asked to say what favor he wished for in return, and accepted an offer of the right to display the royal arms.

The incident was his undoing, for candid friends, prolific of afterthoughts, worried him to an early death by their reproaches that he had not asked for some substantial reward, and a contemporary writer says: "Boniface died of a broken heart."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

British Medals Awarded for Arctic Discoveries

The grant of the Polar medal to 14 members of the British Arctic Air Route expedition of 1930-31 draws attention to an award which is almost unknown to the general public.

Instituted by King Edward in 1904, when it was awarded for Captain Scott's Antarctic expedition in the Discovery, it has also been granted to members of Shackleton's expeditions of 1907 and 1914-16, Scott's last expedition, and the Mawson expedition of 1912. The medal is octagonal in shape, with, on one side, the king's head, and on the other a polar scene with a ship in winter quarters and a sledging party.

There was a previous Polar medal, "For Arctic Discoveries," which Queen Victoria conferred in 1857 on all who had taken part in Arctic expeditions between 1818 and 1855. A similar medal, but of different design, was awarded, later in the queen's reign, for other Arctic expeditions.

Two of the explorers who figure in the recent list—Mr. Watkins and Captain Lemon—have died since the expedition for which the medal was awarded. These medals have been presented to their relatives.—Answers.

Is Glass a Liquid?

We are growing accustomed to professors who make astonishing statements, but a pronouncement—from Leipzig—is a little more startling than most.

According to it, "glass windows are actually liquids, but of a very high stickiness."

This theory commends itself to maids, charwomen—and husbands who help with the housework; but whether the housewife, surveying broken glassware, accepts it as a reasonable explanation of the smash is a little doubtful.

Other doubters are those who wear tortoise-shell spectacles. They know that lenses will often survive a fall which smashes the frame. If glass is a liquid, they ask, what is tortoise-shell?—Answers.

Phillips Five Man Team Scores 2885 Pins for Record

Have More Total Pins for Season Than Sass Team; Trail by 9 Games

An unusual situation prevails in the district league where the Sass Hardware team leads the second place Phillips 66 team by nine games even though Phillips are leading Sasses by a total of 105 pins for the season. Last week against Schauble Bros., Phillips scored a total of 2885 pins for an average of 192.3 per man per line. Purcell, Carr and Beerman each topped the 600 mark for the three games. The team score was the highest that has been made on the Lipofsky alleys.
