IN HOLIDAY ATTIRE

Barrington Camp No. 809, M. W. A., held their Annual Picnic at Gomstock's Grove.

BUSINESS ALMOST ENTIRELY SUSPENDED FOR THE DAY.

Barrington Camp No. 809, M. W. A., held their annual picnic at Gomstock's Grove, Saturday. The day dawned dark, gloomy and rainy, but by nine o'clock "Old Sol" peeped through the dark clouds and ere long they were scattered and gone. The Barrington Militaryband came out simultaneously with the sun, and after discoursing a few stirring airs in front of their hall, proceeded to the grounds. Then could be seen every kind of vehicle, well laden with human freight, bound for the grove. Despite the rain, a large crowd was in attendance, and all proceeded with the day's enjoyment. Nothing happened to mar the pleasure of the day. Refreshments were served on the grounds. The refreshment stand, in charge of our efficient baker and restaurateur, H. Butzow, very liberally patronized.

The fun of the day was started when Alderman Frank Willmarth was one of the first to insert his hand in the bag, drawing a—bathing suit. Then Dr. Kendall tried his luck and succeeded in bringing forth a baby atomizer. So it ran all day long, everybody getting a prize.

Then came the races. The following prizes were awarded:

Girls' race, won by Miss Pearl Smith—girl's penknife.

Married women's race, won by Mrs. Joe Welch, in which she showed excellent sprinting qualities—ladies' pocketbook.

Boys' race, Arthur Kennedy—pocket knife.

Married men's race, won by Charles Scott—pair of wooden shoes, just his size—14's.

Sack race, won by Ed. Wessel—pocket-book.

Tug of war between Cook and Lake counties, in which the former came out victorious.

Boys' bicycle race, three entries—Ahlgren, Mielow, Sizer—5 miles. Ahlgren won first prize, a '97 Searchlight; second prize, Mielow, Dazzler bicycle lamp; while Sizer met with an accident by running into Mr. Seebert's rig and as a result broke his wheel and sustained several bruises.

Notwithstanding this accident and the rough roads, the remaining two made the run of five miles in less than 19 minutes—an exceptionally good time.

Girls' bicycle race, 1 mile, won by Miss Grace Otis—20th Century bicycle lamp.

Then came the most laughable sport of the day—cocque in pot. It originated in the fertile mind of one of our most prominent lawyers. It is unnecessary to attempt a description of this mirth-provoking fun, but all participants were well pleased in the enjoyment of it.

The ball game was reserved for the last, and owing to the lateness of the hour, and the entire collapse of Dr. Kendall from over-exertion, only three innings were played, the single men winning by score of 7 to 5. Two home runs were made—one for each team—Phil Hawley for the married men and Henderson for the single men.

Electric Roads Unite.

Letters of incorporation have been issued for, and there has been organized, the Elgin City, Carpentersville & Aurora Railway company, capital stock $500,000, all of which is subscribed for. The new corporation purchases all the property and rights of the local street railway company, including the lighting plant, and of the lines to Carpentersville and to Geneva.

The Elgin City, Carpentersville & Aurora railway company will operate thirty miles of track. It is all in fine condition and on a paying basis, the extensions both north and south having proven even better patronized and more profitable than anticipated.

Picnic of the M. E. Sunday-School.

The annual picnic given by the M. E. Sunday-school Thursday in J. H. Hawley's grove was the most enjoyable and the best attended for many years. It was a union picnic of the Barrington and Barrington Center Sunday-schools, consequently a great many from the vicinity of Barrington Center were present. In the morning it was a little chilly and cloudy, but before long the sun came out and by noon the atmosphere was the very best for a most enjoyable time in the grove. The superintendents and all the teachers of both schools were present to help the children to have a good time. Several wagons with hayracks, besides buggies and special wagons arranged for the purpose, carried the children from the church to the grounds. In the afternoon many of our citizens drove to the grove in their private carriages. All enjoyed a good dinner and a good visit, while the young people arranged games of such a nature as were innocent and harmless, and yet added to the pleasure, exercise and exhilaration of all who attended. Lemonade and ice cream were served the school, and when the hour for closing came all declared that it was the best picnic they had attended in many years.

Death of Mrs. Charles Beinhoff.

Mrs. Charles Beinhoff, youngest daughter of Mrs. C. C. Hennings, died at the home of her mother shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday morning of consumption, aged 18 years, 11 months, 13 days.

About last January Mrs. Beinhoff was taken ill with a severe attack of pneumonia, from the effects of which she never recovered. Consumption set in and for the last few months she gradually sank away until death relieved her of her long suffering.

Mrs. Beinhoff was born on the farm now owned by Gottlieb Heimerdinger, about five miles northwest of Barrington, September 7, 1878, and was married to Charles Beinhoff November 11, 1896.

Besides a husband, Mrs. Beinhoff leaves a mother, and a sister, Mrs. Charles Renich, who resides at Woodstock, to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place from the residence at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon; from there the remains will be taken to St. Paul's church, where services will be conducted by Revs. Rahn and Suhr. The remains will be laid to rest in Evergreen cemetery. The REVIEW joins the deceased's many friends in extending sympathy to the bereaved family.

Weed Out The Weeds.

The tall and ungainly looking weeds to be found in some of the vacant lots and around property within the village, should be ordered cut down at once. Those obnoxious plants, of which some are more like trees in size than anything else, have not only become an eyesore to many of our citizens but cast a shiftless, desolate appearance for tourists to view who visit or pass through the village. Clean up your yards and it will not only add materially to the looks of your property but the village in general.

Bromo Seltzers Whitewashed by the Unions.

The game of base ball between the Lake County Unions and the Bromo Seltzers of Chicago, at Oak Park, Lake Zurich, Sunday, was won by the Unions with their hands down by a score of 25 to 0, notwithstanding the Bromo Seltzers declared they would have a walk-away. Drewes pitched for the Unions and did some excellent work for the home team. He demonstrated to our people that he could "play ball," in fact he shot the ball across the plate at such a speed, and so often that the visitors could not touch it. Lorenzen played a perfect game behind the bat; Peters played well at second; Mundhenke was all right at first base; Mors played left field to a queen's taste; Seip took care of center field in elegant style; Hutchinson did nobly as short stop; Fox did good work in right field, while Barker looked after the interest of third base. Score:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Unions.....	2	4	0	2	1	5	2	0	9-25
Bromo Seltzers.....	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0-0

One of our friends who always tells the truth hands us the following clipping and says "Maybe you don't believe it, but just go out and see and you'll come back convinced that—An Oklahoma farmer wrote to a friend in the East, trying to give him some idea of the soil out there. He said they had to mow the grass off the sod floor to find the baby. One family near him has twin babies with only one cradle, and the kid who had to sleep on the floor grew twice as fast as the other. Where the soil is richest a man dare not stand on one foot any length of time lest one leg becomes longer than the other and bother him in walking.—Ez.

BATTLE AT FULTON, ILL.

Modern Woodmen Trouble Reaches a Culmination.

INVADED BY ROCK ISLANDERS.

Four Hundred Raiders Try to Carry Off the Books from the Head Office of the Woodmen—Many Hurt in the Fight That Ensues.

Four hundred Rock Islanders fought a battle with Fulton men at Fulton, Ill., Friday night. For three hours riot prevailed in front of the offices of the Modern Woodmen. Guns, revolvers, clubs, paving stones, fence rails, bricks, fists and hydrant water were the weapons. The Fulton army was victorious. About twenty men were injured in the fighting, some seriously.

The Rock Islanders have been trying for months to get possession of the books and official seal of the Modern Woodmen. Efforts have been made before this to capture the records, but without avail. An armed peace prevailed until Friday, when the injunctions which had prevented the removal of the books were dissolved.

PRINCE HENRY WOUNDED.

Italian Champion the Victor in the International Duel. The Count of Turin and Prince Henry of Orleans fought a duel with swords in the Bois de Marechoux, at Vanvresson, France.

The fighting was most determined and lasted twenty-six minutes. There were five engagements, of which two were at close quarters. Prince Henry received two serious wounds, in the right shoulder and the right side of the abdomen. The Count of Turin was wounded in the right hand.

Whites and Negroes Fight.

The bloodiest race riot that has occurred in Arkansas in months took place at Palarm, a little station thirty miles from Little Rock, Ark., Saturday evening. As a result three men are dead, another is fatally wounded and several others are injured. The cause of the riot was the attempt by a deputy sheriff to arrest a negro murderer.

Iron Wag. Scale Settled.

The differences between the iron manufacturers and the Amalgamated Association are practically at an end. A 10 per cent reduction for rollers and heaters of the finishing mills has been agreed upon and a 7½ per cent reduction for the roughers.

VON THIELMAN IN THE SADDLE IN GERMANY.

Berlin Cablegram: The Reichsanzeiger officially announces that Count Posadowsky-Wehner, the new vice chancellor and imperial foreign secretary, is appointed to represent the chancellor in the capacity of the supreme head of the Reichsbank, and that the Baron von Thielman, late German ambassador to the United States, who was yesterday appointed privy councillor with the title of excellency and today made a member of the Bundesrath, is appointed to represent the chancellor in all the financial affairs of 1878, in accordance with the act of 1878. This announcement appeared too late this evening for comment by the Berlin press, but it is a most important move, as indicating the temporary ascendancy of the agrarian, protection and bimetallic parties. Dr. Koch, the president of the reichsbank, is an advocate of a pure gold standard only and recently delivered a lecture to prove that its abolition in Germany would lead to disastrous consequences.

Count Posadowsky, on the other hand, has more than once publicly advocated a double currency, and although Baron von Thielmann professes to be an advocate of the gold standard, it is known that he has leanings toward bimetallicism. His brother is one of the leading agrarians in the reichstag. Bimetallicists here do not conceal the belief that the recent ministerial changes will lead to a vigorous support by the government of the bimetallic efforts. The renewal of the German protest against the Dingley tariff has revived the agrarians the most extravagant expectations and they are advocating vigorous reprisals on the ground that Germany would lose but little by such a course. The Koelnische Zeitung, referring to these demands, explains that the second protest has only a formal significance, inasmuch as it is customary to repeat a protest when an objectionable measure actually passes into law. The paper says that the attitude of the government is unchanged.

By Judge Gest of Rock Island. Another injunction was refused the Fulton men by Master-in-Chancery McPhazen of Sterling. The Rock Island men then went to Fulton to take them by force, and the riot was the result.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRATS.

Free silver and Bryan proved a couplet that evoked rousing cheers in the Democratic state convention at Roanoke, Va., Wednesday. E. W. Saunders, the permanent chairman, lauded to the skies and was given loud indorsement by his hearers. J. Hoge Tyler of Pulaski was nominated for governor by acclamation. J. Taylor Ellison, chairman of the state committee, who was his only opponent, moved to make the nomination of his competitor unanimous, and in return the convention, by a rising vote, re-elected him as state chairman. After two ballots Edward Echols of Staunton was nominated for lieutenant governor. Besides indorsing the Chicago platform in its entirety the resolutions declare for primary elections to indicate the popular choice for United States senator and commits legislative candidates to the result of the primaries.

Rumor That Weyler Has Resigned. It is announced on what seems to be the best authority that Captain-General Weyler has sent his resignation to Madrid. There is no doubt that the resignation of General Weyler is due to the assassination of Senor Canovas del Castillo, the premier of Spain, through whose personal wishes Captain General Weyler was retained in Cuba.

Miss Fairbanks Married.

Miss Adelaide Fairbanks, the only daughter of Senator Fairbanks of Indiana, and Dr. Horace R. Allen, Jr., at the head of the Allen Surgical institute, were quietly married Friday. It was a love match, and while the young couple did not elope, the marriage was without the knowledge or consent of the bride's parents.

Strange Cattle Disease.

A strange disease resembling pink-eye has broken out in a large herd of cattle in the vicinity of Waterloo, Iowa. The suffering of the cattle is intense and there seems to be no relief.

Statistics of Immigration.

Statistics prepared at the treasury department show that 282,832 immigrants came over last year, and brought $3,541,241 with them, an average of about $15 per head.

FROM THE LAND OF SHINING GOLD.

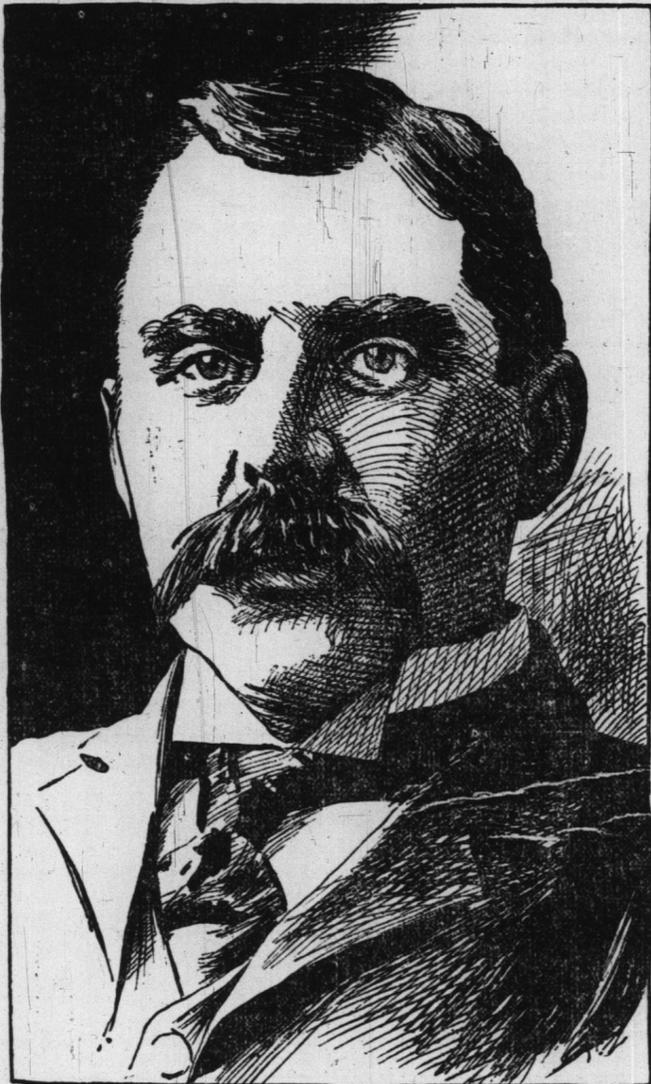

(Sitka, Alaska, Letter.)

The sudden finding of gold in a hitherto unsuspected country has made millionaires out of poor men. In a minute from poverty they came into affluence. The United States will have more multi-millionaires than ever, more plutocrats, and more "sudden riches." Canada has not struck it so rich, for the successful prospectors have almost without exception, been United States citizens and residents of the states. In the sudden making of millionaires it is difficult to tell who has struck it richest, accounts are so widely divergent. But all agree that no accounts have exaggerated the facts, so far as the finding of great quantities of gold is concerned. The richest man among the new Alaska millionaires is Joseph Ladue, the owner of the town of Dawson, and the finder of enormous gold deposits. Ladue is a resident of Schuyler Falls, Clinton county, N. Y., where, it is said, he is soon to be married to an old sweetheart whom he could not before afford to wed. When the gold fever broke out in a mild form two years ago he went to Alaska, after a failure in the Black Hills, and found enough to tell him of greater things later on. He returned to his home, but later went back to Alaska, took up a claim in the very heart of the country, paid for a certain quantity of land which was then for sale at a very low figure, and started in to look for gold. His first find brought settlers there by the dozen. "Dawson" the place was called, and as the owner sold off small portions of the land his fame grew and spread. He now owns Dawson, having sold but little, and is so many times a millionaire that his wealth cannot be estimated. He is the Barnato of Alaska, the man who struck it rich, and, knowing a good thing when he saw it, held on to it. It is only another tale of South African luck, but much nearer home—evidently near. The rush to the Alaska gold fields is such that all outgoing steamers are filled far in advance. These steamers run intermittently after the cold weather sets in, and there are long intervals when few Alaska voyages can be made. This accounts for the awful haste to reach there before the inland waters become unnavigable. There is also an overland route, but this also becomes impracticable after awhile, owing to the lack of traveling accommodations and the long distances that must be gone over without finding a habitation. Alaska has never been "settled," owing to the great cold there, but it is thought that it might in time be made as livable as any of the other cold cities, and, indeed, as St. Petersburg or Christiania or any of the large North-European cities. But this is quite a step ahead, though not at all improbable.

At present, if you want to get to Alaska and become a Barnato, there are two ways of going. One is by sea and the other is overland. If you take the sea route you can start by steamship from Seattle, if you have been fortunate enough to secure accommodations ahead, and crossing the Gulf of Alaska, touch first at Uralaska, passing through the Aleutian Islands. From there the route lies directly north, getting colder and colder every minute. Here you will need all the arctic wraps you have brought with you. The ship's fare will be warm, nourishing food—cereals, chocolate, meats and spices. But for all that, you will need fur overcoats, fur hoods, blanket wraps, woolen mittens and big, warm, fur-lined bags in which to sleep. For one going from a very warm city into this region the change is so great and so sudden that there is sure to be great suffering, and many of the would-be Barnatos turn back here. The crew, on the other hand, enjoy it, being accustomed to a polar latitude—for you are now approaching the pole. In spring the weather would be getting daily warmer as the season advanced, but now you would find it steadily growing more biting. The steamship stops at St. Michaels; and here, within sight of Behring sea, almost within hailing distance of the Behring strait, you leave the steamship and start inland to search for gold. The Barnatos have nearly all followed the Yukon. It leads into Klondyke, and one of its tributaries is the Klondyke river. Dawson, Joseph Ladue Barnato's town, is on the Yukon; and Circle City, another rich spot, lies on its banks.

Land is for sale here very cheap. Or you can do as many prospectors have done—start in hunting for gold without making too many inquiries. The find is so sudden that there is no sharp line drawn between that which is sold and that which belongs to the United States, and a man is free to hunt where he will. For your own comfort, however, it is well to have some definite arrangement made with the nearest authorities, so as to avoid trouble in case of a rich find. Another way to reach the gold fields is by the overland route. Many journey this way in wagons, as they went to "Pike's Peak or bust" years ago. The route begins at Seattle and follows the coast north past Sitka, past Juneau, and through the Chilkoe pass. And that $1,400,000 worth of gold dust would be shipped by the Wells-Fargo south, and that $768,000 in dust was awaiting transportation. In one day there came down on the Puget Sound steamship $200,000 in Alaskan gold. There is, as usual, a howl about the exaggeration in values hereabouts. But the facts are as stated and greater. It was so when gold was found in the West Rockies and in California. There really was gold and plenty of it, and so in Alaska. There is a chance for twenty Barnatos, but, of course, among 20,000—the present number of applicants that have applied at the steamship and overland offices—there must be many disappointed ones.

Even without making a Barnato fortune, a man may do well here, for there is a fine chance for Yankee ingenuity and the building up of fine American cities in the very far north.

LOUIS T. STOKES.

Canada's Policy Is Criticized.

On July 27 the Dominion cabinet decided to demand a royalty on the output of the new diggings of the Yukon. Under regulations previously issued, a fee of $15 per claim for registry and a tax of $100 per annum were imposed. Now, in addition to this, a royalty of 10 per cent of the output is to be collected from all claims producing $500 per month, and 20 per cent on those producing more than that amount. Moreover, every alternate claim on all placer ground is to be reserved as the property of the government, to be sold or worked for its revenue. The establishment of such a system, which is, we believe, without precedent on this continent since the end of Spanish rule in Mexico, is startling to those who have already acquired property on the Klondyke by right of location and possession, if not by title from the government, and to prospectors who are proposing to go there. The right of the Canadian government to make such regulations is unquestionable; the policy is doubtful. There is a suspicion that they would not have been so severe if it were not that most of the miners in the district were Americans, and the rush of prospectors thither promises to be chiefly American also. It was, of course, to be expected that the Canadian government would take measures to reimburse itself for the expenses of administration in the new district, and there is a plausible reason for a departure from the policy of liberality in granting public mineral land for the purpose of developing the unsettled parts of the country, since it is likely that the Yukon district has few natural resources besides its mines, and when the latter are exhausted the district will be abandoned; but this looks only to the easily worked placer deposits, and fails to take into account the lodes whence they originated, which some day will require capital and industrial freedom for their exploitation.

The measures adopted, however, seem to us unwise, owing to the retardation in the development of the mineral resources of the Canadian Yukon which they will cause, and the hard feeling they are sure to breed among the American prospectors, who are likely to clamor for retaliatory measures. These will be, moreover, difficult and expensive taxes to collect, since it will be nearly impossible to watch every miner, and the Klondyke is so near the American frontier that clandestine exportations can hardly be prevented. It is a sound principle of government that revenue needed should be raised in the most inexpensive manner possible, and any other system is unjust to the people who have to pay the taxes.

Most of all to be regretted, however, is the possibility of friction arising between two nations whose interests are really identical; since recent history has demonstrated that rich gold mines are a prolific source of contention and hard feeling.—Engineering and Mining Journal.

ILLINOIS NEWSLETS.

RECORD OF MINOR DOINGS OF THE WEEK.

Seven Days' Happenings Condensed—Social, Religious, Political, Criminal, Obituary and Miscellaneous Events from Every Section of the State.

Work has begun on the new Chicago postoffice.

Authority has been granted for the Millikin national bank of Decatur, Ill., capital $200,000.

Alvin Dorr, a resident of Aurora for half a century, died, aged 94 years. He was a soldier in the Union army, and had four sons enlisted in the same company with him. Three sons are still living.

Galena Telegram: Adam Euberg, a prominent business man of this city, died here. Mrs. Mary Galvin, a pioneer resident of Galena, died here. She had lived here more than half a century. Her husband, the late John Galvin, who died twenty years ago, was a wealthy and well-known grain merchant during the years of Galena's most prosperous times.

Two large excursions of Swedes left Chicago last week, in all about 300 people, and most of them women, for Stockholm and the exhibition. Both parties leave Montreal and New York, respectively, next Saturday. Many of the women went first cabin, some second, and about half on the third class. They were all well dressed, seemed well provided with money and expect to be gone about two months.

Galesburg.—S. N. Copeland, the manager of the local board of trade office, is missing, and it is claimed has taken with him a considerable amount due on margins. It was learned that he left the city last Friday, and that his wife followed the day after. The reason given was that his affairs were badly tangled and that he could not unravel them. His shortage may reach $1,000. Monday Copeland was in Chicago, but since then has not been heard from.

Charleston.—The board of trustees of the Eastern Illinois normal was in session here August 12. Bids were received for the completion of the building as follows: Briggs & Fuller of Charleston, $59,950; E. W. Gleason, Chicago, $58,200; W. F. Frost manufacturing company, Chicago, $64,875; J. F. Reese, Chicago, $77,069; A. J. Ledgerwood, Chicago, $69,739; J. E. Clarke, Chicago, $70,000; W. Mavor, Chicago, $68,322. The contract was let to Briggs & Fuller, and the work is to be finished by June 1, 1898.

Galesburg.—The following officers were elected by the colored grand lodge of the Eastern Star at its closing session to-day: Grand patron, B. S. Harris, Chicago; grand matron, Rosie E. Moore, Chicago; grand associate patron, J. H. Washington, Galesburg; grand associate matron, Julie Duncan, Springfield; grand treasurer, Lydia Coffman, Jacksonville; grand conductress, Mrs. J. H. Washington, Galesburg; grand associate conductress, Emma Kennedy, Chicago; grand lecturer, Agnes Moody, Chicago.

Peoria.—W. A. Sheahan, ex-grand secretary and treasurer of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, was arrested August 12 at the instigation of the grand trustees, charged with the embezzlement of $1,800. He was released upon bonds of $2,500. Information was attested in Justice Storey's court by J. W. McClure, a member of the board of trustees. It is claimed by Mr. Sheahan's friends that prosecution is simply persecution, and that the matter might easily have been adjusted within the organization. Sheahan's attorney became his security on the bail bonds.

Canton.—Mrs. Charles Gass, widow of Charles Gass, who died one week ago, committed suicide Monday night at her home at St. David, by taking morphine. The county authorities suspected that the house was a rendezvous for a gang of thieves, and by investigation discovered that the house was located directly over an abandoned coal mine. An entrance was found into the mine. There furnished rooms were found, and in one a lot of harness, axes, miners' picks, etc., were hidden that had been stolen during the last year or two. The place is thought to have been the secret headquarters of the Quackenbush brothers, who are now serving time at Joliet.

Mascoutah.—Much interest is being manifested in the appointment of master in chancery of St. Clair County, which will shortly be made by Circuit Judge M. W. Shaeffer, who was elected on the free silver Democratic ticket at the recent election. The master in chancery is a good place, paying upward of $5,000 annually, and that being about the only office in sight for the Democrats in Egypt for some time there is naturally a good deal of rivalry for the place. The term of office is for six years, but in order to divide the one office up fairly it is said that Judge Schaeffer has decided to appoint three men for a two years' term each. The men named as likely to get the office are R. D. W. Holden and M. W. Borders, attorneys at Belleville, and Jerry Kane, a well-known politician of East St. Louis.

Electricity in the Air.

Mr. E. B. Dunn contributes to The North American Review a suggestive paper on atmospheric electricity. He reminds his readers that the atmosphere is at all times charged with this subtle influence, that we draw it in with every breath and that it invigorates us and gives us life. When the electrical pressure of the atmosphere is at the weakest, as at certain hours of the day, then we feel often weak and depressed, and we know not why.

The same effect is produced when the air is saturated with humidity. In that case the electricity from our bodies passes off into the humid atmosphere, moisture being a perfect conductor, and again we are left without our due amount of this life giving current. That is why in hot, muggy, showery seasons we are often almost miserable enough to commit suicide.

The most interesting part of the paper, however, deals with the future possibilities of that electricity which the atmosphere holds in inexhaustible quantities. Mr. Dunn emphatically believes the time is near when this limitless store of power, health and light can be tapped, drawn upon at will and stored for the use of man. He says:

Several experimenters are already employed in devising a plan for gathering and storing atmospheric electricity, and I am confident from the progress already attained in this line that it will not be many years before atmospheric electricity can be properly stored and utilized, taking the place of all lighting, heating and motor power employed at the present day.

The possibilities and uses to which this power may be applied are innumerable. I expect to see it used in every house in as simple a manner as gas or water, so that it shall be within the reach of the poor as well as the wealthy.

The earth and atmosphere were given to us for useful purposes. The earth has responded to many of our wants, and now, as science progresses and we are becoming more enlightened, the possibilities of atmospheric quantities and quantities are open for experiment.

Massachusetts Feather Law.

Massachusetts has been the first state to enact a law looking to the protection of birds usually destroyed for milliners' purposes. Those who drafted and passed the law were apparently clear in their minds as to what they wanted and meant. But little they knew the resources of the human mind, familiar as they were with legal juggling.

The law explicitly prohibits the killing of all birds except those used for food, also English sparrows, crows, jay-birds and birds of prey. This is one section. Another provides that all persons found wearing the bodies or feathers of any of the birds whose killing is prohibited shall be fined $10. The keeping of such feathers for sale is also forbidden.

That seems plain enough. But here steps in General Martin, president of the Boston police commissioners, and says no woman can be arrested and fined under the law for wearing feathers. The reason he gives is the peculiar wording of the law—'whoever shall have in "his" possession, etc. "His" means only men, according to General Martin's ruling. "Let men who wear feathers beware," says Martin. Thus far no serious attempt has been made to enforce this law against cruelty to animals, though, as a prominent member of the Boston bar remarked, "There are more criminals walking the streets of Boston dressed in stylish clothes than there are in all the prisons of Massachusetts."

When people marry these days, it is well to take into consideration the possibility of future divorce. In 1890 a lady was so much in love with Millard Polhemus that she not only married him, but made him a present of $20,000 besides. In 1895 she was no longer so much in love with him; no, not by half. The painful truth is that her love had grown so cold she got a divorce from him. They are strangers now. After getting the divorce she also tried to get her $20,000 back, but in vain. The court decided that it had been a free gift and she no longer had any claim on it.

If Mr. Louis H. Davies, Canadian minister of marine and fisheries, is not a deliberate falsifier, then he is the most stupid and ignorant man in political office on this continent. Speaking of the efforts of the Americans to stop the destruction of the beautiful and profitable seal herd of Alaska, Mr. Davies of Canada said in an interview, "The herd is no more theirs than ours."

We Are Surprised.

We do not know what the National Association of Creditmen is. Judging from the best information we can get, it is an organization of men who have given credit to people and wish they hadn't. There is certainly enough of such material to form the very largest organization the world ever knew.

The thing that seems to us most remarkable in connection with the Creditmen is a statement made at one of their meetings by Mr. James G. Cannon of New York city. Mr. Cannon said the people most difficult to collect bills from were the rich, not just the common well off people, but the swellest members of New York's Four Hundred. Among other things, they run up immense jewelry bills. They let the bills run on and on. At last the tradesman, worried beyond endurance by his own bills which he cannot meet because these members of the Four Hundred do not pay him, presents his account. Then the millionaire debtors, largely women who have overdrawn their allowance, become very indignant at the man who dares send a bill to them, even to them, the heavy swells of society. Often they not only refuse to pay the tradesman, but transfer their custom to another, leaving the first one in the lurch altogether. His only recourse is a lawsuit, which he fears would do him more harm than good. If, however, one or two of these tradesmen had the backbone to stand up and sue for their just rights, they would infuse some backbone likewise into their fellows and read a much needed lesson to the snobs who take advantage of their social position to keep merchants out of their dues.

Mr. Cannon remarked further that the slowness of the "best people" in paying their debts caused almost unbearable worry and anxiety among tradesmen. Best people, indeed! What right have such persons to call themselves that? The best people are strictly honest. Besides the trouble they cause the merchants, the example of the slow pay millionaires is demoralizing to society in general. If the people in so called high life can thus go in debt and have the best of everything, paying when they please or not at all, what is to prevent poorer persons from doing likewise, so far as gullible merchants will trust them? The consequence is that poor persons who want to make a great show are tempted to live beyond their means and defraud tradesmen in their turn.

Mr. D. L. Howard of Iowa proposes a new kind of trust, one that will make millionaire pork packers of Chicago and elsewhere grunt, if not squeal. Mr. Howard is a swine breeder, and he proposes nothing less than that the hog raisers of the land form a trust to control the production of pork. The members of this Hog trust will keep themselves informed to a dot how many swine there are the country over. When the number exceeds a figure where the farmer can realize a profit, then down goes the number. It can easily be reduced by selling a proportion of the stock on hand. When the supply gets low again, the farmer will turn his attention to swine breeding once more. See? Such a trust as that would leave the great pork packers at the agriculturists' mercy if the farmers had the grit to form it and stick by it.

The snarl in the Canadian parliament shows nothing so much as the superiority of the American legislative system. Dominion senators are appointed for life by the head of the executive department, who is appointed by the crown. The Canadian senate is therefore a small imitation of the British house of lords. When there are a number of senatorial vacancies during a Conservative regime, then, of course, a large number of Conservative members are appointed. Then, when the government is overturned by popular vote and the Liberals come in, there will be a great body of Conservative obstructionists in the upper house. This is the Canadian situation at present, and the Liberals do not find it pleasant.

Great Britain will do nothing for the preservation of the Alaska seal, and it will probably ere long become extinct commercially. But who thinks of that now? Gold, Alaska gold, is the thing.

If Russia had known in 1867 how much gold there was hidden in the frozen gravel of Alaska, William H. Seward could not have bought it from her for seventy times $7,000,000.

In the name of humanity the London National Review calls on the United States to intervene and stop the Cuban war. It is high time.

Age cannot overthrow the person who keeps mind and body active.

The Jefferson Grays won the game last Sunday with the Independents by a score of 12 to 1. Our boys played good ball all through the game but it seemed as though they couldn't bat the ball out of reach of the Jeffersons.

Our burg was pretty well represented at the picnic at Diamond Lake last Friday. The leading feature of the day was the ball game, which proved to be very much one-sided, comparing somewhat to the last game the Independents played with the Unions, the result of the score being Libertyville (7) and Wauconda (28). The Libertyvilles will cross bats with the Independents again tomorrow, Sunday, August 22d, on Hill's Point and we expect it will be a much closer game than that played at Diamond Lake.

James Walter of Desplaines, accompanied by his mother and two sisters, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. Maiman. They were on their way to Baraboo, Wis., and on their trip will take in a number of Wisconsin's most beautiful summer resorts, such as, Lake Geneva, Devils Lake, The Dells, etc.

The cantata given under the auspices of the King's Daughters last Friday and Saturday evenings was grand to say the least. The children had been drilled perfectly and carried out their parts to perfection. The young ladies deserve great praise for their long work in preparing such an elegant entertainment. The crowning of the fairy queen was the main feature of the entertainment and was carried out by twenty-five young misses. The instrumental music rendered was something excellent the like of which is seldom heard in our burg. On the whole it was a grand success and netted the society about $35, which will be used to buy a new pulpit for the Baptist church.

Electric Road for McHenry County.

A survey has been made through McHenry county for what is called the Streater-Geneva Lake electric railway. It is thought that this new line is a certainty and if constructed, will pass through from Sycamore, to Genoa, Marengo, Union, Franklinville, Woodstock, Hebron, thence to Marengo Park at the head of Geneva Lake, Wis.

Old Rails Made New.

What is said to be an entirely new industry has been started at Joliet, Ill., on a large scale. It is the reolling of rails that have been worn out on railroads, and the making of them at small expense into what are practically new rails as good as ever. Mills costing $110,000 have been erected, and orders enough to give employment to nearly 200 men for several months are already on hand. The old rails, covered with rust, and often badly chipped, are first put in a furnace and heated to exactly 1,500 degrees, it having been found that a temperature higher or lower than this produces bad results in the subsequent operations. The next step is to pass the hot rails through a series of rolls, not much unlike those used in the original manufacture from steel ingots. Big saws then cut off the ends of the rails as smoothly and almost as quickly, as if they were made of wood and after they have been carefully straightened and punched for the fish plate rivets, they are carried to what is called the hot bed building, where they are allowed to cool slowly. This direct reutilization of old rails, it is said, will save railroad companies large amounts of money every year. Hitherto when a rail was worn out, it was either sold as old iron, to be melted, or else made into fence wire and a few other articles for which it was fitted, the loss in either case being a heavy one.—E.R.

Prices are low. Parties desirous of doing painting will find no better time to do so than right now. Linseed Oil is now down to a remarkable low figure, as is also White Lead. It looks reasonable that prices can not hold down to so low a point but for a short time; in particular that of Linseed Oil. Nearly every one is aware of the rise in price of all grains, which include flax, of which Linseed Oil is made. Prices can not get lower—they are as low as they can get.

THE EYE OF THE MIND.

BY HUGH CONWAY.

INTERNATIONAL PRESS ASSOCIATION.

An unpleasant, sinister look crossed my listener's face, but his voice still remained bland and suave. "I am sorry to differ from you, Dr. Brand," he said, "but I know him better than you do. I have seen him as you have never yet seen him. Only last night he came to me in a frantic state. I expected every moment he would make a murderous attack on me."

"Perhaps he fancied he had some reasons for anger," I said.

Ralph Carriston looked at me with those cold eyes of which his cousin had spoken. "If the boy has succeeded in converting you to any of his delusions, I can only say that doctors are more credulous than I fancied. But the question is not worth arguing. You decline to assist me, so I must do without you. Good-morning, Dr. Brand."

He left the room as gracefully as he had entered it. I remained in a state of doubt. It was curious that Ralph Carriston turned out to be the man whom I had met in the train; but the evidence offered by the coincidence was not enough to convict him of the crime of endeavoring to drive his cousin mad by such a far-fetched stratagem as the inveigling of Madeline Rowan. Besides, even in wishing to prove Charles Carriston mad, he had much to say on his side. Supposing him to be innocent of having abducted Madeline, Carriston's violent behavior on the preceding evening must have seemed very much like insanity. In spite of the aversion with which Ralph Carriston inspired me, I scarcely knew which side to believe.

Carriston still slept; so when I went out on my afternoon rounds I left a note, begging him to remain in the house until my return. Then I found him up, dressed, and looking much more like himself. When I entered, dinner was on the table, so not until that meal was over could we talk unrestrainedly upon the subject which was uppermost in both our minds.

As soon as we were alone I turned toward my guest. "And now," I said, "we must settle what to do. There seems to me to be but one course open. You have plenty of money, so your best plan is to engage skilled police assistance. Young ladies can't be spirited away like this without leaving a trace."

To my surprise Carriston flatly objected to this course. "No," he said, "I shall not go to the police. The man who took her away has placed her where no police can find her. I must find her myself."

"Find her yourself! Why, it may be months—years—before you do that! Good heavens, Carriston! She may be murdered, or even worse—"

"I shall know if any further evil happens to her—then I shall kill Ralph Carriston."

"But you tell me you have no clew whatever to trace her by. Do talk plainly. Tell me all or nothing."

Carriston smiled, very faintly. "No clew that you, at any rate, will believe in," he said. "But I know this much, she is a prisoner somewhere. She is unhappy; but not, as yet, ill-treated. Heavens! Do you think if I did not know this I should keep my senses for an hour?"

"How can you possibly know it?"

"By that gift—that extra sense or whatever it is—which you deride. I knew it would come to me some day, but I little thought how I should welcome it. I know that in some way I shall find her by it. I tell you I have already seen her three times. I may see her again at any moment when the strange fit comes over me."

X.

ALL this fantastic nonsense was spoken so simply and with such an air of conviction that once more my suspicions as to the state of his mind were aroused. In spite of the brave answers which I had given Mr. Ralph Carriston I felt that common sense was undeniably on his side.

"Tell me what you mean by your strange fit," I said, resolved to find out the nature of Carriston's fancies or hallucinations. "Is it a kind of trance you fall into?"

He seemed loath to give any information on the subject, but I pressed him for an answer.

"Yes," he said at last. "It must be a kind of trance. An indescribable feeling comes over me. I know that my eyes are fixed on some object—presently that object vanishes, and I see Madeline."

"How do you see her?"

"She seems to stand in a blurred circle of light as cast by a magic lantern. That is the only way that I can describe it. But her figure is clear and plain—she might be close to me. The carpet on which she stands I can see, the chair on which she sits, the table on which she leans her hand, anything she touches I can see, but no more. I have seen her talking. Once she was entreating some one; but that some one was invisible. Yet, if she touched

So far as I could see Carriston's case appeared to be one of over-wrought or unduly stimulated imagination. His I had always considered to be a mind of the most peculiar construction. In his present state of love, grief, and suspense, these hallucinations might come in the same way in which dreams come. For a little while I sat in silence, considering how I could best combat with and dispel his remarkable delusions. Before I had arrived at any decision I was called away to see a patient. I was but a short time engaged. Then I returned to Carriston, intending to continue my inquiries.

Upon re-entering the room I found him sitting as I had left him—directly opposite to the door. His face was turned fully toward me, and I trembled as I caught sight of it. He was leaning forward; his hands on the table-cloth, his whole frame rigid, his eyes staring in one direction, yet, I knew, capable of seeing nothing that I could see. He seemed even oblivious to sound, for I entered the room and closed the door behind me without causing him to change look or position. The moment I saw the man I knew that he had been overtaken by what he called his strange fit.

My first impulse—a natural one—was to arouse him; but second thoughts told me that this was an opportunity for studying his disease which should, not be lost—I felt that I could call it, by no other name than disease—so I proceeded to make a systematic examination of his symptoms.

I leaned across the table, and, with my face about a foot from his, looked straight into his eyes. They betrayed no sign of recognition—no knowledge of my presence. I am ashamed to say I could not divest myself of the impression that they were looking through me. The pupils were greatly dilated. The lids were wide apart. I lighted a taper and held it before them, but could see no expansion of the iris. It was a case, I confess, entirely beyond my comprehension. I had no experience which might serve as a guide as to what was the best course to adopt. All I could do was to stand and watch carefully for any change.

Save for his regular breathing and a sort of convulsive twitching of his fingers, Carriston might have been a corpse or a statue. His face could scarcely grow paler than it had been before the attack. Altogether, it was an uncomfortable sight, a creepy sight—this motionless man, utterly regardless of all that went on around him, and seeing, or giving one the idea that he saw, something far away. I sighed as I looked at the strange spectacle, and foresaw what the end must surely be. But although I longed for him to awake, I determined on this occasion to let the trance, or fit, run its full course, that I might notice in what manner and how soon consciousness returned.

I must have waited and watched some ten minutes—minutes which seemed to me interminable. At last I saw the lips quiver, the lids flicker once or twice, and eventually close wearily over the eyes. The unnatural tension of every muscle seemed to relax, and, sighing deeply, and apparently quite exhausted, Carriston sank back into his chair with beads of perspiration forming on his white brow. The fit was over.

In a moment I was at his side and forcing a glass of wine down his throat. He looked up at me and spoke. His voice was faint, but his words were quite collected.

"I have seen her again," he said. "She is well; but so unhappy. I saw her kneel down and pray. She stretched her beautiful arms out to me. And yet I know not where to look for her—my poor love! my poor love!"

I waited until I thought he had sufficiently recovered from his exhaustion to talk without injurious consequences. "Carriston," I said, "let me ask you one question: Are these trances or visions voluntary, or not?"

He reflected for a few moments. "I can't quite tell you," he said; "or, rather, I would put it in this way. I do not think I can exercise my power at will; but I can feel when the fit is coming on me, and, I believe, can, if I choose, stop myself from yielding to it."

"Very well. Now listen. Promise me you will fight against these seizures as much as you can. If you don't you will be raving mad in a month."

"I can't promise that," said Carriston quietly. "See her at times I must, or I shall die. But I promise to yield as seldom as may be. I know, as well as you do, that the very exhaustion I now feel must be injurious to anyone."

In truth, he looked utterly worn out. Very much dissatisfied with his concession, the best I could get from him, I sent him to bed, knowing that natural rest, if he could get it, would do more than anything else toward restoring a healthy tone to his mind.

XI.

ALTHOUGH Carriston stated that he came to me for aid, and, it may be, protection, he manifested the greatest reluctance in following any advice I offered him. The obstinacy of his refusal to obtain the assistance of the police placed me in a predicament. That Madeline Rowan had really disappeared I was, of course, compelled to believe. It might even be possible that she was kept against her will in some place of concealment. In such case it behooved us to take proper steps to trace her. Her welfare should not depend upon the hallucinations and eccentric ideas of a man half out of his senses with love and grief. I all but resolved, even at the risk of forfeiting Carriston's friendship, to put the whole matter in the hands of the police, unless in the course of a day or two we heard from the girl herself, or Carriston suggested some better plan.

Curiously enough, although refusing to be guided by me, he made no suggestion on his own account. He was racked by fear and suspense, yet his only idea of solving his difficulties seemed to be that of waiting. He did nothing. He simply waited, as if he expected that chance would bring what he should have been searching for high and low.

Some days passed before I could get a tardy consent that aid should be sought. Even then he would not go to the proper quarter; but he allowed me to summon to our councils a man who advertised himself as being a private detective. This man, or one of his men, came at our call and heard what was wanted of him. Carriston reluctantly gave him one of Madeline's photographs. He also told him that only by watching and spying on Ralph Carriston's every action could he hope to obtain the clew. I did not like the course adopted, nor did I like the look of the man to whom the inquiry was intrusted; but at any rate something was being done.

A week passed without news from our agent. Carriston, in truth, did not seem to expect any. I believe he only employed the man in deference to my wishes. He moved about the house in a disconsolate fashion. I had not told him of my interview with his cousin, but had cautioned him on the rare occasions upon which he went out of doors to avoid speaking to strangers, and my servants had instructions to prevent anyone coming in and taking my guest by surprise.

For I had during those days opened a confidential inquiry on my own account. I wanted to learn something about this Mr. Ralph Carriston. So I asked a man who knew everybody to find out all about him.

He reported that Ralph Carriston was a man well known about London. He was married and had a house in Dorsetshire; but the greater part of his time was spent in town. Once he was supposed to be well off; but now it was the general opinion that every acre he owned was mortgaged, and that he was much pressed for money. "But," my informant said, "there is but one life between him and the reversion to large estates, and that life is a poor one. I believe even now there is a talk about the man who stands in his way being mad. If so, Ralph Carriston will get the management of everything."

After this news I felt it more than ever needful to keep a watchful eye on my friend. So far as I knew there had been no recurrence of the trance, and I began to hope that proper treatment would effect a complete cure, when, to my great alarm and annoyance, Carriston, whilst sitting with me, suddenly and without warning fell into the same strange state of body and mind as previously described. This time he was sitting in another part of the room. After watching him for a minute or two, and just as I was making up my mind to arouse him and scold him thoroughly for his folly, he sprang to his feet, and shouting, "Let her go! Loose her, I say!" rushed violently across the room—so violently, that I had barely time to interpose and prevent him from coming into contact with the opposite wall.

Likes and Dislikes of Birds.

It is said that birds are nearly as sensitive in their likes and dislikes as dogs. Some people can never gain the friendship of a caged bird. A bird has to learn by experience that it is safe with a human being before it will respond to kind treatment.

RIVAL FOR THE KLONDIKE.

Rich Gold Discoveries Reported from California.

WONDERFUL STORIES ARE TOLD

Coffee Creek, in Trinity County, is the New El Dorado—Miners from All Over Northern California Are Flocking to the Scene of the Discoveries.

Coffee Creek, Cal., is Klondike's rival. Marvelous news comes from Trinity County. In Morrison gulch, two miles from the scene of the recent discovery made by the Graves brothers, $18,000 was taken out later. Two men are finding $40 in each pan, and other dispatches received tell of claims that are paying $100 a pan.

Klondike has been overshadowed, if all the reports are true, and every indication is that not a single exaggeration has been given out. The news of these fabulous strikes comes from reliable newspaper men and everybody here believes each report.

Miners from all over northern California are flocking to Trinity County. Trinity is one of the least explored of the gold counties of California, but has produced millions and is intersected by rich quartz ledges.

Executive Committee Named.

The executive committee of the National Silver Republican party is composed as follows: Chairman, Fred T. Dubois of Idaho; Judge J. J. Harper of Washington Court House, Ohio; Ben S. Dean of Jamestown, N. Y.; A. M. Stevenson of Denver, Colo.; Nathan Cole, Jr., of Los Angeles, Cal.; James H. Teller of Chicago; Charles S. Hartman of Bozeman, Mont.

Illinois' Great Corn Crop.

In northern Illinois the area planted to corn is 3,192,000 acres, in central Illinois 2,831,000 acres and in the southern division of the state 1,029,000 acres. Unless injured by early frosts the 1897 corn crop of Illinois promises to be unusually large. The wheat crop of Illinois will fall short of feeding her own people by 5,016,000 bushels, not to mention the amount needed for seed.

Reciprocity with France.

Negotiations are in progress between the secretary of state and the French ambassador looking to the formulation of a new agreement between the two countries on the basis of reciprocal tariff concessions under the authority conferred by section 3 of the new tariff act.

Australia Wants Settlers.

The Australian government has decided to open up several immigration offices in the United States in the belief that large numbers of the unemployed can be induced to start life over again in the colony.

HONORS TO CANOVAS.

Imposing Ceremonies at the Funeral of the Spanish Statesman.

The funeral of Senor Canovas del Castillo at Madrid was a most touching and solemn ceremony. All the troops of the garrison lined the route along which the cortege moved; the flags were lowered and the public buildings, embassies, consulates and clubs were heavily draped with crape. Senor Sagasta headed the cortege, which was formed of militia, deputies, generals, admirals and delegations representing all the principal public bodies. The wreath of the queen regent rested upon the coffin, and other floral tributes were carried in special carriages.

All the shops in the city were closed, and a very large proportion of the population that thronged the streets appeared in mourning garb.

Anarchists Will Be Deported.

Commissioner Powderly has requested the treasury department to cable to United States consuls in Europe and principally in those in Spain, France, Italy and Germany, requesting them to keep a sharp lookout for anarchist emigrants to America and to notify him by cable when any one of them embarks for the United States. They will be deported as fast as they arrive.

Find a Big Deficit.

The trustees of the Eastern Illinois Hospital claim the institution is nearly $25,000 in debt, with nothing to show for the expenditure. The trustees declare that Dr. Gapen, superintendent of the institution under the Altgeld administration, managed everything in good faith and with honest purpose, but with an utter lack of business perception and common sense.

Suits Brought for Taxes.

Suit has been begun by the state of Michigan to recover unpaid specific taxes for 194-95-96 from the West Branch Escanaba River Improvement Company of Marquette. This is the commencement of a crusade against all delinquents of this class, the purpose being to make them settle or forfeit their charters.

Gov. Mount Exonerated.

The members of the Indiana state board of charities in their report declare that Governor Mount did not use his influence to bring about the discharge of employes and the appointment of relatives of Superintendent Mason of the Evansville Insane Hospital.

Arrest of W. A. Sheahan.

W. A. Sheahan, ex-grand secretary and treasurer of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, was arrested at the instigation of the grand trustees, charged with the embezzlement of $1,840. He claims it is an overdraft.

Miners Must Pay Royalty.

The regulations formulated by the Canadian government covering the collection of a royalty on gold mined in the Yukon, are published in the Official Gazette just issued.

A CHICAGO GIRL OUTWITS THE "SAWBONES."

Miss Hannah Luella Hukill has shaken up the sawbones of the medical schools of Chicago as a result of her successful fight for admission to the College of Physicians and Surgeons. The principal schools of medicine of the city had been with the physicians and surgeons in shutting out women. Rush and Northwestern and others had consigned all "hen" medics to the Woman's Medical College, and there was no appeal. When the College of Physicians and Surgeons became a department of the university of Illinois the women under the leadership of Miss Hukill were quick to assert their rights and gave the old schools a shock by their victory. Miss Hukill is a clever young woman, who has paid her own way through two years of medical study by doing work as a stenographer. She graduated from the Western Normal College at her home in Bushnell, Ill., and then went to Chicago with the determination of realizing her ambition to become a physician. For two years she has attended to Harvey Medical School and at the same time earned her way. She is as skillful with the scalpel as with her typewriter. In her devotion to her chosen work she has already dissected one more than the required number of subjects. She declined the position of assistant in embryology at the Woman's Medical College of Northwestern University in order to enter the College of Physicians and Surgeons, thinking that she could get a wider training in competition with men.

Automatic Scrubbing Machine.
No more women will need to get down on their knees to scrub the floor. An Englishman has invented a machine which does the work. It resembles a lawn mower and is propelled in the same way. Hot water is placed in a receptacle, and when the machine is moved, flows forth gently and is automatically gathered up by a wiping cloth and brushes to be found in the rear. The rapidity with which the machine scrubs the floor and dries them is remarkable.

There Is a Class of People
Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that takes the place of coffee. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15 cts. and 25 cts. per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

Made Bread of Bones.
According to Herault, during the siege of Paris by Henry IV. a famine raged and bread sold at a crown a pound. When this was consumed the people, maddened with hunger, exhumed the dried bones from the charnel house of the Holy Innocents and from these made a kind of bread.

Maud Muller Revised.
Maud Muller on a summer night, went on her bike in the bright moonlight. She pedaled from six to ten on a trip that would fag the strongest of men. But her heart was light and her spirits gay, for it wasn't work, 'twas nothing but play. Next morning, however, she'd a pain in her head, she was played out and stayed in bed; while her mother hustled in the kitchen below, not to ride a wheel, but to make things "go." Though the morning was hot and she worked by the fire, she didn't collapse with a punctured tire. Alas for the girl and the woman! See? Things are not as they used to be.

Horseback Riding.
Horseback riding is a lost art in the average well-to-do country neighborhood, even with the sterner sex, and a side saddle in the country, not moidly, rat gnawed and "skirt curled," would be almost as great a curiosity as a horseless carriage, says the Western Horseman. The buggy craze struck the country during the flush days of a dozen years ago, every one discarding horseback riding as the poor man's mode of travel, and every farmer, his sons and hired hands all buying buggies and throwing their saddles in the "hen houses," where many of them still repose. Even if the family doctor is to be hastily called, the average farmer's son or hired man would deem it a hardship if he were compelled to carry the message of mercy on horseback. Twenty or thirty years ago the proudest day of a country boy or rural maiden was the one on which the indulgent (very often disgruntled indulgence) parent returned from town with a new saddle. In those days the country young folks would canter away over the hills, through the silvery brook valleys or across the breezefanned prairies, for miles away, to church, Sunday school, "apple cutting" or "cousin's wedding," full of health, happiness and human vigor. But not so now. A country young man on horseback, going to church or a party, would feel humiliated, while a country maiden would feel positively disgraced if her "feller" should presume to have her ride a "horrid horse"—and furnish it herself—to Sunday school or a circus, or even on a neighborhood jaunt. Nay, verily, the saddle, both side and astride, has emigrated to the city, where cultured people by the thousands recognize the respectability and healthfulness of horseback riding, and eagerly take up the lost art of their country cousins, spending vast sums of money for that which the country folk can as well have for nothing—the health and happiness-giving concomitants of horseback riding.

The Oxford Down.
About the year 1833 some prominent and skillful breeders in Oxfordshire, England, undertook the formation of a new breed of sheep which would combine the weight of the long wool with the quality of the Down. They did not establish a scale of points that was not fashionable then, but they said: "A real Oxfordshire Down shall have a nice, dark color, the poll well covered with wool, and adorned with a top-knot on the forehead, a good fleece of wool, thick on the skin, not too curly, a well formed barrel on short legs (not gray or spotted) with a good, firm mutton." They stuck to the test. They kept pegging away. Free wool had no sting, single standard no terror for them. On a double standard platform (wool and mutton), with two breeds to draw (Cotswold and Hampshire) without waiting for the aid or consent of any other breeder, they fought the battle. The English people are open to conviction, but the most conclusive evidence is required to convince them. The pioneers found no little difficulty in securing public recognition for their breed. But they were patient, persistent and determined. And in 1862, when the Oxford Down was given a separate class at the Royal show, the glorious victory was won. The ideal sheep is the one that will produce the most mutton, wool and lambs, all of the best quality and at the least expense. To its near approach to this ideal may be attributed the phenomenal success of the Oxford Down breed in England and America.—W. A. Shafer in "Sheep in America."

Breaking a Colt.
In breaking a colt to harness, we always prefer to give him his first few lessons double, along with a free, sensible, fast-walking horse. A light front bobsleigh answers well for several lessons. As soon as the colt has become used to harness, the bit, etc., and has ceased to be afraid of the driver or vehicle, and has learned to go along with his mate like a horse should, we feel no hesitation in hitching him singly to a cart. It is safe for the first few times to use a kicking strap, says Farmers' Advocate, being careful that it is properly adjusted about half way between the roots of the tail and coupling, and fastened in the proper position to prevent slipping either way, then buckle loosely to the shafts. It is not well to take long drives at first; in fact, the colt should be returned to the stable feeling fresh rather than weary. Two short drives in a day are much to be preferred to a long, wearisome trip. It is always bad policy to drive away a distance and then turn around and return by the same road. It is much better to go around a block, a different one at each time, however, so far as practicable, so that he will not acquire notions of his own as to where he should go or turn.

Extent of Roots.—The extent of roots is greater than supposed, e. g. the aggregate length of roots of a hill of corn is one and one-tenth miles. A stalk of corn gathers from soil about three pounds of water. The leaves exhale water as a vapor, but the roots absorb water as a liquid. As water is so needful for growth of plant, we see the advantage of having conditions of soil that favor extensive range of roots.—Ex.

The depth to which the sun's rays penetrate water has been recently determined by the aid of photography. It has been found that at a depth of 553 feet the darkness was, to all intents and purposes, the same as that on a clear but moonless night. Sensitive plates exposed at this depth for considerable length of time gave no evidence of light action.

WISE WOMEN.

Those Who Heed the First Symptoms of Nervous Derangement.

Special from Mrs. Pinkham. A dull, aching pain at the lower part of the back and a sensation of little rills of heat, or chills running down the spine, are symptoms of general womb derangement.

If these symptoms are not accompanied by leucorrhoea, they are precursors of that weakness. It is worse than folly to neglect these symptoms. Any woman of common sense will take steps to cure herself.

She will realize that her generative system is in need of help, and that a good restorative medicine is a positive necessity. It must be a medicine with specific virtues. As a friend, a woman friend, let me advise the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If your case has progressed so that a troublesome discharge is already established, do not delay, take the Vegetable Compound at once, so as to tone up your whole nervous system; you can get it at any reliable drug store. You ought also to use a local application, or else the corrosive discharge will set up an inflammation and hardening of the parts. Mrs. Pinkham's Sanative Wash is put up in packets at 25 cents each. To relieve this painful condition this Sanative Wash is worth its weight in gold.

Mrs. GEORGE W. SHEPARD, Watervliet, N. Y., says: "I am glad to state that I am cured from the worst form of female weakness. I was troubled very much with leucorrhoea, bearing-down pains and backache. Before using Mrs. Pinkham's Remedies it seemed that I had no strength at all. I was in pain all over. I began to feel better after taking the first dose of Vegetable Compound. I have used five bottles, and I feel like a new woman. I know if other suffering women would only try it, it would help them."

Our I's and Other Eyes.

Our I's are just as strong as they were fifty years ago, when we have cause to use them. But we have less and less cause to praise ourselves, since others do the praising, and we are more than willing for you to see us through other eyes. This is how we look to S. F. Boyce, wholesale and retail druggist, Duluth, Minn., who after a quarter of a century of observation writes:

"I have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla for more than 25 years, both at wholesale and retail, and have never heard anything but words of praise from my customers; not a single complaint has ever reached me. I believe Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be the best blood purifier that has been introduced to the general public." This, from a man who has sold thousands of dozens of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, is strong testimony. But it only echoes popular sentiment the world over, which has "Nothing but words of praise for Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

WHEAT TRADERS!

SCHWARTZ, DUPEE & CO.
2 BOARD OF TRADE, CHICAGO.
SOLICIT YOUR CUSTOM.
REFER TO EDITOR OF THIS PAPER.

MARKET REPORT.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Wheat went up 10 cents a bushel last week. The September option stood at 75¢ during the fore part of the week, and last Saturday, after the close of the regular session of the Board of Trade, 85¢ was bid for it.

When it is remembered that this tremendous gain was made from a point—75¢—that only three weeks ago would have been considered a high figure for the cereal the nature of the advance will be better understood and its vast importance to the commercial interests of the country, and especially to the farmer, will be fully appreciated. In the last six weeks wheat has advanced 20¢ a bushel, and even on a conservative estimate of the present crop, 500,000,000 bushels, this means a direct addition of $100,000,000 to the wealth of the American farmer on wheat production alone.

The beneficial effects of such a tremendous enhancement of values in wheat can hardly be estimated. It not only places the wheat grower in a position such as he has not at any time during the last five years, but at the same time sends a current of prosperity through every branch of business that is in any way dependent upon or affected by the fortunes of the farmer.

For instance, corn gained full 2 cents in price last week. The corn crop of the United States this year is not less than 2,000,000,000 bushels. The increase in value, therefore, last week of this grain alone was $4,000,000. But this is not all. From the crops of 1890 and 1891, as ever, farmer knows, there is still in sight about 1,000,000,000 bushels, which has grown in value $2,000,000 during the last week.

This makes a total increase in corn of 26,000,000, and we begin to see $50,000,000 gained by wheat in the same time, and the fact is plain that with realization at the present market taken advantage of the American farmer is assured of the most prosperous year he has known in a decade. These figures are compiled by Schwartz, Dupee & Co., the largest firm on the Chicago Board of Trade, not alone in domestic point of business, but also in the volume of its transactions for foreign account, but they may be relied upon as correct. It was when wheat was selling at 75¢ a bushel, that attention was called to the great deficiency of the European wheat crop and the total failure of the crop in two countries from which Europe had formerly received a great portion of its wheat supply—Argentina and India. It was then that wheat had a sensational advance in the price of wheat must inevitably ensue, and this prediction has been fulfilled to the letter.

Will the advance continue? On this point there is not much difference of opinion among those who make a study of the wheat markets, and their view is that the possibilities of the situation have not, by any means, been exhausted. It may seem to some that predictions of "glorious wheat" are optimistic, but they are freely made in Chicago, the great wheat market of the world. The facts are undeniably largely on the side of wheat. Foreign markets respond to our advance every day, and this morning the cables reported that Liverpool was firm at an advance of 3 cents per bushel over Saturday's close. Of course, there will be reaction, and in the nature of the case it will be sharp and come at an unexpected moment, but the feeling is almost unanimous that the trend of the market will be upward until a higher plane than the present one has been reached. The receipts at primary points are nothing like what they would be if the crop was not so large, and the continued fall in price, and buyers of wheat for immediate use report that as prices now stand they are unable to secure the grain in large quantities from the farmers. These facts mean much, and they give weight to the assertions of those who say that wheat will go to a new high.
