Ficke and wife made a trip to Ivanhoe one day last week. Ed Bruce made a trip to St. Louis Saturday, returning Monday. Golding Bros. of Wauconda are busy drawing coal from the depot. J. W. Torrance and son, Clyde, called on friends here Sunday. Ed Bruce has a long-distance telephone instrument in his house. Charles Blanchard of Waukegan called on John Hodge Sunday. Mr. Horstman, a contractor from Palatine, was in town Wednesday. Otto Gieser and Gustav Feidler attended court at Waukegan Tuesday. Fred Holland and family visited friends in Arlington Heights Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Hawley of Barrington were among the Sunday callers. John Meyer and sister, Miss Emma, of Huntley, visited their people Sunday. Two gentlemen from Chicago stopped at Vic Wenner's cottage this week. Miss Bessie Lorenzen of Chicago is the guest of Misses Hattie and Percy Gainer. Wm. Monahan of Wauconda was observed on our streets Wednesday afternoon. William Hicks and two friends of Palatine were here on a hunting trip Tuesday. Sanford Bennett and Misses Evelyn and Priscilla Davlin were in town Sunday. Misses Golding and Dixon of Wauconda attended the Firemen's dance Saturday evening. David McCullough attended services at the Baptist church in Barrington Sunday morning. Frank Roney shipped live-stock Tuesday. He has bought Henry Lohman's scales at the depot. M. L. Powers, who served as a petit juror at Waukegan this week, went there on the Sunday train. Charles Whitney of Diamond Lake and Vincent Martin of Wauconda are assisting the carpenters on Bruce's ice house. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Buescling and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thies and families spent Sunday with relatives at Ontarioville. John Kohl made his regular trip to Highland Park Wednesday to supply his customers there with fresh country produce. Mr. and Mrs. Will Bignase and daughter, Myrtle, and Louis Seip and Miss Anna Pulaski of Chicago were guests at Henry Seip's over Sunday. A debating and literary society may be organized here. Such a society would be very beneficial, and we hope its organization will soon be perfected. Married, at the home of the bride's parents, October 9, 1898, Miss Mary Wolf and Mr. William Butte. They are both residents of this vicinity, and are well and favorably known. The ball game Sunday between the Lake County Unions and the Arlingtonians resulted in a defeat for the latter club by a score of 3 to 2. The game was well attended and proved to be an interesting contest. The Unions have been very successful this season. This has been very largely due to the manager, J. H. Forbes, Albert Roney, E. W. Brooks, Ben Barker and other officers of the club. Mr. Kuckuck is making some improvements on his house and lot. Henry Hillman is improving his property on Main street, and Henry Branding has harvested his potatoes. The dance Saturday evening was a success in bringing a jolly crowd. Nearly thirty couples were present, and the merry crowd had a pleasant evening. The music was very good and everything passed off quietly. About thirty men, including carpenters, are employed by Bruce & Co. this week and the ice house is nearing completion. The building has four compartments, each measuring 32x40x160 feet. The building will hold 27,000 tons of ice. The company intends to load 500 cars this winter besides filling the building. The Fire company gave their annual ball Saturday evening, and those who attended report a good time. Everybody spoke well of the music furnished by Varallo's harp orchestra. To an observer, it seems to be an impossibility to get some of the property owners interested enough to contribute half a dollar to maintain an organization that any village twice the size of Lake Zurich would be justly proud. The boys are not discouraged though, and have decided to give another dance Thanksgiving. Let all who see the need of maintaining a fire company take hold and help make the Thanksgiving dance a social and financial success.

WAUCONDA.

Harry Fuller was a Chicago visitor Thursday. George Glyuch was a Grayslake visitor Tuesday. M. W. Hughes transacted business in Chicago Wednesday. Fred Hoelt of McHenry was a caller in our village Sunday. W. H. Sears of Rockford was a caller in our village Wednesday. Anson Davis and Richard Basely were Chicago visitors Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. H. George Meyers of McHenry spent the first of the week with relatives in our village. Don't forget the horse race today at Greene's grove. There are but two entries booked, but it will be exciting nevertheless. A number of our teamsters have been kept busy hauling coal for the past week. Now is the time to prepare for the cold winter blasts. The first frost this season was brought forth Wednesday morning. We have had exceptionally fine fall weather, and no doubt by this time every farmer is prepared for the more severe autumn winds to show their strength. The Paris Exposition club will meet at the school house Monday evening, October 17, to complete their organization. All members are requested to be present. An invitation is extended to all who would like to join the club to be present at this meeting. Messrs Burnett and Davis, two of our energetic young men, have opened a meat market in the old Swenson building. We will no longer have to send out of town for our meats. Mrs. Baker will probably return with him. Rev. J. C. Hoffmeister, the new pastor of St. Paul's church, is around getting acquainted with the people, and has made a favorable impression among his church people and others. Interesting features of Bates' lecture: Tunnel and escape from Andersonville prison; pursued by bloodhounds; hospitality of colored people; reception by General Sherman; interview with President Lincoln; twelve days in the White House. The High school football team defeated the Ravenswood team by a score of 6 to 0 on the Athletic field Saturday. The game was witnessed by a good sized crowd and was a close contest. The local team needs a little more drill on team work. The first lecture of the course given by the Epworth League will be delivered next Friday night at 7:30 o'clock by Rev. R. O. Bates, who will tell of his life in and escape from Andersonville prison. Do not miss it. Admission free. A collection will be taken. The pupils of the public school will contribute towards the monument to be erected and presented to France during the world's fair in Paris in 1900. Next Wednesday has been set apart as the day for this contribution, and the pupils of the Palatine public schools will do their share towards swelling the fund for this noble patriotic cause. The Rock River conference of the Methodist church closed Tuesday. Rev. F. B. Hardin will preach in Palatine. He is a son of Dr. F. A. Hardin, presiding-elder of this district, and has a family. We feel sure he will be well liked by church goers. Rev. M. H. Blum was superannuated by request and will go to California. Rev. T. E. Ream and Rev. Brewster go to Barrington and Arlington Heights respectively. Rev. W. H. Smith goes to Crystal Lake.

Shell Wilden.

A ROMANCE

CHAPTER VII.

One the following morning, as Shell is carefully folding in tissue-paper the superfluous tea-spoons brought into use on the previous evening, Ruby once more bursts in upon her solitude.

"I have brought over one of Meg's dresses as a guide; and I think this merino ought to make up prettily," she says, unfolding a parcel which she carries, and displaying with some triumph a tiny cotton frock and a piece of some light blue material.

Shell pauses in the act of rubbing an imaginary spot from one of the spoons and stares at the articles produced with wondering eyes.

"What are you talking about?" she asks, with bewildered stress on the word "are."

"Why, I am going to make a dress for poor little Meg," explains Ruby in a rather impatient and injured tone. "You must have noticed how badly the poor child's things fit her?"

Shell turns perfectly crimson.

"You can't mean what you say, Ruby?" she cries in a voice of horror. "You have surely not been offering to make clothes for Robert Champeley's children?"

"Why not?" demands Ruby, with a faint flush. "I consider it only a common act of charity to help the poor man when he is in such dire need of help."

"Oh, then, he asked you to see about it?" queries Shell, looking relieved.

"Well, not exactly. We were talking about the children, and I remarked that the nurse seemed to have no idea how to dress them properly. Of course he objected to my taking any trouble in the matter, but I could see that he was distressed by what I told him. So this morning I went over and caught the nurse just about to cut out another monstrosity, so I just marched off her stuff, and one of Meg's dresses for a pattern."

"Wasn't the nurse a trifle surprised?" asks Shell, in dry, sarcastic tone.

"She did seem a little put out," admits Ruby, with a quick flush. "I shall warn Robert Champeley against that woman. I think he must be mistaken in her—she has most shocking manners."

"Do you set up as being a judge of manners?" asks Shell, still sneering. "I set up for knowing when people are rude and disagreeable," answers Ruby shortly.

Shell, having carefully disposed of her last spoon, is turning silently from the room, when Ruby calls her back.

"Where are you going?" she asks crossly.

"I am going to lock up the silver," replies Shell, without retracing her steps.

"When you have done that I wish you would help me to cut out Meg's dress—you are so much more used to that kind of thing than I am," says Ruby, gazing despondently at the little dress, which she has been turning inside out to see how it is fashioned.

"I am really very sorry," answers Shell coldly; "but I can't possibly help you. I never cut out a child's dress in my life."

"Nonsense—don't be so cross—you must do it for me!" cries Ruby, beginning to look alarmed. "Of course I quite reckoned on you, or I should never have undertaken such a task."

"I am very sorry," repeats Shell, in a hard, unfeeling voice; "but I don't in the least understand children's things. I should advise you to send for patterns or put it out—you will get no help from me." And then she hurries from the room, nearly upsetting Violet, whom she meets in the passage.

"Would you believe it, Vi?—that wretch of a Shell has turned sulky," grumbles Ruby, as her cousin enters the room. "She vows she won't help me with Meg's dress, or even cut it out. Isn't it disagreeable of her?"

"What on earth will you do? I know you can't manage it yourself," laughs Violet—instead of sympathizing she seems only amused at her cousin's dilemma.

"I am sure I don't know. Do you think you could cut one out?" asks Ruby hopefully.

Violet turns the little dress all round about, then holds it out at arm's length by both sleeves.

"Not if hanging were the alternative," she laughs; "it is quite beyond me."

But for Ruby it is no laughing matter—fears of mortification and vexation force themselves into her eyes.

"Bah! Don't take it to heart," cries Violet lightly—"we'll send for some patterns, and then make an ostentatious show of cutting it out in Shell's presence. She won't be able to withstand that, I know, for she hates to see good stuff wasted."

And Violet's ruse proves successful. For when, a few days later, having obtained some patterns from London, Ruby deliberately begins to arrange them the wrong way of the stuff, Shell impatiently comes to the rescue, and, having once taken possession of the scissors, wields them to the end. Having cut out the dress, she soon decides to make it; she is a good workwoman, and never before has such a dainty, enticing bit of work come in her way. She feels perfectly safe in her undertaking. Ruby is scarcely likely to blazon forth her own incompetence.

One afternoon, as she sits at the open window smiling over her work, Robert Champeley comes sauntering thoughtfully up the short avenue of the Wilderness. Suddenly Shell, all unconscious of his close proximity, breaks into song. It is a bright, cheery little ditty that bursts from her lips, and her unseen listener pauses amidst the shrubs and waits for the end. Leaning idly against a strong young lilac, he not only listens to the words with an amused smile, but watches the busy needle flashing in and out of her work. She makes a vivid picture seen between the breaks of greenery, with her brilliant hair, snow-white skin, and the patch of blue on her lap. This is the second time he has come upon Shell unawares, and somehow he takes keen delight in so surprising her—her quick change of manner when she is discovered, although he cannot understand it, amuses him.

"A very good song, and very well sung! Bravo, Miss Shell—and please forgive me for listening," he says, stepping up to the window hat in hand, when the last note has died away.

"Oh!" cries Shell, becoming furiously red; and then she throws her work upon the floor and conceals it with her dress.

The sudden disappearance of the patch of blue attracts his attention far more than if she had left it on her knee, and a somewhat contemptuous look steals into his eyes as he comes to the conclusion that Shell is ashamed of being caught dressmaking. It sets him into a teasing mood.

"Miss Shell, if you ever get an offer of jewelry, I advise you to choose turquoise," he says, with his keen eyes fixed steadily upon the girl's burning cheeks.

"Turquoise—why? I am not going to get any jewelry!" stammers Shell, too confused and surprised to find a ready answer.

"Because pale blue suits you to perfection," answers Mr. Champeley with a meaning nod; and then, intensely amused at her bewildered look, he proceeds on his way.

"Could he have seen my work?" muses Shell, as she withdraws it from its hiding place and carefully shakes out the delicate lace trimming, which has become a little crushed from her summary treatment. "I don't imagine he could—and yet what made him talk about pale blue?"

In the meantime Mr. Champeley has proceeded round to the hall door, and been shown by the trim housemaid into the cool and airy drawing-room, where he finds Violet Flower buried in the depths of a low, cozy chair and engrossed with a novel.

"Tell Miss Wilden that Mr. Champeley is here," she says to the maid, as she half rises from her chair and stretches out a lazy white hand in greeting.

"Pray don't trouble to rise," laughs Robert, as he hastens to her side. "You looked so exquisitely happy when I came in that I should be sorry to disturb you."

"I am always happy when I am doing nothing," answers Violet naively. "This hot weather is so frightfully enervating that no one in the house has a spark of energy left excepting Shell."

"You are not altogether lazy—you were reading," says Mr. Champeley politely.

"Yes—I have just life enough left to take in ideas as they are put before me," responds Vi, with a lazy little yawn, "though I find it a great exertion holding up a book."

"You should get one of those wonderful literary machines which one sees advertised," laughs Robert Champeley, turning to greet Ruby, who has just entered the room. "I came over, Miss Wilden, expressly to thank you for all your kindness to my children," he begins in a formal tone as he reseats himself.

"Oh, please don't mention it!" answers Ruby, casting down her eyes. "I assure you their coming over so frequently has been a great pleasure to me."

"It is very good of you to say so," returns Robert, in a tone which does not convey any great amount of belief in her statement; "and I intend to send over the little ones tomorrow morning to thank you yourselves."

"I am sure I feel thanked more than enough already," murmurs Ruby.

"I have been fortunate enough to secure very comfortable rooms in a farm house on Oakmoor," pursues Robert Champeley, with his eyes fixed persistently upon the carpet. "The air seems pure and bracing, and I hope that a couple of months spent there will benefit them wonderfully."

CHAPTER VIII.

"Are you going with them?" asks Ruby sweetly.

"Yes—oh, yes!" assents the gentleman with gusto. He cannot conceal his feeling of delight at the coming change; indeed, of late Ruby's interference respecting his children has become almost unbearable—and change which takes him from her immediate neighborhood cannot fail to be greeted with enthusiasm.

"It seems such a pity to leave Champeley House just when the flowers are so beautiful," sighs Ruby sentimentally.

"I will tell the gardener to send over a basketful twice a week," returns Robert quickly.

"Thanks; you are too—too kind," gushes Ruby; whilst Vi, leaning back in her chair, smiles lazily at the little comedy being enacted before her. "Oakmoor," muses Ruby aloud, after a short pause. "It sounds so rural and nice, only just a little vague. What part of Oakmoor are you going to?"

"Our farm house is about a quarter of a mile from the village of Oakford."

"Oakford—Oakford?" repeats Ruby. "I suppose it is a very healthy spot?"

"I should think so. Oakford stands nearly eight hundred feet above the sea, and there is remarkably good fishing in the neighborhood."

"Oh, how I wish I could induce mamma to go there for a time—I am sure the change would do her good!" sighs Ruby.

"I am really afraid you wouldn't like it," cries Robert, looking alarmed.

"There is only the most primitive accommodations to be had, and—and ladies are not used to roughing it."

"That is just like you—always so thoughtful," says Ruby in rather an absent tone; "but I don't think we should mind roughing it a little, since the air is so invigorating."

"I know I should mind!" interposes Violet quickly. "I hate invigorating air—it gives one no excuse for being lazy; as for out-of-the-way places, I abominate them—no society, no library, perhaps even no piano!"

"I don't imagine that there is any hope of our going," says Ruby, looking blankly at her cousin.

"There is no need to regret that fact—you would be tired of the place in less than a week," laughs Robert confidentially; "as for Ted and me, it is otherwise—we shall have our fishing."

"Yes, of course. Well, I am sure I wish you may enjoy it," says Ruby, trying to look in earnest; and then, when their visitor has taken his departure, she falls into a meditative mood, from which Vi's bantering remarks are powerless to rouse her.

On the following morning Bob and Meg arrive with the nurse in their little donkey-trap, looking very important and well pleased with themselves.

"Please, Miss Wilden, we have come to wish you good-by; and please take this with our love," says Bob, striding first into the room and repeating the words that have been drilled into him with a slight frown.

"How handsome—how lovely! Oh, how kind!" she cries; then, unfolding a small scrap of paper contained in the case, she reads the somewhat stiffly-worded note enclosed:

"Dear Miss Wilden.—Please accept the watch from Rob and Meg as a small token of their regard and gratitude. Yours truly,

"ROBERT CHAMPELEY."

Whilst Mrs. Wilden and Violet are admiring the watch, and Ruby is perusing the note with a feeling of disappointment, notwithstanding the costliness of her present, Meg makes her way to Shell, and, thrusting a parcel into her lap, cries triumphantly—

"Dat is for oo, dear Sell!"

"Dear Sell" looks anything but delighted at the information.

"Nonsense, Meg—you have made a mistake!" she says, so coldly that Meg begins to pout her under lip preparatory to a cry.

"Me haven't!" she says stoutly. "Dat is for oo—pa said so."

Hearing that her parcel is of no intrinsic value, Shell condescends to open it. Having done so, a handsomely bound copy of Tennyson's poems lies exposed to view.

GENEROSITY AMONG SOLDIERS

Military Profession Does Not Encourage Brutality, Says This Writer.

The sight of the war cured the writer of one notion—that the military profession may tend to make those who follow it brutal and cruel, says the Boston Transcript. On the contrary, it seems to make them more generous and kind. It is not to be supposed that it is war that makes them so; it is probable that removal of the professional soldier from the field of competition for existence among independent workers and "business men" leaves him little chance to fall into that hungry and fox-like instinctive hostility to one's fellows that is developed by the social struggle for existence. All soldiers, whether officers or privates, seem to be engaged, on the other hand, in a kind of competition of generosity. It is a great point with them—a kind of invariable rule of conduct—to be ready to share what they have with others. This rule of generosity does not, of course, save them from doing cruel things occasionally. They have not ordinarily a very delicate sensibility to one another's pain; they do not seem to waste much sympathy on one another's physical sufferings. They bear their own without complaint, and seldom ask favors when they are suffering. But when it comes to "grub," or "shelter," they will give a comrade, or even a stranger, better than they have themselves, if they possibly can. And the work of an officer, even in the most active and terrible campaigning, seems to be easily consistent with the finest manliness and most delicate sympathy. And yet we should not encourage war in the expectation of cultivating fine sentiments any more than we should invite yellow-fever epidemics simply because a yellow fever epidemic develops fine cases of heroic self-sacrifice.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT.

Hunger in its acute stages is said to destroy natural affection and all the humane instincts, leaving nothing but selfish animal frenzy. This effect of famine is, of course, the same in very young victims as in adults. Occasionally the finer feelings seem to remain unbrutalized. When these are manifested in adults, both admiration and pity are aroused in the observer; but there can be no more appealing sight in all the terrible phenomena of starvation than the altruism of a child. A writer in Our Young People relates what he saw in one of the Cuban cities.

In a recess of the wall between two angles of a public building crouched some twenty or thirty miserable human beings, in all stages of emaciation. They were "reconcentrados."

A lady with a bright smile upon her face came down the steps of a large hotel nearby, and passed along the street. Her smile faded when she caught sight of the hopeless group, and she stood still in pained and silent pity. The poor wretches stretched out their hands, and the little ones ran to her and lifted up their pinched faces, begging for a coin "in God's name."

Centivos and pesetas were bestowed freely from the lady's purse; but what distressed her more than all was the despair stamped upon the face of one little girl, not more than seven years old, who did not move nor speak. She sat near a woman and two smaller children who lay on the ground, apparently helpless.

Drawn by her great, pleading eyes, the lady went to the child and offered a coin. The haggard little creature glared at it a moment, and then snatching the money with a wild shriek, darted across the street to the nearest store.

Directly she returned with a loaf, smelling it ravenously and almost licking it with her longing tongue; but she did not taste the bread. Running to the wretched woman lying on ground with her little ones, she thrust the loaf into her hand and then threw herself on her face in the dust, sobbing and shivering with utter grief. The lady was deeply affected, and seeing a soldier who seemed not wholly unsympathetic, she asked him to bring the generous little daughter and her starved family to the hotel. "They shall be cared for," she said. It was a pitiable sight, but it gave a refreshing view of the supreme power of love even over mortal anguish.

He Got Her.

"Humph!" growled the multi-millionaire, "so you want my girl's hand, do you? Have you lots of enterprise?" "Well," retorted the hardy swain, "I'm after the only daughter of just about the richest and meanest man in these parts."—New York World.

Better give them good reasons for guessing the other way. It is very easy; for nothing tells of age so quickly as gray hair.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

is a youth-renewer. It hides the age under a luxuriant growth of hair the color of youth. It never fails to restore color to gray hair. It will stop the hair from coming out also. It feeds the hair bulbs. Thin hair becomes thick hair, and short hair becomes long hair. It cleanses the scalp; removes all dandruff, and prevents its formation. We have a book on the Hair which we will gladly send you. If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Do Your Laundry Work at Home—How to Get the Best Results.

You should use the latest improved Cold Water Laundry Starch for fine work. Keith's Enamel Starch gives a most beautiful, clear, pearl-like finish, and an elastic stiffness that will stand any amount of bending, and an enamel gloss that will stand damp, foggy weather. Will not blotch and will not stick to the iron. Can be used on black, red or other colored goods without the faintest trace of white, and on white goods finishes whiter in color than any other starch. It shows every thread of linen, thus giving a high polish and a beautiful finish. Enamel Starch contains no ingredients which can injure any fabric. Some think that the starch they have been using is all right. We used to think the tallow candle gave a very good light, but after using electric light, we wonder how we ever got along with the candle light. It is the same with starches; you have used the lump and common cold water starches and made no complaint because you have never had the genuine Keith's Enamel Finishing. Labor Saving, Cold Water Starch, but after you once get accustomed to using it you will wonder how you ever got along with the other starches. Keith's Enamel Starch will do more work, do it with less labor and do it better than any other starch. Ask your grocer for Keith's Enamel Starch; a trial will convince you that it is in every respect the most perfect starch made.

GREW TOGETHER.

REMARKABLE GROWTH IN A KENTUCKY COUNTRY.

Siamese Beech Trees—A Strange Freak of Nature on a Kentucky Pike—Serves as a Tombstone for One Robert Thayer Killed by Sue Mundy.

(Bardstown Correspondence.)
ABOUT a mile east of this place and growing near the turnpike leading to Springfield is a pair of beech trees that are joined together after the manner of the once famous Siamese twins. The trees are of great age, the oldest inhabitants of this community averring that when they were small children the trees were fully grown. About ten feet above the ground they are linked together by a ligament of wood, two feet in length and about a foot in diameter at the points nearest the trees, but tapering to half a foot in diameter in the center.

In the autumn of 1868 Charles Horton and James Bransford, two well-known citizens, who are still living near Poplar Flat, in this county, were hunting in a strip of wood adjoining the field where the trees are growing. They suddenly flushed a woodchuck, to which they gave chase. The animal sought refuge in a den at the roots of the twin trees. The young men started to dig the woodchuck out of his refuge, but they dug into a grave which contained a human skeleton. The bones had apparently been lying in the grave a considerable length of time, for there was not a particle of clothing to be found, but a musket covered with rust was discovered near the skeleton.

Mrs. Margaret Thayer, an old widow, who was then living near Glenville, carefully examined the skeleton and pronounced it to be that of her husband, Robert Thayer, who mysteriously disappeared in the fall of 1862. She recognized the skull, which had been trephined with a silver plate. When Bragg's army invaded Kentucky in 1862 it remained in the vicinity of Bardstown a couple of weeks, and then moved on and fought the bloody battle of Perryville. During the encampment of the confederate army in Nelson county Thayer one morning took an old musket, together with a sum of money, and telling his wife he was going to join the rebel forces bade her good-by and left home. That was the last time she ever saw him. Shortly after Thayer's departure a band of guerillas under the leadership of Sue Mundy passed through the farm, going in the direction taken by Thayer. As it was a common thing for the guerillas to pass through that neighborhood, nothing was thought of the circumstance by Mrs. Thayer on that occasion. Nothing was ever heard of Thayer. It is the general opinion that he was overtaken by the guerillas, who, discovering he had a large sum of money in his possession, murdered him for the purpose of robbery and buried his body at the foot of the twin trees.

Haman and Esterhazy.
The Titusville Herald, under the caption of "Haman and Esterhazy," draws a parallel between the case of Dreyfus and that of a famous Jew of earlier times, which will have its interest for Bible readers. Mordecai, the upright Jew, whose experience is told in the book of Esther, was accused of treason as Dreyfus was, and apparently for the same reason. Thanks to the good queen he escaped the fate prepared for him, and Haman, his accuser, was hanged on the gallows prepared for Mordecai. The parallel is likely to hold to the end. The curious fact is to be noted, however, that Esterhazy, who is likely to bear Dreyfus' punishment when justice is done, is a respected descendant of Queen Esther, as his name ("son of Esther") indicates.

MRS. PINKHAM TALKS TO THE FUTURE WOMAN.

Will the New Generation of Women be More Beautiful or Less So? Miss Jessie Ebner's Experience.

A pleasing face and graceful figure! These are equipments that widen the sphere of woman's usefulness. How can a woman have grace of movement when she is suffering from some disorder that gives her those awful bearing-down sensations? How can she retain her beautiful face when she is nervous and racked with pain?

Young women, think of your future and provide against ill health. Mothers, think of your growing daughter, and prevent in her as well as in yourself irregularity or suspension of nature's duties.

If puzzled, don't trust your own judgment. Mrs. Pinkham will charge you nothing for her advice; write to her at Lynn, Mass., and she will tell you how to make yourself healthy and strong.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound strengthens the female organs and regulates the menses as nothing else will. Following is a letter from Miss JESSIE EBNER, 1712 West Jefferson St., Sandusky, Ohio.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to let you know of the great benefit your remedies have been to me. I suffered for over a year with inflammation of the ovaries. I had doctored, but no medicine did me any good. Was at a sanatorium for two weeks. The doctor thought an operation necessary, but I made up my mind to give your medicine a trial before submitting to that. I was also troubled with leucorrhoea, painful menstruation, dizziness, nervousness, and was so weak that I was unable to stand or walk. I have taken in all several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and am now in good health. I will always give your medicine the highest praise."

Europe Versus America.

The two most important financial weeklies of Paris—L'Economiste Francais and L'Economiste European—edited respectively by MM. Leroy Beaulieu and Thierry, highly respectable names in economic science abroad, published articles last month concerning the United States of curious interest. Both these gentlemen recognized anxiously the growing political importance of this country and compared our status with that of continental peoples. Professor Leroy Beaulieu seems to believe that there is imminent danger of our attacking Europe at some not distant day and advocates a federation of the imperiled nations to enforce a Monroe doctrine on the other side of the Atlantic. He points to the proposed sailing of an American fleet to the coast of Spain during the late war as one of the evidences of an irrefragable ambition, which, if carried out, ought to be met with armed resistance from all Europe. He goes on to say that "the continental powers ought to prevent, even by recourse to war if need be, any establishment by the Americans in Africa or in the part of Asia bordering upon the Mediterranean or the Red sea."

The earnestness with which the French economist charges on this windmill of his own creation would be ludicrous if it were not for a serious side suggested. This is a profound jealousy lately risen toward us in continental Europe, which has marched equally with an augmented respect. It is totally different from the old dislike for America and American institutions. That had in it an element of condescending tolerance. This strikes the keynote of fear, and it is the result of a war, too, the end of which should have been a foregone conclusion in the mind of an observer capable of an algebraic equation. This French alarmist need have no fear that there will be any American invasion of European shores except through the agencies of a rapidly growing commerce, making yearly strides of a conquering progress. Perhaps at heart this is the path which he really dreads. It is enough to cause uneasiness among nations which regard their markets as sacred to themselves, whether at their hearthstones or in foreign regions, where they attempt to hedge in a jealously guarded monopoly. The only argument of the Americans will be superior ingenuity, enterprise and quality of the products which they wish to sell; the field of campaign in which they will use their strategy—the free field of open competition. Another bigger specter, too, haunts M. Leroy Beaulieu's fevered vision. This is the grim apparition of a federation which in 1950 will give the United States 130,000,000 inhabitants and England, Canada and Australia enough more to make 250,000,000 in aggregate of Anglo-Saxons, "dominating the seas, disposing of enormous resources and weighing upon the entire world with a force absolutely preponderating if this group confronts only divided nations." To meet this colossal threat he advocates "the organization of a European federation as one of the tasks imposed by a near future."

M. Thierry, the other essayist, does not indulge in such melancholy anticipation, but he draws a comparison between the resources of the United States and those of rival peoples, their relative burdens and drawbacks, with a free admission of the enormous advantage of this transatlantic power in the future race for precedence. He analyzes the cost of European armaments and shows their effects on the burden of taxation and the resources of industry. His conclusion is that military nations must suffer most seriously in competing with the industrial nations of Anglo-Saxondom. His appeal echoes that of the czar and urges the release of national strength from its "Old Man of the Sea" in the shape of national militarism.

The German bureaucrats have lately been stunned to learn officially, what every one in business circles has known for a long time, that American pork, against which there has been an official war, has had easy access to the German market all along. Prohibition went into effect in 1892 under the law providing that no form of American pork should be admissible unless an official inspector's certificate accompanied it vouching that it had been examined under the microscope and found free from trichina. Of course that for many reasons is for the most part impracticable. The working rule has been, however, that the prescribed articles have been continually smuggled through the custom houses and that English dealers buying the American hog meat have put it on the German market as English ham and bacon, which always command higher prices.

The World's Wheat Crop.

Mr. Bramhall of the Liverpool Corn Trade News is one of the most distinguished and conservative experts in his line in the world. The statistics which he has recently published of the wheat crop of 1898 appear to have been compiled with much care. If they are approximately true, they indicate a record breaking year. His estimate of the grand total for 1898 is 2,607,000,000 bushels against 2,270,700,000 in 1897, a gain of 336,300,000 bushels. The increase in the product of the United States is 60,000,000 bushels, a figure which our own authorities declare too low, their count raising the total to 100,000,000. The interesting question is what effect this large increase in the world's wheat will have on prices. While it is impossible that last year's high figures will be reached, there is still some ground for the conviction that there will not be any declension from a normal and substantial return to our wheat farmers.

This reasoning is based on the fact that the very small crops of the four years preceding 1898—our own 1897 crop alone excepted—exhausted all of the wheat reserves of the world. The new crop must not only supply current needs, but fill this great deficit. What this reserve should be normally or how to estimate it is difficult to define. But the markets tend to accumulate such a reserve by a well known economic law. Whether much of that reserve exists today can be guessed through a calculation. The totality of wheat which the world produced in the four years preceding 1898 was about 843,000,000 less than in the preceding quartet of years. If Sir William Crookes' figures, as given in his recent British association paper relating to the increase of the world's population (mainly in wheat eating countries, too), are approximately correct, that gain is about 6,000,000 a year. So with a gain of 24,000,000 more people to feed in four years there have been 843,400,000 bushels of wheat less to eat. Considering this rather as an indication of fact than an exact statement, it hints that any wheat surplus must have been pretty well exhausted. However errant statistics may be in exact detail, they may still show the current of things. It is not reasonable to suppose that the prices of wheat will fall much below a normal level of profit on account of the enormous crop of 1898.

Jewelry experts declare that the amount of paste jewelry worn by people of wealth is enormous. People of moderate means are far more apt to wear genuine stones, when they use such ornaments at all. A rich woman only can dare to sport a tiara of flashing gems without being set down as an impostor. No one thinks of suspecting a millionaire's wife or daughter. The reason is not far to seek. Both in England and America very valuable jewels are kept in bankers' or safety deposit strong boxes and are only occasionally withdrawn. It is too much trouble and involves too much danger to wear these very often. So for ordinary exigencies paste stones are worn. Probably not one person in a hundred is capable of distinguishing between the artificial and the real product. It is alleged that on a brilliant opera night in New York or London not less than nine-tenths part of the most showy exhibitions of jeweled ornaments is sham. It is often the case in England that a bride marrying into a great family wears the family jewels once or twice. Then the superb stones go back to the gloom of a banker's safe, to be hidden there again for years. The manufacture of paste stones involves great skill and care, and though a minor industry yet represents a large value in its total. The principal seat of sham jewel making in the United States is Providence. All this goes to show what an enormous element of snobbery, fraud and humbug enters into the higher walks of fashionable life, for it is in this quarter that the sham products find their most active custom.

Devotees of science are never so amiable as when they are at table. Most of them are somewhat gastronomic in their tastes unless they have had digestions. Tyndall and Huxley were wont to smile with great gusto when the butler entered with the magic words, "Dinner is served."

SECTION 1. There is hereby established a volunteer fire department for the Village of Barrington, which shall consist of a fire marshal and as many members as the fire marshal and department think necessary.

SEC. 2. There is hereby created the office of fire marshal and said fire marshal shall hold his office for the term of one year, or until his successor is appointed and qualified.

SEC. 3. The fire marshal shall be appointed by the Board of Trustees of the Village of Barrington on the first day of May of each year, or as soon thereafter as practicable.

SEC. 4. The fire marshal shall have sole and absolute control over all persons connected with the fire department while on duty. He shall possess full power and authority over its organization, government and discipline, and to that end he may prescribe and establish, from time to time, such rules and regulations as he may deem advisable to secure such organization and discipline.

SEC. 5. The fire marshal shall have the custody of the engine, hose, trucks, ladders and all other property and equipments belonging to the fire department.

SEC. 6. The fire marshal shall inquire into and investigate the cause of all fires which may occur within the limits of the Village of Barrington as soon as may be after they occur, and keep a record of the proceedings and of the circumstances in each case.

SEC. 7. The fire marshal shall, at least twice a year, examine into the condition of the engines and other fire apparatus and engine house, and report the same to the Board of Trustees of the Village of Barrington on or before the first day of April each year.

SEC. 8. The fire marshal shall, whenever any engine, trucks or other apparatus shall require to be repaired, report such facts, indicating the amount and nature of the repairs required, to the Board of Trustees, and, with their consent, shall cause such repairs to be made under his direction and supervision.

SEC. 9. The fire marshal shall make such regulations whereby the uniforms of the department are kept in proper order, and shall designate the time and place for wearing the same.

SEC. 10. The fire marshal shall, on or before the first day of April of each year, make a full and complete report of all transactions in said department for the preceding year. Such report shall also show, as nearly as can be ascertained, the number of fires and cause thereof, all accidents by fire and the number and description of buildings destroyed and injured, together with the names of the owners and occupants, and the amount of property destroyed by fire and amount of insurance thereon, and shall also contain such other statistics and suggestions as he may deem advisable.

SEC. 11. The fire marshal or officer in command may prescribe limits in the vicinity of any fire, within which no person excepting those who reside therein, firemen, policemen and those admitted by order of any officer of the fire department, shall be permitted to go.

SEC. 12. Any person violating the preceding section, encroaching upon the limits prescribed as aforesaid, without the authority prescribed in the last section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and fined in a sum not exceeding five dollars.

The fire marshal or other officer in command shall have power to blow up, or cause to be blown up, with powder or otherwise, any building or erection during the progress of any fire, for the purpose of extinguishing or checking such fire.

SEC. 15. It shall be the duty of the fire marshal, when requested by two or more citizens representing that ashes or combustible materials are kept in any place in an insecure or illegal manner, or that the doors or stairways in any factory, workshop or other place of employment are insufficient for the escape of employees in case of fire or other accident happening, or that the funnels, flues, fire-boxes or other heating apparatus of any building in the village are insecure or dangerous, to make a personal examination of said place or building, and, if such representation is found to be true, said fire marshal shall give notice in writing to the owner or lessee of said building or place to make such changes, alterations or repairs as the public safety, or the ordinances of this village, may require.

SEC. 16. Any person who shall refuse or neglect to make such changes, alterations or repairs for the space of ten days after notice from the fire marshal, as provided in the preceding section, shall be subject to a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars and the further penalty of ten dollars for each and every subsequent day of neglect or refusal.

SEC. 21. Any member of the fire department receiving injury or becoming disabled while in the discharge of his duties as such member, so as to wholly prevent him from attending to his usual occupation, shall, at the option of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Barrington, during the time of such disability, but not exceeding six months, receive the sum of five dollars per week and his medical attendance, payable from the general fund.

Three Doctors in Consultation.
From Benjamin Franklin.
"When you are sick, what you like best is to be chosen for a medicine in the first place; what experience tells you is best, to be chosen in the second place; what reason (i. e. Theory) says is best is to be chosen in the last place. But you can get DR. INCLINATION, DR. EXPERIENCE and DR. REASON to hold a consultation together, they will give you the best advice that can be taken."
When you have a bad cold Dr. Inclination would recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy because it is pleasant and safe to take. Dr. Experience would recommend it because it never fails to effect a speedy and permanent cure. Dr. Reason would recommend it because it is prepared on scientific principles, and acts on nature's plan in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions and restoring the system to a natural and healthy condition. How to Prevent Croup.
We have two children, who are subject to attacks of croup. Whenever an attack is coming on my wife gives them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it always prevents the attack. It is a household necessity in this county and no matter what else we run out of, it would not do to be without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. More of it sold here than of all other cough medicine combined.—J. M. NICKLE, of Nickle Bros., merchants, Nickleville, Pa. For sale by A. L. Waller, Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine.

THE TRADE REVIEW.

Most Lines of Business in Good Condition—The Failures.

R. G. Dun & Co., in their Weekly Review of Trade, say:

"It can do no good to disguise the fact that the large eastern advances on wool to be held for higher prices have helped to retard the natural decline in that product. The cotton industry shows better condition in spite of the fall of cotton to the lowest quotation ever known, and there is larger demand for most staple goods. The iron industry still gains rapidly. Wheat has been declining a little, with foreign reports somewhat more favorable.

A DOMESTIC INCIDENT.

From the Observer, Flushing, Mich.

"Early in November, 1894," says Frank Long, who lives near Lennon, Mich., "on starting to get up from the dinner table, I was taken with a pain in my back. The pain increased and I was obliged to take to my bed. The physician who was summoned pronounced my case muscular rheumatism accompanied by lumbago. He gave me remedies and injected morphine into my arm to ease the pain. My disease gradually became worse until I thought that death would be welcome release from my sufferings. Besides my regular physician I also consulted another, but he gave me no encouragement.

On Getting Up from the Table.

"I was finally induced through reading some accounts in the newspapers regarding the wonderful cures wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, to try them. I took the pills according to directions and soon began to notice an improvement in my condition. Before the first box was used I could get about the house, and after using five boxes, was entirely cured. Since that time I have felt no return of the rheumatic pains. I am confident that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life and I try to induce my friends who are sick to try the same remedy. I will gladly answer inquiries concerning my sickness and wonderful cure, provided stamp is enclosed for reply. FRANK LONG, Sworn to before me at Venice, Mich., this 15th day of April, 1895. G. B. EVENTS IN ILLINOIS.

Seven Days' Doings in the Prairie State—Telegrams Received from Various Points.

Illinois Again Disgraced.

Year after year the people of Illinois have protested in various ways against the displays of obscenity on the state fair grounds. But the protest seems to be unheeded by the State Board of Agriculture. Just what excuses the State Board of Agriculture can give for allowing such exhibitions we do not know. Nor do we believe that all members of the board are equally blamable. There are men on the board above reproach. On the other hand, there are men on the board that should be tolerated only so long as the people can get them off. It would be interesting to know just what men are responsible for allowing these "Midway performances" and just what men are opposed to them. Two years ago the president of the State Board of Agriculture stated, in a meeting of the Agricultural Society of Cook county, that during his holding of the office no such shows should be tolerated. Yet both last year and this year the shows have been tolerated. Last year the abuse was reduced to the smallest point, only one such show being permitted, but this year three separate tents were in full blast, and were patronized by crowds of men and boys. Is it supposed by the State Board of Agriculture that mothers and fathers on the farms desire to send their boys to the state fair to have their morals debauched? Isn't it about time that the people of the state took the matter in hand and found out whether they have any say in the matter or not? If the State Board of Agriculture is so constructed and so elected that it is independent of the people and cares nothing about what the people desire, is it not time that the people found it out? The men that are responsible for this disgrace should be discovered and held up for public contempt, and the coming legislature should take the matter in hand and pass a law preventing the board from disgracing the state in the future.—Farmers' Review.

Chicago Will Back Peoria.

Chicago capitalists are willing to back Peoria capitalists to the extent of $200,000 in the proposed beet sugar factory enterprise. The idea is that if Peoria business men will arrange to take stock to the extent named Chicago will furnish an equal amount of capital, and the figure on which the estimates are based is $400,000 in all. For this amount of money it is believed that there can be a successful beet sugar industry centered here, a factory capable of caring for the product of all the farms devoted to the cultivation of that saccharine vegetable within a radius of fifty miles.

This, in outline, is the situation at the present time, but the time for action has finally arrived and there will shortly be a decision one way or the other. Theodore Hapke, the sugar beet cultivation expert, is in Peoria today. He arrived yesterday afternoon and is in communication with several members of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, who are taking a lively interest in the development of the proposed new industry in or near the city. There is to be a meeting of these gentlemen held in the Hotel Fey tomorrow evening, and it is hoped that some practical solution of the financial problem will be reached as a result of the deliberations. There is undoubtedly plenty of capital in the city, and much of it, too, is in hands that will not hesitate to invest it provided the prospect for fair returns are verified by the tests usually applied by experienced men of business.

Appeal of the Silver Forces.

All believers in the free coinage of silver living in the United States are appealed to in an address issued last week by W. H. Harvey, on behalf of the Democratic national committee, to subscribe $1 a month from now until Oct. 1, 1900. The fund thus raised for the next presidential campaign is to be used for the promotion of the silver cause and the overthrow of the gold-standard enemy. The address bears the signatures of Senator James K. Jones, chairman of the Democratic national committee; William J. Stone, ex-governor of Missouri; John P. Altgeld, ex-governor of Illinois; Senator William V. Allen of Nebraska and Senator Henry M. Teller of Colorado. Senator Allen is a Populist and Senator Teller a Republican. The rest are Democrats. The fact that Mr. Altgeld's name is attached and that he was appointed one of the ways and means committee by Chairman Jones at a recent meeting of Democratic leaders is accepted by Chicago politicians as notice that the ex-governor has been chosen to direct the silver forces of the Democratic party in this state in any national movement. The ways and means committee has headquarters in the ex-governor's Chicago building, the Unity.

Death of Sidney Smith.

Ex-Judge Sidney Smith died suddenly in his rooms at the Metropole Hotel, Chicago, Thursday afternoon about 5 o'clock as a result of an apoplectic stroke. Judge Smith was a prominent member of the Chicago bar and at one time was chief justice of the Superior Court of Cook county. He was a candidate in 1885 for mayor of Chicago in opposition to the late Carter H. Harrison, who defeated him by 350 votes. Ex-Judge Smith was born in Washington county, New York, in 1829, and after graduating from college entered the law office of Church & Davis of Albion, N. Y. He came to Chicago in 1856 and went into practice with Grant Goodrich and William E. Farwell. The firm of Farwell, Goodrich & Smith became at once well known for its trial defenses, and Mr. Smith readily gained a reputation as a distinguished jurist. The last celebrated cases he was engaged in were the divorce cases of Hart L. Stewart and Leslie Carter. In 1879 he was elected one of the judges in the Superior Court, Cook county, and his term expired in 1885. He then became attorney for the Board of Trade and held that position until three years ago. He was offered the nomination for congress twice, but declined each time. He was a member of the People's church and a warm personal friend of its pastor, Dr. Thomas.

Trade Unions Have a Grievance.

Trades unions of Chicago are not enthusiastic over the coming peace jubilee and it is said they may take action that may throw a damper on a part of the proceedings. President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor was invited some time ago to deliver an address in behalf of the skilled trades. Several days ago President P. F. Doyle of the Chicago Federation of Labor received a letter from President Gompers conveying the information that he intended to speak and asking that the Chicago labor organizations lend their assistance to make the occasion a success. President Doyle has replied saying that the Chicago organizations were taking no interest in the coming jubilee for the reason that the work on the triumphal arches is being done by non-union workmen, and that the pressure that had already been brought to bear on the management had not been sufficient to secure the recognition of union labor.

State Training School Officers.

The board of directors of the Illinois Training School for Nurses met in annual session last week. The report of Secretary Henrietta L. Frank showed that 184 persons were accommodated in the home last year, of whom 158 were nurses. Attention was called to the fact that twenty-five nurses from the school had been in active service in the hospitals during the recent war, many of them being in the various camps. The treasurer's report showed a deficit of $1,000.62 for the year. The following directors were elected to serve a term of five years: Dr. Julia Holmes Smith and Mesdames George Huddleston, Geo. A. Follansbee, C. K. G. Billings and Dudley Wilkinson, and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. J. M. Flower; first vice president, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter; second vice president, Mrs. Dudley Wilkinson; recording secretary, Mrs. Henry L. Frank; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Wm. Penn Nixon, and treasurer, Mrs. Orson Smith.

Cullom Back from Hawaii.

Having decided what form of government is best adapted to the Hawaiian islands, Senator Shelby M. Cullom has gone to Springfield to renew acquaintance with old friends and meet new ones. The senator and his wife and daughter arrived home last week on the overland limited Northwestern train. Congressman R. R. Hitt of this state and Senator Morgan of Alabama, the other members of the Hawaiian commission, took different routes east from San Francisco. Senator Cullom would not give any inkling of the nature of the commission's work. It will be presented to congress early in the session. President Dole and Chief Justice Freer of Hawaii will meet with the commissioners in Washington next month and formulate their report. It is said the commission will recommend a territorial form of government.

Threaten to Lynch the Men.

Paris, Ill.—Sheriff M. F. Winn of this county has received warning that plans are being laid to lynch the two Mattoon murderers, Martin and Gillilan, who were brought here Tuesday to escape violence. Two men from Mattoon were here today, and it is learned that they secured diagrams of the jail and its approaches. The sheriff has taken every possible precaution to prevent surprise, and says he will defend the prisoners to the last extreme.

SPAIN MUST GIVE UP ALL.

Can Not Retain Any of the Philippines.

MUST ALSO PAY CUBAN DEBT.

United States Willing to Assume Responsibility for the Payment of the Debt of the Philippines—Spanish Ministers Consider the Proposition in Council

The Spanish minister was summoned in council to hear read the telegrams from Senor Montero Rios, president of the Spanish peace commission, stating that the Americans demanded all the Philippines, but would undertake to assume the debt of the islands, provided that Spain pays the Cuban debt. The Spanish commissioners strongly object to this, and insist that the United States should assume the Cuban debt and allow Spain to take the war material in Cuba and Porto Rico. The government fully expected that the Americans would accept the Cuban debt.

FOR CUBAN SERVICE.

Many Regiments Prepare to Go to the Island.

The Second, Fourth and Ninth Illinois infantry, One Hundred and Sixty-first Indiana infantry, Second Louisiana infantry, Sixth Missouri infantry, Third Nebraska infantry (Bryan's regiment), First North Carolina infantry, Second South Carolina infantry, First Texas infantry, Fourth Virginia infantry and the Second volunteer cavalry, are under orders to go to Cuba.

Time Limit Is Set.

The Spanish must evacuate Porto Rico by Oct. 18, and if they have not done so by that time the commissioners are to take possession in the name of the United States. It is probable that the same policy will be pursued in Cuba.

Liabilities Are Very Heavy.

The liabilities of the Tradesmen's bank of New York will not be less than $3,800,000, and will probably reach $4,000,000. This more than five times the amount of the bank's capital—$750,000.

POSSIBLE DICTATOR FOR FRANCE.

Great interest has been excited in diplomatic circles by the abdication of Prince Victor Napoleon as heir to the imperial throne of France in favor of his brother, Prince Louis, who is two years his junior. The tenacity of the political situation in France at the present time makes every move of the imperialists of great significance. Germany and Russia evidently have their eyes on the young Prince Louis with a view to his being the possible dictator, maybe emperor, of the French nation. The declaration of the German press that "a man of action" is needed in France, and the freely made suggestion that Prince Louis is that man, bring out the second son of Jerome in a strong light.

Prince Victor's abdication was, it is said, forced by the Empress Eugenie and her Bonapartist friends. Victor was never "a man of action." Louis, on the other hand, has won his way into the favor of the czar, and is a soldier of a high type. He has a pleasing personality, and has many Napoleonic traits that are absent from the character of his older brother. Prince Louis was born in the chateau of Meudon, on July 16, 1864. He was educated for service in the French army, but after his father was expelled from France he entered the army of Italy. Resigning his commission in that service in June, 1889, he traveled for six months, and in the following December he entered the Russian army as lieutenant colonel in the dragoon regiment of the King of Wurtemberg at Nijni Novgorod. Some time ago he was transferred to St. Petersburg with the rank of colonel in the Czarina's Lancers.

HORSELESS AGE.

DESPITE WHEEL, FAITHFUL DOBBIN CONTINUES.

Riding Academies in New York Report Great Present Prosperity—Horse still Holds His Own—About Styles in Riding North and South.

The horse is not dead yet. When the wheel spun into such favor a few years ago, people prophesied that riding horses would soon have nothing to do but stand in stalls and kick their heels in idleness. For a year or two that was pretty much all of them did do. But at present there is a decided reaction, and the horse is prancing more gayly and more numerous than he ever did. Managers of the riding academies say that they have never had so prosperous a winter as the one past. The proprietor of a well known riding school near Central Park says that his books show a business of $20,000 in excess of the previous year. He states, with pleasure that collections are so easy that he feels as if he were in a rose colored dream and might wake up to find that his money had turned to fairy gold. As for the wheel, he blesses it devoutly, and says it is at the root of all his good fortune. "The bicycle was a blessing in disguise as far as we were concerned," he said. "I'll admit that it was disguised at first. But I never joined the chorus of the calamity howlers. I predicted from the start that the horse would stand the test, and so he has." "How has the wheel helped you?" "This way: People went crazy over it. Thousands and hundreds of thousands of people who had never taken out-of-door exercise learned to ride a wheel, and spent hours every day in the open air. When a man or woman finds out what a great thing it is to have exercise in the open air, that settles the thing. The habit once formed, you aren't going to coop that man or that woman up for the rest of his days. The wheel, I say, taught this habit to thousands of people, ever so many wealthy people. Then everybody took to the bicycle. The world wheeled. Some men and women didn't want to be in the crowd, so they decided to give up wheeling, except once in a while. But what they couldn't do was to make up their minds to give up out-of-door exercise, and, consequently, people who would never otherwise have learned to ride a horse have taken it up now. Of course, so late in the season, things are quiet here at the academy. People have gone to the country and taken their horses with them. But during the winter and the early spring we were simply rushed. As for next fall, I have so many engagements that if everybody came back at the same time I wouldn't have enough stalls for the horses. It is astonishing how many children are learning to ride. The greatest increase is in that direction. Children's ponies were never in such demand. In past seasons I have often had to take horses in pay for board bills. This year only one horse was turned in on me in that way. I had to engage nine riding masters, more than I have ever had before. People of all ages have been learning; even old ladies have been taking lessons. Another reason for the return of the horse is that stout people, who ride to reduce flesh, found that the wheel is not effectual as a horse. Then, too, a good many physicians prescribe a wheel and prescribe a horse." "The trotting horse is still the most popular?" "Oh, yes. The Kentucky-gaited horse isn't in demand here in New York except for semi-invalids, who need something easy. Down in Kentucky it's different. They ride for hours there, so they need an easy gait. Here in New York people want the horse which gives them the best exercise in a short time." "Do any New York women ride astride?" "I don't think so. It won't ever be fashionable in New York. I won't allow any woman to ride astride in my school. That is, not at present; but I am not pioneering. I believe they ride so a little in Chicago and other places." "How about cross-country riding among women?" "Of course there is nothing of that sort in the academy now, but we have had more pupils in that line during the winter than ever before. You see I am justified in saying that the wheel has proved a blessing to us. They couldn't very well ride to hounds on a wheel, anyway. But the love of being outdoors, which the wheel instilled into many people, has reacted amazingly for the greater popularity of the horse.—New York Sun.

Village Board Proceedings.

The Board of Trustees of Barrington met pursuant to adjournment at the city hall Friday evening. The meeting was called to order by President Boehmer and all members were present.

The question of renting the hall to the Barrington Social and Athletic club for dances first received attention of the Board. The village attorney, who was asked his opinion in the matter, stated in a communication to the Board, "that he was of the opinion that a municipal corporation, such as the Village of Barrington, owning a building containing a hall which was erected primarily for the uses of the corporation may rent or lease such hall for private purposes, such as sociables, dances, theatricals, etc., at such times and so long as such uses do not interfere in any way with the primary uses for which the building was erected." He further stated that the question had been before the courts of last resort in many of our states, and submitted many cases as authority on that point.

After considerable discussion on the subject Trustee Wilmarth moved that the club be allowed to use the hall Friday evening, October 14, on payment of $5. The motion was carried. Trustee Richardson demanded the ayes and noes, which were as follows: Ayes 4, noes, 2—Trustees Richardson and Plagge voting in the negative.

The property owners along Main street who had been notified to be present at the meeting to express their opinions as to the advisability of changing the grade on Main street were all present excepting a few, and the Board spent some time in hearing what they had to say. Their opinions varied as their different interests varied. The matter was finally referred to the street committee to see what agreement could be made with the property owners along the street.

An ordinance establishing a volunteer fire department, which appears in another column of this paper, was read. Trustee Wilmarth moved the adoption of the ordinance. The motion was carried by the following vote: Ayes 6, noes 0.

Trustee Peck moved that the matter of painting the roof of the hall be referred to the Board of Local Improvements with power to act. Motion carried.

Trustee Robertson moved that B. H. Landwer be furnished with water at meter rates. Motion carried.

There being no further business the Board adjourned.

Lake County Grand Jury.

The grand jury of Lake county completed its work Friday of last week. They recommended that one-half inch steel sheeting be put about the inside of the outer brick walls of the county jail or that a competent person be selected by the proper authority to attend the prisoners at night in the capacity of jailer, to keep a constant watch over them, so that they may neither escape nor harm one another. They further recommended that the county clerk's and recorder's offices be refitted with iron shelving to take the place of the wooden shelving now in those offices. The report closed by complimenting the county upon the efficiency of its officials.
