SCHOOL CENSUS OF 1902

Shows The Population of Barrington To Be Steadily Gaining.

The Figures Give a Total of 1262—Increase of 128 Over Those of 1901.

Barrington is now advancing in point of population. We present herewith a report of the school census enumerators, lately completed, which we abstract from the books of Secretary Hulse of the Board of Education of Union District No. 10, and comparing the total with the published report of 1901; it will be found that in the village proper we have 128 more inhabitants than we had in June 1901, while in the district, which includes territory outside of the corporate limits, the total population is 1349.

The following comparative figures show how evenly the population is balanced. The Cook county side, of the district contains 436 males and 438 females, a pretty close race for honors on the part of the males. On the Lake county side the sexes are about even as to supremacy the count showing 239 males and 236 females. We believe there is no community in the state that can show as equal a division of population as can Barrington.

In 1901 the Cook county division reported, males under 21 years of age, 173; females 173. Under six years of age, males 42; females 47. In the Lake county division the females were most numerous. Under 21 years, males 72; females 90. Under six years, males 18; females 35.

The census just completed shows in the Cook county division, under 21 years, males 201; females 182. Lake county division, under 21 years, males 78; females 83. Those under 6 years of age were not "sorted out" this year.

By removals and death the district lost quite a number during the year.

The building up of Chicago Highlands has added some to our population and if dwellings were to be had a large number of families would make this village their place of abode. At present there is not a vacant house or room of any kind for rent. The demand is large but no effort is made by our people, who have idle capital, to meet that demand.

If Barrington is to advance its property owners and citizens, who have capital stored away, must get out and take advantage of the opportunity now presented. Take care of the people who desire to locate here. Build dwellings and aid the town.

VILLAGE LAW MAKERS

Meet in Regular Session and Transact Important Business.

The village hall is one of the best ventilated assembly rooms to be found anywhere, but nevertheless Monday evening, the temperature in there was 85° in the shade of the electrolier. The municipal fathers shed their coats and vests, and were it not that an ordinance prohibits, would have divested themselves of other uncomfortable garments, while they labored in behalf of the dear people and fought the festive mosquito.

The board was called to order by President Lamey who apologized for the condition of the atmosphere and counseled the use of choice English in referring to the same. All members answered to roll call except Trustee Peters.

The report of Village Treasurer Brockway, for the month of June, was read and accepted. It showed that the amount of funds on hand was $2019.09.

The matter of C. & N. W. Ry water supply was laid over until the regular meeting in August.

Ordinances 82 and 83 were submitted and recommended for passage and same were passed and ordered published. They may be found in another part of this issue.

Trustee Grunau moved that owners of property on the south side of Liberty street between Williams and Ela streets, be ordered to build a good, substantial sidewalk. Trustee Hatje seconded the motion. The village clerk will do the rest.

Trustee Haje moved that the committee on fire be authorized to purchase 200 feet of best hose. Carried.

Trustee Donlea was fearful lest the members of the board might get lost in their meanderings about the village. To guard against such a public calamity he moved that nine correct maps of Barrington village be purchased and a copy given each member of the board. The maps will be purchased. Members of the municipal government are cautioned to not venture away from their own fireside without the map.

The board instructed the clerk to have published a warning to all boys using air guns, spring guns or other devices for the slaughter of birds that a penalty would be assessed against them if apprehended. The state law says the birds must be protected.

FREIGHT HANDLERS STRIKE

On Railroads Entering Chicago Cause of All Kinds of Trouble.

The men who load and unload the freight for the railroads entering Chicago, resolved, last Sunday, that they had been unfairly treated by the several companies, and unless certain concessions demanded by them were at once made, they would stop work.

The railway companies refused to treat with the men as members of the Freight Handlers' Union, but were willing to confer with their men as individuals. The railway managers would in no way consent to recognize organized labor. The result was that at 9 o'clock Monday morning 9,000 of the freight handlers obeyed the order of the president of their union and left their work, tying up for a brief season the shipping of freight from Chicago.

The great wholesale houses were crippled as they have never been before, and declared the difficulty was the most serious ever witnessed in the western metropolis. The railroads manned their freight houses with employes from outlying stations and the clerks from the general offices, thereby partly raising the blockade at the forwarding stations. Tuesday new laborers were hired and all freight offered for shipment accepted.

The State Board of Arbitration, railway managers, wholesale merchants and representatives of the organized labor, were in conference during Tuesday in an attempt to arrange the trouble satisfactorily, but the railway interests stood firm against accepting the proposition made by the union leaders.

Wednesday the Teamsters' Union decided to go out in support of the freight handlers thus adding to the trouble. Thursday the fight waxed warm. The railroads remained stubborn as did their former employes and a general strike of all unions in the federation of labor was threatened.

This (Friday) afternoon, the principals in the controversy are in conference and hope to settle the trouble.

CAMP EPWORTH.

Meetings Will be Held This Year Beginning July 17, Closing July 27.

Epworth Grove, near Bevidere, is being placed in readiness to receive the vast army of Methodists and members of other religious denominations who will make that beautiful place their home from Thursday, July 17 to Sunday evening, July 27. The liberal rates offered by the railroads will attract the largest attendance ever recorded there, and all anticipate an event of great importance and pleasure.

As in former years Rev. F. F. Farmiloe of Elgin will be in charge of the music. Dr. Hardin, for six years a leader at the Epworth camp meeting, will be present again this season. He will take charge of the boys and girls daily afternoon meetings. Dr. J. S. Bilter, D.D., the evangelist who has been engaged for all the meetings, comes highly recommended from the bishop of the Methodist church.

Thursday, July 17, will be Flag Day. Old Glory will be thrown to the breeze in the afternoon. A cordial invitation is extended to G. A. R. posts to be present. Gen. Wilcox of Elgin has been invited to deliver the oration on that day.

YATES CENSURES SHERIFF BAXTER

Notifies Saline County Official He Must Protect Negroes.

ADVISES REFUGEES TO RETURN

Governor Will Personally Invite Men Driven from Eldorado to Again Take Up Quarters There, Promising They Shall Not Be Molested.

Gov. Yates is taking an active interest in the race troubles at Eldorado, in Saline county, and after twice reprimanding Sheriff Baxter has written to President Alston of the industrial institute advising him to return there and promising him full and ample protection from violence.

The governor intimates pointedly that he is not satisfied with the excuses offered by the Saline county sheriff and informed him by letter that the assistant adjutant general tells quite another story.

There has been considerable correspondence over the troubles at Eldorado, the governor paying particular attention to the case.

He received one letter from President Alston of the Industrial Institute at Eldorado confirming the reports of violence against the colored people of Eldorado.

Alston writes from Metropolis, Ill., and states that there have been acts of violence against the colored people of Eldorado for the last four or five months. He says that, owing to mob violence, the contemplated sale of the property on May 29 was prevented, and that he and his wife are now in Metropolis, where the colored population is strong, because they felt their lives were in danger as long as they remained in Eldorado.

He also states that it is the intention of the trustees of the school to establish a school elsewhere.

Promises Protection.

Gov. Yates replied as follows: "You say that you are now at Metropolis, because your wife desires to get away from a place that would endanger her or your life, and in which you further state that you owe $500 upon Eldorado property, which could have been paid if you had been allowed to close the schools; and at the close of which you state that the trustees have agreed to re-establish a school elsewhere, and inquire if I have any suggestions to make."

"In reply I will say that I suggest that you return to Eldorado and open your school at the proper time, exactly as if no disturbance had occurred, with assurance from me that I will furnish you by telegraph all such force as may be necessary to protect you and all inmates of the school from any disturbance of any kind whatever."

"I note your statement that inmates of your school lived in this state, being for the most part old residents, and that they were not students from Kentucky. RICHARD YATES."

Baxter Explains.

The second letter the governor received from Sam Baxter of Harrisburg, sheriff of Saline county, in answer to Yates' recent letter in which he reprimanded the sheriff for failure to protect negroes connected with the school at Eldorado brought forth some severe comment.

Baxter alleges that he did not advise negroes to leave and that he did all in his power to protect them, and also that he had enlisted the aid of the United States deputy marshal. He does not say, however, that he is endeavoring to bring back the negroes who have been driven away with assurances of protection.

Gov. Yates replied in part as follows:

"I sincerely hope your statements are correct and that the report of the assistant adjutant general was erroneous, but, to put it mildly, there are several things which indicate that you have certainly fallen short of your full duty in this matter."

"My demand upon you in this particular was explicit and I shall not make it again, but proceed to communicate with those parties myself as rapidly as I can locate them."

"RICHARD YATES."

CORN ACREAGE LOWER IN THE HAWKEYE STATE

Iowa's State Crop Service Report Shows a Falling Off for the Month of June.

Des Moines, Iowa, special: Director Sage of the state crop service has issued a statement to the effect that the corn acreage in Iowa has decreased 504,780 acres within the last month on account of the excessive rainfall. June 1 the report showed an increase of 521,500 acres over the area planted with corn last year. The net gain in acreage, therefore, is but 16,700 acres. The loss on account of the wet weather has been about $5,000,000. The condition of the corn, however, is better than last year at this time by 2 per cent, the condition being given as 92 per cent. Winter wheat is 96 per cent of a crop and spring wheat 97 per cent, which is better than the condition last year.

The condition of the other crops follows: Oats, 95 per cent; rye, 88; barley, 97; flax, 99; potatoes, 108; hay, 99; pasture, 107; apples, 65; plums, 50; grapes, 67.

The potato crop is 16 per cent better than it was last year at this time, but plums and grapes are much below the average of last year. Hay is 23 per cent better than last year and pasturage 27 per cent.

CONTINENTAL DIVIDE COVERED WITH SNOW

Snow in the Valleys of the Rockies Insures Water for Irrigation Purposes.

Denver, Col., dispatch: The continental divide, which has been bare of snow since April 1, is covered to a depth of about a foot. In the valleys throughout the mountain districts snow fell at intervals for days and at Leadville a regular blizzard prevailed. Friday afternoon and Saturday morning. The thermometer fell several degrees below the freezing point.

Snow in high altitudes is not unusual in July, but it rarely descends to the valleys. Eastern visitors in many of the mountain resorts had the pleasure of snowballing on the Fourth.

The snow now on the mountains removes all apprehension of a water famine in the irrigation districts.

All tender vegetation, including the sugar beet crop in the San Luis valley, is almost a total loss from frosts. The cold wave is now moving eastward.

ROBBERS HOLD UP TRAIN NEAR CHICAGO

Posses Scour the Country in Search of Bandits Who Plundered Rock Island Express - One Man Under Arrest.

More than a dozen posses are scouring the country for the two men who held up the "Big Five" express on the Rock Island July 3, and the farmers, who also suffered at the hands of the robbers, are particularly enraged.

The holdup occurred near Dupont, nineteen miles from Chicago, shortly before 11 o'clock the night of July 3. Pursuit of the robbers began at once. One of the two men under arrest, Charles Nessler, is known to have been with the robbers, but the police believe his story that he was an unwilling accomplice, being forced to aid the robbers under threat of death.

In the chase that followed the robbery the two desperadoes stole seven horses and fought a battle with farmers who attempted to capture them. Several times they were almost captured, but each time they managed to elude their pursuers.

The posses of detectives and citizens lost the trail at Willow Springs, twelve miles northwest of the scene of the holdup. Later it was reported that the men had been seen at Lemont, where it is thought they may have boarded an Alton or Santa Fe train.

After disappearing into the woods beside the railroad tracks at Dupont the robbers, with their bag of booty, made their way to the nearest farmhouse to the northwest of the railroad. There they broke into a barn owned by James Abbey and secured a farm of horses, which they hitched to a buckboard.

After driving the horses at a furious pace for two miles further on one of the fugitives entered the barnyard of Herman Nitcha, where they took possession of a surrey, to which they hitched a team of horses, which they hitched to a buckboard.

Five miles farther on, in the vicinity of Willow Springs, Adolph Chance engaged in a running fight with the fugitives. At Chance's farm the horses stolen from Nitcha were unhitched from the surrey and a fresh pair taken from the barn, while the horse which was being led was again hitched to the rear of the vehicle, to be used, apparently, as a reserve.

The robbers made quick time in changing horses at Chance's place, and soon were speeding down the road as fast as they could urge them. Chance, who had been awakened by the robbers, secured a shotgun and shells loaded with buckshot, then awakened one of his farm hands. The two harnessed a horse to a light buggy and gave pursuit. After the chase had lasted fifteen minutes Chance rounded a curve in the road within range of the men in the surrey, and when a command to halt was unheeded the farmer discharged both barrels of the gun at the fleeing men. Flashes from the revolvers of the robbers answered the farmer's shots, and bullets whistled about the heads of the pursuers. The show of resistance caused Chance to drop behind, and, as his horse was fagged, he was compelled to abandon the chase.

The Rock Island train No. 5, which is the Denver and Omaha express, left Chicago at 10 o'clock. It consisted of an engine, express car, a baggage car, and five Pullman sleepers. The train was in charge of Conductor Coffey and Engineer Charles Goodall. The express cars were in charge of Messenger John E. Kain and William Rejahl.

After stopping at Englewood the train ran through Normal Park, Washington Heights and Blue Island without slackening its speed. As it was approaching Dupont, about three miles from Tingley Park the fireman opened the furnace door to shovel in coal. By the light of the fire within Engineer Goodall noticed a man climbing over the tender towards the engine cab.

"Stop the train at Dupont," called out the man, as he clambered forward. "Obey orders."

Both the engineer and the fireman, Albert Duckett, after a moment of astonishment, broke into laughter.

"You are held up; stop your train at Dupont," repeated the man. "This is no joke."

The engineer and fireman continued to laugh.

"If you think this is a joke, look up there," the man called out, at the same time pointing upwards where the cab roof and tender nearly join.

Through the open space the engineer and fireman saw four revolvers pointed at them by two men dressed in dark clothes and wearing masks over their faces.

An attempt to speak on the part of Engineer Goodall was met with a command to obey orders and keep his "mouth shut."

Rising in Values.

"Our last giraffe," said the manager of a Philadelphia zoo, "died in 1885, after a life here of ten years. Since then our collection has been wanting in this animal. Giraffes now cost $5,000 apiece. In 1874 we bought six, and they lived with us, respectively five, eleven, nine, three and two years, while one died in ten days after its arrival of congestion of the lungs. Of the others, one was carried off by heart disease, another by a spinal trouble, and the remaining three by ailments of an unknown kind."

For Illuminated Signs.

The movement to furnish travelers about the streets of New York with information as to where they are going, by providing illuminated signs on the corners, is practically accomplished, although none of the signs are yet in place. Another needed reform is about to be inaugurated, under the auspices of the board of aldermen. That is to compel owners of buildings to place the street numbers upon the same in some conspicuous place, so that they may be read by night as well as by day.

"Stop," shouted one of the masked men and the engineer brought the train to a standstill.

"Climb out and be quick about it," came another command.

Both the engineer and fireman obeyed, and as they did so the man who had climbed over the tender dropped out of sight on the other side of the engine.

"Make a hot foot to the express car," commanded one of the robbers. As Engineer Goodall hesitated to obey he was threatened with death. He was told to pound on the door to the express car and ask the messenger to open it. He obeyed and the ruse was successful.

As the messenger opened the door the two robbers covered them with their revolvers and ordered them to come out. Both obeyed.

"Hands up, or you are dead ones," commanded the robber who appeared to be the leader.

"We're held up," gasped Rejahl. "You are up against it," retorted one of the robbers.

The four men then were lined up along the side of the express car and guarded by one of the robbers while the other began to fire his revolvers to frighten the passengers, who had become curious over the delay and were climbing off the train. At the first shots they clambered back again.

At this point Messenger Kain, who, with the rest, had been standing on the ends of the ties with his hands up, slipped and nearly fell to the ground.

Without a word one of the robbers fired at him, and with a cry of pain the messenger fell to the ground, shot through the groin.

"I did not attempt to escape or put up a fight," groaned Kain.

"Yes, you did," came the reply, accompanied by oaths.

Several of the more venturesome passengers saw the messenger shot down and, fearful that all would be killed, began shooting from the coach windows. The robbers returned the fire, and the bullets rattled on the sides of the cars. The women and some of the men in the train were panic stricken. One woman fainted, and others were hysterical.

While one of the robbers was holding the passengers at bay and guarding the engine crew and wounded express messenger, the other directed Engineer Goodall to uncouple the express car from the rest of the train. The command was enforced at the point of a gun.

"Be quick or we'll shoot you, too," came from the masked bandit.

The engineer, realizing the plan of the robbers to run the express car forward and crack the safe, professed to be in ignorance of the coupling apparatus, and although apparently endeavoring to cut the train in two failed to do so.

"Cut that off or you are a dead one," shouted the robber, but the engineer only fumbled at the coupling. He twisted and pulled and kicked it, and finally the fireman was sent to his assistance. Still the connection remained unbroken.

As a last resort Rejahl was ordered back into the express car and told to open the small safe. The large safe is sent through without the messenger having possession of the combination. The robbers, apparently, were aware of the fact, for they made no attempt to force the messengers to open this safe. Rejahl dropped to his knees as he was bid and soon opened the safe. A number of packages of jewelry and a small amount of money was disclosed to view. One of the robbers pulled a canvas bag from under his coat and shoved the contents of the safe into it.

"Here, carry this," Rejahl was commanded. He obeyed, and leading the way dropped down from the car and walked as directed a short distance westward from the railroad tracks.

After the messenger had dropped the bag by the roadside he was commanded to return to the car. Then the robbers ordered the messengers and the engine crew to climb back to their places.

As Engineer Goodall was about to climb into his cab he encountered the man who had first commanded him to stop the train. Seizing him the conductor pulled him aboard. It was this man that afterward proved to be Charles Nessler.

With a volley from their revolvers the robbers then backed away from the train and disappeared. As the train pulled out Engineer Goodall caught a glimpse of the two men as they disappeared in the woods.

LITTLE MISS MILLIONS

OR,

THE WITCH OF MONTE CARLO.

A ROMANCE OF THE RIVIERA.

By ST. GEORGE RATHBORNE.

CHAPTER VI.—(Continued.)

Perhaps the spirit of girlish coquettish love for admiration had allowed her to flirt a little with another persistent admirer, but heaven knew she had never dreamed of loving any one but Mark, to whom she owed her life, and who had been her hero.

Looking into his face, as the fire leaped up with the impetus of new fuel, she could see that he showed some signs of his recent daring.

"You escaped any severe injury from the fire?" she said, her hands upon his arm, her starry eyes looking up into his face.

"The fire—the one away back when the bush was blazing so hotly and we, you and I, fled for our very lives? No, you don't mean that. Ah! perhaps you've heard about the hotel?"

How carelessly he spoke of it.

Of course she felt piqued—but then he did not know the truth—he had not seen her face, and how was he to discover whose plump arms had so tightly encircled his neck on that dreadful night of the conflagration?

That explanation was due him, and should be no longer delayed.

It was pleasant to know that it would come from her lips and not a stranger's.

"Yes, I know all about it—how you helped many to escape and finally carried the last one down in your arms," she said softly.

"I wonder if she got through all right—the man who brought me my coat said so," thoughtfully.

"You did not bother inquiring further," reproachfully.

"There was no time. We were deep in plans for leaving Paris. Besides, to tell the truth, I hated to have her thank me as if I had done something heroic. It was only a small matter."

"But, Mark, once you did not object to hearing me tell how thankful I was for your devotion?"

"Ah!" he replied, quickly, "that was a different matter—from you such words would come like a benediction, but it is different from a stranger."

She had been drawing something from the little reticule at her belt.

"I have been wanting to return this to you."

"What is it?"

"A handkerchief marked with your name."

"Why, Constance, where did you get it?"

"It either fell from your head where you found it to keep the flame and smoke from your eyes, or else dropped from the pocket of your coat. They thought, of course, it belonged to me."

"To you!" and he started, as if given an electric shock—to you! Good Heavens! was it you?"

She cast down her eyes and nodded.

CHAPTER VII

That Venerable Game of Cross-Purposes.

The surprising intelligence that after all it had been no stranger, but Constance, whom his arms encircled when the Paris hotel threatened a second Charite Bazar fire thrilled Merrick as few things could have done.

"I am deeply grateful that heaven gave me such a privilege. But Constance, you believe me when I declare on my word of honor that I never for a moment suspected this?"

"At any rate, you have placed me under still heavier obligations, Mark."

"Obligations—I do not fancy that word, coming from you. It sounds as though the debt could be discharged by the passing of money. But please allow the subject to drop for the present, Constance."

He had seen the count looking toward them with a positive frown upon his face, and like a dagger thrust it burst upon poor, jealous Mark that possibly something besides mere accident brought the bold African explorer near her.

"We are in a pretty plight just now," she remarked, and he noticed that she shivered. "When will we be able to leave here?"

"When help arrives, which we have sent for. Meanwhile let me go to the carriage and see if things belonging to you are in the racks or under the seats."

"You are very kind, Mark."

"Ah, what would I not do for you, Constance—it is always a pleasure for me to be able to assist any lady in distress."

Why should he spoil it all by adding that last—it took all the individuality out of his remark.

"There are a few things I should hate to lose; but I dislike to put you to so much trouble."

"Trouble!"

He looked at her as though he could eat her then and there—then sighed heavily.

"Unless those worthy royalists made way with them I shall doubtless find them. Tell me what they are like, please?"

When she had described the little handbag that held some of her jewelry, and a couple of other small packages, Merrick went away.

"I shall come back presently," he said.

He went straight toward the wreck, and her eyes followed his figure.

A flood of memories rushed through her mind, as she sat there and watched and waited for him. Some were pleasant, some bitter.

But at least there seemed hope—should she array herself in the lists against the princess, and fight to secure Mark's love?

Ah, he was coming again; he had found what he went after, and was bringing his spoils to her.

How eagerly she watched each movement of his well-remembered figure—how boldly he strode, as though he recognized no man on earth as better than his peer.

Please heaven, these gathering clouds might yet be scattered and the sunlight of happiness shine over their future.

The time crept on.

Surely they had a reason to believe deliverance must soon arrive from the town whither Jones had dispatched messengers.

The night wore on.

Some of the women slept from exhaustion.

Little Miss Millions had been made so comfortable and seemed to take such confidence and trust in Merrick's guardianship that she, too, dozed.

Then exhaustion overcame her, and the god of sleep gently touched her eyelids with his silver wand.

Fainter grew the sound of voices near by—they were like tinkling bells heard afar off, and then utterly dying out.

A noise of shouting aroused her.

"Don't be alarmed," said a voice close by, which instantly quieted her fears, "but a train has arrived to take us all on our way."

All was now confusion and bustle.

Women secured their valuables and packages ready to enter the carriages that would take them on to their destination.

Presently they were settled as best the conditions allowed.

Men bustled about changing the luggage, and it really seemed a relief to hear the steam escaping from the new motor after the dead silence that had so long hung like a pall over the place.

At last they were off.

Constance lay back in her seat and waited.

Although the town was only a few miles away and they reached it in short order, the time seemed exceedingly long to Constance.

At last the houses appeared.

They drew up at a station where many people had gathered to see the travelers who had passed through such a remarkable adventure and yet lived.

Constance was wild with a desire to put her head outside to see whether he were in sight and cared to find one he had left; but pride restrained her from making this move.

A dozen people went by, and each false alarm sent a wave of hot blood over her, only to be followed by a chill of keen disappointment.

Then some one halted and a head appeared, a head that she knew full well, since it had once lain in her lap while the owner rested upon the ground, insensate.

"Constance," said a voice, "are you here—may I enter?"

The railway carriage was fairly well filled pretty much all of the way to Nice, so that there was no opportunity given Mark Merrick to play the lover, even had he been inclined.

It was, taken in all, a most singular journey, and one they would long remember.

Although no words passed between them that would indicate sentiment, there were numerous little acts that served to thrill them—when hand came in contact with hand a subtle telegraphic signal would send the blood into her cheeks, and the glow in his eyes spoke eloquently of the passion he kept so well under restraint.

Jones ran across once or twice while upon the platform, and upon each occasion received the cheery assurance that all was well.

Nice at last.

Those who had gone through such woeful experiences were not sorry to have reached the end of their journey. Merrick was still courteous.

He insisted on seeing Constance and her maid to the hotel.

After dinner he joined Jones, and the two took dinner together.

Although so early in the season, Nice was filling up with people from all over Europe, the English predominating, as usual.

Monte Carlo, it is claimed, is the open volcano crater through which the seething, boiling lava of human cupidity and avarice finds its outlet—once dam this up and the molten mass will burst out savagely in half a dozen places.

Wretched though the results are, it seems to be a necessity in the eyes of surrounding nations.

At any rate not a step is taken toward crushing the hydra-headed monster.

Perhaps Jones was fated to be the man who would deal the dragon to his death blow—Jones, who carried upon his person the remarkable system whereby a persistent player must always win three times out of four, and that will break any bank.

Down upon the silvery strand, enjoying a cigar and admiring the picturesque scene, our two friends strolled in the evening.

Jones talked of the count and his ally.

Would Villebois now give up his mad desire to secure possession of the packet which promised untold riches to its owner.

Did his well-known record as a traveler give any reason to believe that he ever gave up any object upon which his heart was really set?

Jones reached this conclusion, but gave no indication of alarm—he had taken his stand upon this affair and was ready to hold up his end of the game, no matter what prevailed against him.

The beauty of the night and their desire for exercise after being cooped up in the cars so long a time induced the two friends to saunter quite a distance.

A band was playing back in the region from whence they had come, and the music reached their ears, mellowed by distance.

Away from the crowd of fashionables, who promenaded under the electric lights, where the palm trees threw their mystic shade upon the white strand—away from the noise and confusion attendant upon a watering place, they could smoke and chat in comfort, as men of their stamp delight to do.

As to the possibility of danger lurking near, the thought had not occurred to them—brave men are sometimes reckless; at least, they do not always keep on the lookout for hidden peril.

Even Jones, cautious by nature, could not suspect that the count would have set wires in motion so soon after his arrival.

Perhaps, after all, he had not yet fully sized up the man from Africa, whose very first act upon reaching Nice had been an aggressive one. Some men would rather cater to the influences of revenge and cupidity than enjoy a dinner.

Count Leon was the chief among them.

More than once Merrick, who was something of a sailor and loved the sea, turned squarely toward the water and endeavored to catch the salty aroma that came stealing in off the Mediterranean.

Lights of vessels riding at anchor could be seen, but the darkness concealed their outlines.

No doubt some of them were steam yachts belonging to the nabobs who congregated along this favored coast while the Frost King held most of Europe in his arctic clutches.

"Oh, my dear boy," said Jones, heartily, "just have patience for a few days, and I think I can promise you a yacht in which we may steam all around the world. That would be a small thing to a man who breaks the bank at Monte Carlo. Yes, you shall find yourself on board one of those fool's paradise boats out yonder before a week has passed."

These good-hearted fellows did not dream that his prediction would more than come true, simply because he could not possibly lift the veil and pry into the future.

Yet there was an experience hovering over Merrick that would add still another chapter to his already checkered career.

They had just turned to head back to the glow of electric lights, where the crowd was most in evidence, when a number of men came jostling along arm in arm, singing as only jack tars can when on shore leave, and apparently pretty much the worse for liquor.

It was surely the intention of our two comrades to sheer off and give them all the room they needed, but a sudden staggering lurch sent the rollicking line directly across their path.

One of them insolently struck Merrick, and quick as a flash received a blow straight from the shoulder that laid him out upon the sand.

Of course after that peace was out of the question, and both Jones and his friend found it necessary to defend themselves against the fierce attack of the unknown seaman.

Jones was startled to discover that member of the enemy's forces showed once, the fight was on, not a single least sign of drunkenness and he was forced to suspect that possibly this condition had been assumed for some purpose.

No matter whether it was an accident or part of a deep design, the sailors' onset was so vigorous and fierce there was no time to make explanation or offer apologies for being on the earth at the same time as these worthies.

PRIZED CLASS RING RECOVERED

Lieut. Alstaetter's West Point Emblem Was Stolen by Filipinos.

"Lieut. Fred Alstaetter, now on duty at Fort Leavenworth, had an unusual experience while in the Philippines," said Percy H. Longley of Topeka, Kan. "Alstaetter was taken prisoner by the Filipinos soon after the war broke out over there. He was pretty well treated, but was closely watched. His possessions, including his class ring, a memento of his life at West Point, were taken away from him. The cadet, and later the officer, always prizes his ring highly, and it is traditional that he must never allow it to go out of his possession, except when he lends it to his sweetheart or his wife."

"Alstaetter was kept a prisoner for several months and finally was exchanged. His possessions, in the meantime, had apparently disappeared. Last fall a negro who had deserted from the American army was captured with a bunch of Filipinos. When he was brought into camp a heavy gold ring, with a huge setting and coat of arms, was found on his finger, which had to be cut off before the ring could be removed. It happened that a young officer recognized the ring as Alstaetter's, who, in the meantime, had come back to this country."

"When Gen. Funston started back, the ring was given him to deliver to its owner. When Funston was taken sick on the coast," says the Washington Post, "he turned it over to another officer who was coming to Kansas, and a few days ago it was placed in Alstaetter's hands."

Spiritual forces cannot be set down in figures.

SLOT MACHINES ILLEGAL.

The Madison County Saloonkeepers Pay Heavy Fines.

In the trial of the test case in the slot machine cases, on indictments found against a large number of saloonkeepers of Madison county, the jury returned a verdict finding the accused guilty of keeping a slot machine as charged in two counts of the indictment. The case was against Thos. Lewis of Venice, and he will pay, in addition to the $100 fine paid by those who pleaded guilty, also the costs in the case, which will amount to about $50. Four others of the seven who banded together to contest the cases against them also pleaded guilty after the verdict was rendered, leaving only two cases undisposed of out of some eighty indictments.

Was North Alton Pioneer.

The funeral of Mrs. Gwendred Jones, widow of David R. Jones, was held from the family home in North Alton. Mrs. Jones was one of the oldest residents of North Alton, and belonged to a family prominent in the early days of the village when North Alton was an important coal mining place. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Walter H. Bradley, of the Upper Alton Presbyterian church. The funeral was one of the largest ever known in North Alton, many of the old friends of the family attending.

Telegraph Company Franchise.

At the meeting of the council a petition was received from the Western Union Telegraph company for a franchise to operate in that city, bringing to light the fact that this company has been doing business here for years without the protection of a charter. The franchise asked for is a liberal one to the company, which is bound to pay annually to the city the sum of $100.

NEW EPISCOPAL CHURCH OF LAKE FOREST.

The new Episcopal church of Lake Forest was dedicated by Bishop Coadjutor Anderson of the Chicago diocese and a gathering of the Episcopal clergy. The church building, which has cost $20,000 with the furnishings, is of the old English type of parish church. It is a typical country church, in which simplicity has been made a feature of every detail. The building is of stone and is finished inside with brick and rough plaster. There is a

FARMERS SAVE THEIR WHEAT

Little Damage from Sprouting to Crops About Alton.

Farmers in the vicinity of Alton say that the prevailing warm weather has in a great measure saved the wheat which was thought to have been hopelessly damaged by the long continued wet weather. The wheat was reported to have been sprouted by the dampness, and the growers were counting on a heavy loss in consequence. Threshing was resumed all around Alton, and the yield where the wheat shocks were not carried away by the floods in the small streams running through the farms is unusually heavy. Wheat growers on Missouri Point, opposite Alton, say that their crop will average above thirty bushels to the acre and that the damage to grain due to sprouting will not be as serious as was expected. Farmers have been tearing their shocks to pieces in order to allow the wheat sheaves a chance to be dried in the sun.

CALHOUN'S APPLE CROP IS POOR

Growers Say the Trees Will Bear but Little Fruit.

Reports received from Calhoun county this year indicate that there will be great apple-growing country between the Mississippi and Illinois rivers. Calhoun county has come to be known as the greatest apple-producing county of its size in the country, and its apple crop forms an important part of the wealth of the prosperous people living within the borders of the county. It is said by apple growers there that the trees give promise of but few apples, some of the orchards having none of good quality on the trees. The few apples now on the trees are so injured by insects that the crop will be practically worthless.

Rabies on a Ranch.

Zeph Silver, a prominent farmer living near East Alton, reported that a form of rabies has taken possession of some of his live stock on his ranch. Several months ago a herding dog was kicked on the head by a mule and went mad. It bit several cattle and many dogs. Seven young pigs became afflicted with rabies and died. A big steer also became uncontrollable and began frothing at the mouth and charging all the cattle on the ranch.

Gen. Leeper is Released.

Gen. A. B. Leeper, who several months ago gained national fame by the publication of a paper called the Lunatic Herald, has been discharged from the Jacksonville insane hospital after three months' confinement. It was his tenth commitment to that institution. Gen. Leeper says he intends to resume the publication of the Lunatic Herald. He is now at his home, near Owaneco, four miles east of Taylorville.

James Brock, a fireman at the Sparks mill at Alton, was seriously injured by falling through a large glass window at his home. Brock was standing on a ladder tacking up some bunting when the ladder broke and he fell forward, pitching through the glass window and sustaining a very serious wound on his right arm.

Dr. W. E. Dr. H. B. Carriell, who has just been appointed superintendent for the central hospital for the insane at Jacksonville, has been in temporary charge of the Peoria asylum since its opening. Dr. Taylor will continue in his present position of superintendent of the hospital at Watertown, so that, for the time being, two institutions will be under his supervision.

Some time after his return from his studies in Germany Governor Tanner made him assistant at the central hospital, and in December he was placed in charge of the asylum at Bartonville, where he has acted as superintendent.

Delay for Trolley Line.

Delay has been experienced in getting the right of way for the electric railway which will be built from Granite City to East Alton to connect with a similar line from Alton to East Alton, in order to give a thorough electric line from Alton to St. Louis. The promoters of the road have been unable to secure part of the right of way near Mitchell, which must be secured before the beginning of the construction work on the line. Work on the line from Alton to East Alton will be started soon. Some of the material needed in construction has not arrived, and the road will be started when the steel arrives. Some of the right of way for the latter road remains to be secured.

Invites the Governor.

The committee having in charge the ceremonies for the laying of the corner stone for the Centralia Carnegie library building on the 17th have invited Gov. Richard Yates to be present and deliver an address. The Governor is the grand orator for the Masonic fraternity in Illinois, and as the Masons will have charge of the ceremonies it is quite likely that the Governor will be invited.

Splinter Causes Death.

William Weber, an old and highly esteemed citizen of Cairo, died as the result of blood poisoning, caused by running a splinter in his finger last March. His physicians advised amputation, but the patient would not submit to it. Mr. Weber was 67 years of age and had resided in Cairo for thirty-five years, being engaged in the grocery business for twenty-seven years of that time.

Green Scum on River.

The surface of the Mississippi at Alton is covered with a green scum which floated out of the Illinois river bottoms during the recent high water. The scum had lodged in all the inlets along the river.

Red Men at Alton.

Iroquois Tribe, Order of Red Men, was organized in Alton and sixty-five members were taken in. The degree work was done by St. Louis and East St. Louis tribes.

Centralia's Library.

The contractors have commenced work on the Carnegie public library building at Centralia. It is being erected in the center of the city park, which is located in the most aristocratic part of the city and beautifully shaded. It is to be of pressed brick, with Bedford stone trimmings, and will cost $20,000.

New Church at Taylorville.

The German Lutherans of Taylorville have commenced the erection of a new church building.

Child's Narrow Escape.

Little Earl Norbert Anderson, the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Anderson of Springfield, miraculously escaped what appeared to be imminent death. The child was struck by the fender on a Monroe street car before the motorman had time to let it down. Fortunately, however, the child toppled over on the fender. His hands and feet became caught in the screen and in this manner he was held until the car could be stopped.

Deaths at the Quincy Home.

The following deaths occurred in the state soldiers' home at Quincy during the month of June: Henry Cavari, company I, 11th Illinois infantry; Waller Menzler, company D, 28th Illinois infantry; George D. Cooper, company B, 123d Illinois infantry; Samuel Vaughn, company E, 64th Ohio infantry; Felix Decoursey, company E, 49th Illinois infantry; James McCann, company D, 22d Missouri infantry. ## Arbitration in Massachusetts.

The report of the state board of conciliation and arbitration of Massachusetts for 1901 shows gratifying progress in the adoption of the principle of arbitration in the adjustment of labor troubles. During the year the board took part in the settling of 108 controversies. It rendered eight decisions, and thirty-nine conciliations were effected. Twenty-six cases were found in process of mutual settlement, and eighteen were abandoned.

The report further shows that there is an increasing tendency to make use of the services of the board. A majority of the cases dealt with were those in which an appeal was made by both parties or by one party, and it also appears that a larger number of the contests brought before the board were settled than ever before. This is a most gratifying statement, and its result in Massachusetts is probably not widely different from that in the twenty-three other states which have adopted the system of voluntary state arbitration. In the recent strike in Chicago there was a prompt resort to the principle of arbitration than ever before and greater readiness on each side to make concessions.

There is, however, one feature of the situation which is not so encouraging. As the Boston Transcript in a discussion of the report intimates, voluntary state arbitration may be locally successful and yet it is powerless to meet completely the demands of modern industrial conditions. It cannot cope with strikes that extend beyond state boundaries. It truthfully says: "As a rule, it is only minor disputes that are submitted to arbitration tribunals as at present constituted. The much advertised committee of the National Civic Federation can accomplish nothing toward staying hostilities in the coal industry in the face of the refusal of the operators to accept arbitration."

Driving Out the Finns.

Striking evidence of the bitter resentment excited among the Finns by the withdrawal of the autonomous rights which they had so long enjoyed and the remorseless process of Russification to which they have lately been subjected is found in the emigration figures, showing that thousands of them are going into voluntary exile rather than endure the new condition of affairs at home.

According to the latest official statistics, it appears that from 1891 to 1898, inclusive—that is, under the old system—the yearly average number of emigrants from Finland was 3,378. In 1899 the number was 12,357, in 1900 it was 10,642 and in 1901, 12,659. During the first two months of the current year no fewer than 5,057 Finns emigrated, and the volume is now greater than ever, owing to recent events in Finland. It is computed by those who have the means of knowing that by the end of this year at least 35,000 Finns will have emigrated within the twelve months. The number would probably be much larger but for the fact that the authorities refuse to allow young men to depart whose ages make them liable to military conscription.

In thus driving out the Finns the Russian empire is losing a considerable element of its best, most intelligent and orderly citizens. Many of them are coming to this country and settling in the northwest, where they are welcome as desirable additions to the population.

One of the marked tendencies of the times in juvenile literature, says an exchange, is the decrease in books written distinctively for girls. Of books for the young there is an ever increasing number, but the expansion is confined solely to boys' books or to volumes meant for both boys and girls. Stories of the "Robinson Crusoe" type are multiplying from year to year, while those of the "Little Women" type are becoming almost extinct. There are at least five books for boys to one for girls in every season's list. Yet girls probably do more reading than boys. The publishers explain this apparent discrimination against the girls by saying that they have better success with books meant for both sexes, that books for boys come next in demand and that volumes labeled as girls' literature are not good sellers. The truth is that the American girl spurns the tame and pambly stories usually written for her and would rather read her brother's books than her own. Stories of daring and adventure are more interesting to her than tales of meek and self-sacrificing misses who act sedately and die young. The American girl has as much red blood in her veins as the American boy.

It is reported that William Wald Astor is going to give his daughter $20,000,000 when she is married. William Waldor probably thinks that is about the right price for a good, serviceable duke.

Getting to Work on the Canal.

The promptness with which the president and his cabinet have taken up the preliminary work on the isthmian canal is gratifying to the American people. The president must determine the sufficiency of the title that can be conveyed to the United States by the Panama Canal company, a treaty must be negotiated with Colombia securing the necessary rights, and a technical commission must be appointed to carry on the actual work of construction.

As a first step it has been decided to refer the matter of title to the attorney general, it being purely a legal question. It is intimated that the attorney general will attempt to secure from the French government directly, through the chamber of deputies in all probability, some legislative declaration which shall have the force of law and effectually affirm the legality of the acquisition of the canal property by the United States. There is some reason to believe that, while no formal assurances have passed, the French government has managed to let it be known to the president that it is willing to do everything necessary to quiet the question of title.

Assuming that sufficient title can be secured, the next step will be the negotiation of a treaty with Colombia, and there seem to be no obstacles in the way. The Colombians are apparently anxious that the canal shall be built through their territory. A Colon paper, in urging prompt action on the part of the government, says:

In view of the activity of the staunch supporters of the Nicaragua canal project, who have hitherto left nothing undone to effect the defeat of the Panama measure, it becomes our bounden duty to urge the national government not to procrastinate, but to proceed with as little delay as possible to pass the necessary legislation so that the president of the United States may put the law in execution by beginning the construction of a Panama canal without delay.

If, however, an unclouded title cannot be secured from France and the Colombians are disinclined to grant the necessary territory and rights promptly and upon satisfactory terms, we still have the Nicaragua route, the territory and rights for which the Nicaragua government has already tendered to the United States. Ultimately that may be the route chosen, and the American people will be just as well satisfied.

Wise Provision of Irrigation Law.

An important and judicious feature of the new irrigation law is the provision made for limiting the sale of lands to bona fide settlers and the provision that not more than 100 acres shall go to any one person in one tract. This opens the way to the home seekers of the crowded eastern cities and gives assurance that no large tracts of the public domain will come into possession of one man or one corporation.

Aside from the ultimate reclamation of a vast empire, embracing 75,000,000 acres of arid and semiarid lands, now practically a barren waste, the enlistment of national aid on a scale of great magnitude has a wide reaching commercial interest that concerns all sections of the country. It was this commercial interest that prevailed against the opponents of the measure, who maintained that it would seriously affect present farm values and that it was "unfair to the farmers of other states." These assailants of the bill took no account of the vast market for machinery and manufactured products of the south, east and middle west that would be opened by the settlement of 75,000,000 acres that are now unoccupied.

As the law provides that only a comparatively small area is to be reclaimed each year, there would seem to be no danger that these lands will be opened to settlement and cultivation faster than the development of the nation's resources would require, while it opens the way for vast future possibilities.

The city authorities of Chicago have passed an ordinance prohibiting the cruel sport of shooting trapped birds within the city limits. The state of Illinois should follow the lead of Chicago and enact a law to stop the brutal and debasing pastime within the commonwealth. The state of New York some time ago enacted such a law, and it is gratifying to note that public sentiment is becoming aroused on this matter throughout the country generally.

It is reported that panama hats are going out of style owing to the fact that it is becoming impossible to tell them from the imitations. These are sad days for the man who has money enough to afford the real thing.

Poor little Alfonso! He is not even permitted to pick out a girl to suit him for a wife and do his own sparking. What's the fun in being a king anyway?

It is intimated that even if the Louisiana Purchase exposition should be closed on Sundays St. Louis will be open enough for all practical purposes.

It is now proper to congratulate all parents whose children have survived the fireworks.

And did we sink the Spanish fleet, too, by request, just to satisfy Castilian honor?

The Work of Congress.

The first session of the Fifty-seventh congress, which ended a few days ago, in many respects was the most remarkable in recent years—remarkable for what it left undone as well as for the acts which it passed. It was notable also for the fierceness of party debates and for a number of discreditable exhibitions of party rancor. Not since the Fifty-first congress has party feeling been at so high a pitch, and even the stormy sessions which characterized that congress have been eclipsed in many of the debates.

Unquestionably the most important and popular legislation of this session was the authorization of the isthmian waterway, which has been talked of for more than half a century, thus giving assurance that the dream of engineers and navigators and the desire of the American people will be realized in good time.

Another measure of far-reaching importance passed at this session was the irrigation bill, which will ultimately reclaim and make fertile approximately 75,000,000 acres of arid and semiarid land of the public domain.

The measure over which both houses of this session of congress battled most fiercely was the Philippines government bill. Seemingly the measure did not have as much importance as the debates upon it would make it appear. The bill as passed substantially continues the present methods of government in the islands, with some extensions of powers. The two houses were unable to agree as to currency provisions and finally struck that matter from the bill, leaving that feature of the administration of Philippine affairs still unsettled.

Some measures of importance which passed one house or the other failed to receive the approval of both houses and remain for future consideration. Among these were the Cuban reciprocity bill, which was strongly urged by the president and his advisers and over which a hard preliminary battle was fought; the shipping bill, which was a relic from the last congress; the omnibus statehood bill, providing for the admission to the Union of the territories of Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico; measures for the regulation of immigration and the suppression of anarchy and the protection of the lives of high officials from anarchistic attacks.

While abolishing special war revenue taxes, which, it is estimated, will reduce the nation's annual income $70,000,000, this session of congress has been extremely liberal in the matter of public improvements. It passed a river and harbor bill carrying in actual cash appropriations and authorizations of contracts for great works $70,000,000 to be expended to improve the waterways and harbors of commerce. In addition to this, provision was made for public buildings in 187 cities of the country to cost when completed $20,000,000.

The total appropriations for the session were, according to the statement made by Chairman Allison of the senate committee on appropriations, as follows:

Agriculture	$5,208,960
Army	91,530,136
Diplomatic and consular	1,967,925
District of Columbia	8,847,526
Fortifications	7,288,955
Indians	9,143,902
Legislative, etc.	25,298,361
Military academy	2,627,324
Navy	78,678,963
Pension	129,842,239
Postoffice	138,486,598
River and harbor (exclusive of contracts authorized)	26,726,442
Sundry civil	60,125,359
Deficiencies	28,039,911
Miscellaneous	2,600,000
Isthmian canal	50,130,000
Permanent annual appropriations	123,921,220
Grand total	$800,193,537

The total last year was $730,338,575, an increase of about $70,000,000. It costs an enormous sum of money to run this great country, but the American people, who foot the bills, are not inclined to find much fault with large appropriations if the money is wisely and judiciously spent in the legitimate expenses of government or in expenditures which add to the greatness and glory of the nation.

Mme. Cambon, the wife of the French minister, remarks that the style of dress of American women shows greater skill and taste than that of the Parisians. Mme. Cambon seems to be even more tactful than her distinguished husband, who ranks as one of the greatest diplomatists at our national capital.

There is a current impression that the prompt acceptance by the house of representatives of the Panama canal route and its approval by the president are something in the nature of a joke on certain gentlemen.

The Haitians, having expelled President Simon Sam, are now engaged in trying to expel each other. It is not likely that there will be permanent peace in the country until they succeed.

Visitors to the grave of the most famous violin maker of Cremona are said to experience a peculiar sensation. Possibly it is one of gratitude that he made so few of them.

Lord Kitchener is on his way home, ready to sign with the management for any other war where his services are required.

Same Old Ailment.
A man never realizes, until he becomes the victim of an affliction, let it be measles, mumps or rheumatism, how many kind hearted people there are in the community who are willing, yea anxious, to furnish a balm of gilead for his ills. It is the opinion of the writer that at some time in the years of long ago, this section suffered of an epidemic of what is now known as rheumatism. The reason for this opinion is in the fact that so many of our citizens know just what will prove a sure cure for that ailment.

We had an attack of the disease of late and while its ravages have not added to our military bearing or angelic disposition, we live. Still we have no hesitancy in announcing that we would rather be a stiffened, physical wreck than an object lesson for some of the remedies offered by kind and considerate friends and tender hearted enemies.

The water cure prescribed by the war department for natives of our new possessions in the orient, is said, by those who have taken it for the purposes of "benovolent assimilation," to be a pretty tough treatment, but we will wager our chances of going to paradise against a Billy Bryan dollar, that the water cure is a homeopathic remedy compared with some of the prescriptions recommended to us and warranted a "sure and speedy cure" for rheumatism.

Will Loco, when asked the meaning of the term rheumatism, said: "The medical definition I cannot recall just now, but have a touch of the ailment and you'll call it hell." That is a short definition, and after ten days experience we add our testimony to that of Mr. Loco. There is not the least doubt about the statement "that the majority of remedies offered are more to be feared than the disease." Of course we don't like to accuse anyone of attempting to hurry our departure to that country set apart for printers and newspaper men, but the circumstances point that way. Had we believed what our advisers—spiritual and medical—told us we would now be beyond the reach of book agents and advertising (?) friends.

A creditor, who holds a pecuniary interest in our welfare, sent the following prescription, and it accomplished much in the way of relief and also caused us to forget that once we was at the head of a class in Sunday school: Sig.—Apply linseed poultice and after the flesh is nicely broiled, apply generous quantities of kerosene oil filtered through cayenne pepper.

There are remedies of a more cooling nature no doubt, but this attracts your attention from the rheumatism

UNIONS TO FIGHT MINERS' BATTLE

Sufficient Funds to Be Supplied to Furnish Food and Clothing.

ORGANIZED LABOR IN FRONT

Will Stand by the Anthracite Strikers in the Interest of Unionism if Workers in the Bituminous Field Are Not Disturbed.

Organized labor has offered to furnish financial assistance to the anthracite miners as long as they keep up the strike. The offer was the result of a conference of labor leaders held in New York. Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor pledged his support.

The plan is contingent upon the miners' convention at Indianapolis voting down the motion for a general strike of all miners, and will not take effect until the resources of the anthracite miners are exhausted.

The scheme, in brief, contemplates the concentration of the energy and resources of organized labor in behalf of the miners, a result which has never before been achieved. It involves the raising of a given amount of money each week, with which provisions and other necessities of life will be purchased. The plan will be submitted to the federation of labor for indorsement at its session at San Francisco.

Outline of the Plan. Public men throughout the United States will also undertake an independent movement and solicit subscriptions from those not connected with labor organizations. This movement will be inaugurated in New York and the labor organizations and sympathizers in all the principal cities of the country will appoint solicitors.

President Mitchell reached Wilkes-Barre from New York and immediately held a long conference with Harry White, secretary of the United Garment Workers' union. At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. White, in his capacity as a member of the executive board of the American Federation of Labor, announced the plans of union labor for aiding the miners.

"The scheme in brief," said Mr. White, "contemplates the concentration of all organized labor in behalf of the miners' cause. President Mitchell wants it understood that the relief tendered will only be accepted as a provision for an emergency should the strike be prolonged. At present the miners are in good shape."

Mr. White, in discussing the offer, said that the unions realized it would be a severe blow to unionism if the anthracite miners are defeated, while the benefit to unionism in general, which the support and winning of this strike would be, is great. He issued the following statement after his conference with President Mitchell:

"I have been delegated by the various important labor organizations of the country to present to Mr. Mitchell a plan by which the strikers in the anthracite region could definitely continue their fight against the operators who wished to wreck their organization. I told Mr. Mitchell according to my instructions that organized labor in this country was ready and willing to raise an enormous sum for the support of the miners. He welcomed the offer and said that in case the strike be prolonged and the necessity for the acceptance of this offer became apparent he would call upon us for aid."

MAY SETTLE STRIKE.

Senator Hanna Endeavoring to Secure an Early Settlement.

Congressman Patterson of the Pottsville (Pa.) district states that he was in conference with Senator Hanna regarding the settlement of the strike of the anthracite coal miners. Hanna told Patterson that negotiations were in progress that would possibly lead to an early settlement of the difficulty. As his congressional district is composed largely of anthracite miners Patterson asked for some assurance that the settlement would not be derogatory to the interests of the miners. Senator Hanna gave him to understand that the terms would be highly satisfactory to the Union Mine Workers.

The average size was 62.6 acres. The total acreage increased in the last ten years 3.8 per cent and the total valuation of farm property 22 per cent.

OWNS TAME RHINOCEROS.

Wife of Governor of British Province Has Peculiar Pet.

Not many women have owned more strenuous pets than the baby rhinoceros which amuses Mrs. Cook, wife of the governor of North Borneo, a British possession. The governor's house is near a jungle which is filled with wild animals. Out of this tangle of undergrowth a baby rhinoceros strayed one morning to frolic in a cumbersome fashion on the lawn which surrounds the house. Native servants captured him without much difficulty and when they had tamed him presented him to Mrs. Cook. At first it was a problem on what and how to feed the youngster. Cow's milk and an improvised milking bottle were the solution. Sixteen quarts of milk a day was the amount the hungry baby usually demanded and on it he has thrived and grown fat. If it were not for his single horn one might take him for a peculiar species of hog. He is about the same size and covered with a shaggy coat of black hair. Mrs. Cook completed the taming process begun by her servants and the baby rhinoceros now follows her about like a dog.

LIVING, HE BUILDS HIS TOMB.

Rear Admiral Melville Erects Structure in Arlington Cemetery.

Rear Admiral George Wallace Melville, who has caused much comment by putting up a tomb, with an epitaph, for his future use in Arlington cemetery, with the date of death left blank, is a long way from filling his sarcophagus, if energy and usefulness are any indication. The admiral was born in New York in 1841, and studied at the Polytechnic institute in Brooklyn. He subsequently entered the navy as an engineer and won some fame by his part in the Jeannette expedition of 1879. Admiral Melville is the inventor of several devices in ship building.

Famous London Clergyman. One of the best beloved clergymen in London was Father Dolling, who died recently. His work was almost entirely among the very poor, to whom his constant advice was: "Feed well, smoke well, drink little and you will work well and live contentedly." His stipend was about $1,000 a year, but the annual cost of his missions was something like twenty times as much and he maintained a staff of a score of co-workers. He raised all the money by his own exertions—begging, he used to call it bluntly—and every penny he got he spent in his own parish.

Couldn't Stand for Yukon.

Congressman Landis was praising Gen. Funston for the latter's services in the Orient and spoke of his gallantry in swimming a Philippine river. "Besides," he added, "the general once swam the Yukon river in Alaska." "Nonsense," said Representative Sulzer, "the Yukon is too cold for such a trip. Why, the natives have a saying about that river, 'Overboard, dead,' and that about settles it."

ANARCHY LIKELY TO BE CUBA'S LOT

General Fitzhugh Lee Says Relief Must Be Afforded the Islanders.

NEGROES SHOW DISCONTENT

Maceo and His Followers Have Been Entirely Ignored by the New Government and Their Unrest May Cause Disturbances.

Washington special: Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, consul general at Havana before the Spanish war, who was in Washington, made this statement: "I can see nothing ahead in Cuba but anarchy unless some relief is afforded by the United States in the matter of the sale of Cuban products here. Should anarchy follow, the interference of the United States and the hoisting of the flag of America would be the only result."

"American merchants will not risk sending their goods to Cuba at present, with trouble threatening to break out in the island at any moment and the possibility of the merchandise being seized."

Discontent Prevails. "There is already a murmur of discontent among the negroes who rendered service in the war for Cuban independence. Maceo, who was himself a negro, was an important factor in this war, and so far as I can see he and his followers have been entirely ignored by the new Cuban government."

"All the revenues of the island come from customs, there being no direct taxation. During the occupancy by American forces these receipts were very large, but now that Cuba is obliged to shift for herself, very few goods are imported and the customs derived have dropped materially."

"A reasonable reciprocity with the United States, such as President Roosevelt has urged, is the only thing that can bring Cuba immediate relief. Unless this is granted annexation is sure to come."

The Stambaughs testified that the accused persuaded them that their profiles were seen in a near-by mountain with needles stuck through their brains. These, they said, were getting rusty, and the lives of their living counterparts could only be saved by money offered before the needles broke.

Many trips were made to Mrs. McBride and large sums of money paid, with provision for its return by the disclosure of a hidden treasure.

The efforts of the impoverished Stambaughs to raise money to pay the witch doctors gave their record publicity. Mrs. McBride and Zug were held for court.

No one saw the accident except at a distance too great to afford assistance.

He recently resigned his charge because of ill health, and is believed to have been mentally affected. He came here from Mobile, Ala., a year ago, having been in the ministry twenty-five years. # TRIES TO MURDER WHOLE FAMILY

Drink-Crazed Man Kills His Wife and Babe and Shoots His Stepdaughter.

ALL WERE ASLEEP AT THE TIME

Murderer Crept into the Bedroom and Fired at Them—Escape of Wounded Girl Causes Him to Hunt for Two Boys, Who Get Away.

Chicago special: Crazed with liquor, Theodore Oelfeuer, a glass polisher, crept into the bedroom where his family were asleep Sunday morning, shot his wife dead, mortally wounded his 14-months-old child, and sent a bullet through the shoulder of his stepdaughter, Lizzie Stramm. Turning to the dining-room, he fired a shot at his little stepsons, but the bullet went wide of its mark. Oelfeuer then fortified himself in the garret, where he was captured by the police.

Oelfeuer had often threatened to take the lives of his wife and children. They have been in fear of him for months, but were taken unawares yesterday.

The three victims were sound asleep in Mrs. Oelfeuer's bedroom when the murderer's work began. Walter, the babe, was lying between the mother and daughter. Oelfeuer crept quietly into the room. He carried a revolver in his hand and another in his hip pocket. Without a word of warning, he started to shoot.

Shoots to Kill.

The first shot struck Mrs. Oelfeuer in the left side of the neck. Her screams awakened her baby and daughter, but before the mother could utter an appeal another bullet pierced her side directly above the heart. She died almost instantly. Oelfeuer then fired two more shots, one of which buried itself in the abdomen of the sleeping baby. The other struck the daughter in the shoulder as she rushed from the room and jumped through the window to the alley. Before she had gone fifty feet she fell to the ground.

The sight of blood and the escape of his stepdaughter only seemed to irritate the man, and he ran into the dining-room where he found John Stramm, 8 years old, and Ernest Stramm, 12 years old, his two stepsons, cowering in a corner. He sent the last bullet in their direction, but missed his aim. The boys separated, John escaping through the window and Ernest through the door.

Threatens a Neighbor.

With the smoking revolver still in his hand, Oelfeuer ran to the rear of the house. As he ascended the stairs he was met by Timothy Dolon, who lives on the second floor of the building. Dolon tried to stop him, but the murderer pointed his weapon at him and ran to the garret on the fourth floor.

In the meantime the neighborhood had been aroused and hundreds of persons filled the street when the police arrived. Policeman Nihill of the Canalport avenue station made his way to the garret, where he found Oelfeuer hiding behind the chimney. He snapped the revolver as the policeman approached, but the last cartridge had been spent. With one blow the policeman disarmed the man. He found another revolver, loaded, in Oelfeuer's hip pocket.

There was great excitement in the crowd of angry men and women which had gathered in the street. As they caught sight of the prisoner they made a rush for him, threatening to lynch him. The prisoner was hurried through the crowd to the station, a block away.

Villiers, Earl of Clarendon, is the fifth of his title, so that it would appear that William Waldorf Astor's son aims at a high social mark. Lady Edith's mother is the daughter of the third Earl of Northampton.

WIND STORM IN WISCONSIN

Farm Houses, Barns and Other Buildings Suffer Severe Damage.

FIVE INCHES OF RAIN IN IOWA

Webster City is Flooded, Boatmen Taking Occupants from Second-Story Windows—Bridges Washed Away and Crops are Ruined.

A terrific wind storm swept across the southern part of Wisconsin, sweeping through Janesville, Beloit, Pewaukee, Menominee Falls, Granville, and North Milwaukee, doing damage everywhere to crops, farmhouses, barns, and other outbuildings. The storm lashed Pewaukee lake furiously, and, as a large number of boats were out, it is believed some fatalities may have occurred there.

At Beloit a large number of out-houses were blown down and a number of roofs damaged. At Janesville St. Patrick's church was struck by lightning, the damage not being reported. At Pewaukee trees, barns, and several outbuildings were blown down, the bowling alley and large tents at Waukesha beach being demolished.

On Pewaukee lake a couple in a rowboat were blown across the lake, making their way safely to shore, through the shallow water. The last boat from across the lake was the Waukesha, and this reported large quantities of driftwood on the lake, with one sailboat with a party reported missing.

At North Milwaukee the damage amounted to above $7,000, the sheds of the Wausau lumber company being blown down, and about one-third of the stock of lumber being scattered to unknown parts.

Two barns were lifted from their foundations and blown nearly a block, one barn with six horses being carried that distance, with no injury to the horses.

FLOODS IN IOWA.

Nearly Five Inches of Rain Falls at Webster City.

A fall of rain amounting to 4.75 inches fell in Webster City, Iowa. The eastern part of the city is all under water. The rise was so sudden that no household goods were saved. Boat crews saved household effects in the upper stories. Thirty wagon bridges are out. A mile of the Northwestern's main line of track is threatened with a washout. The rain has practically made the corn crop a failure in Hamilton county. Small grains may yet yield half a crop.

Hailstorms in Nebraska.

Reports from Nebraska show that heavy rains have done much damage to wheat in the shock and oats. Hail storms devastating small streaks of country are reported from the vicinities of York, Geneva, Blue Hill, Grand Island, Elm Creek, Hastings, and Harvard. The Nemaha river is out of its banks, and all lowlands in the eastern part of the state have been flooded. Wheat in some localities has begun to sprout in the shock.

Rain in Kansas.

A heavy rain, amounting at Anthony almost to a cloudburst, fell over ten counties in central Kansas. It will delay harvest.

HAVANA'S AMERICAN COLONY

Elaborate Celebration of Independence Day at Cuban Capital.

Havana cable: The American colony in Havana celebrated Independence day more elaborately than it was ever celebrated here before. The colony has been greatly reduced by the withdrawal of the representatives of the United States government from the island, but those who remain joined in making it a day worthy of the great event of which it is the 126th anniversary.

OHIO CHIEF JUSTICE IS DEAD

Marshall J. Williams Passes Away at His Home in Columbus.

Chief Justice Marshall J. Williams of the Ohio Supreme court died at his home in Columbus of diabetes, aged 65 years. He was four times elected to the supreme bench, having served in all about sixteen years. He recently declined a renomination on account of failing health. Prior to his election to the supreme bench he served two terms as circuit judge.

WORTHY OF J. P. MORGAN.

Boy Exhibits Qualities Which Stamp Him as a Coming Financier.

He was only a small boy, but in the eight years of his existence he'd learned to be terribly mean.

"I'll give you this nice big apple," he said one day to a pretty little damsel of his own age, "if you'll let me kiss you twenty times with your eyes shut."

She was a shy and modest little girl, but the apple was a temptation, and she succumbed.

"Mind," said the boy, "if you open your eyes you don't get the apple." The apple-bought maiden closed her eyes.

"Smack! That's one," said the boy. An interval followed. "Smack!" Another interval. "Smack!"

"Willie is making them last out," thought the girl.

At last the twentieth kiss was given.

"That's twenty; may I open my eyes, Willie?" asked the little lady.

"I'm not Willie," replied the boy who'd just given her a full-sized smack.

"Willie's down the street, selling your kisses at two apples a time. You'd best not open your eyes yet, as he's taken in a heap of apples and the next six boys are awful ugly."

At last the twentieth kiss was given.

"That's twenty; may I open my eyes, Willie?" asked the little lady.

"I'm not Willie," replied the boy who'd just given her a full-sized smack.

"Willie's down the street, selling your kisses at two apples a time. You'd best not open your eyes yet, as he's taken in a heap of apples and the next six boys are awful ugly."

Saved the Daby.

New Providence, Iowa, July 7th.—Little Helen Moon, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Moon of this place, had a narrow escape from death.

Her mother noticed she seemed to be very clumsy and complained when she was rocked. Her limbs and face were bloated badly.

A doctor was summoned but she got no better. He said she had Kidney Trouble in the worst form.

Two other doctors were called in and they agreed that there was very little, if any, hope. She was bloated all over, her eyes being completely closed and her abdomen bloated until it was purple.

They bought six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and she commenced to improve at once. She had used nine boxes before the Dropsy was all gone. The treatment was continued and now she is as well as ever.

Dodd's Kidney Pills certainly saved the little one's life.

Concerning the Number Seven.

Numerous are the queer beliefs concerning the number seven, says the St. James Gazette. From the very earliest ages the seven great planets were known and ruled this world, and the dwellers in it, and their number entered into every conceivable matter that concerned man. There are seven days in the week, "seven holes in the head, for the master stars are seven," seven ages for both man and the world in which he lives. There are seven material heavens. There are seven colors in the spectrum, and seven notes in the diatonic octave, and the "leading" note of the scale is the seventh. Be it noted that the seventh son is not always gifted with beneficent powers. In Portugal he is believed to be subject to the powers of darkness and to be compelled every Saturday evening to assume the likeness of an ass.

Home-seekers' Tickets to the West.

Home-seekers can buy excursion tickets via the Great Northern Railway to points in Manitoba, Montana, Washington and the West, at about one fare for the round trip, on first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October. Tickets and information from all Railway Ticket Agents, or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul.

Essay on Animals.

Congressman Lacey of Iowa has contributed to the Congressional Record an essay in which he says: "The buffalo was the noblest of all the wild animals that inhabited this country when America was discovered. He was a gentleman among beasts, just as the game hog is a beast among gentlemen."

White Slates.

It is the opinion of a German oculist that the use of ordinary slates by school children tends to produce short-sightedness. As a substitute he recommends pen and ink, or an artificial white slate with black pencil. The latter have been introduced in some of the German schools.

Home-seekers' Excursions.

Great Northern Railway sells home-seekers' tickets, St. Paul or Minneapolis, to all points West, including Montana and Washington, on the first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October, 1902. Rate, one fare for the round trip. Information from all ticket agents, or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul.

DELIGHTFUL EASTERN TRIPS.

The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Ry. has just issued a new summer book, "Lake Shore Tours," showing a selected list of eastern resorts, with routes and rates. Copy will be sent on application to C. F. Daly, Chief A. G. P. A., Chicago.

The average person who picks up a railroad time folder does not realize the enormous amount of work which the preparation of such a publication involves.

The big Burlington System, for instance, has a general time folder made up from sixteen different division operating time tables. The folder contains 2,000 names of towns, gives the schedules of over 500 trains, and whenever there is a change in time, sixty thousand figures have to be carefully checked and corrected.

Stockholm has practically one telephone for every ten inhabitants.

Too Energetic with His Pen.

There used to be a picturesque North Carolina mountaineer named Wiley Shook, in the capitol, says the Washington Post. He was a doorkeeper, or something of the kind, and his quaint sayings and his blue shirt made him quite famous. One day he wrote a long letter to a newspaper, in which he scored President McKinley rather severely on the civil service question. The letter was so clever, that it attracted wide attention. "Who is Wiley Shook?" asked the president, speaking to Senator Pritchard. "He is a constituent of mine who works at the capitol," said the senator. "Well," said the president, "if any friend of mine attacked you, I wouldn't keep him near me." Senator Pritchard needed no further hint and Shook was literally shaken. He went back to North Carolina, where he became a deputy collector. He is now in trouble again, for he has written a letter personally attacking Senator Simmons, and the latter has demanded his scalp. Mr. Shook seems to be entirely too energetic with his pen.

Studio in a Tree Trunk.

In Golden Gate park, in San Francisco, Cal., is the trunk of a gigantic tree, which is being put into the very odd use of a sculptor's studio. It offers plenty of room for stands, models, mounds of clay, and spectators, for the immense tree butt has been hollowed out till it forms a room a little over thirty-five feet across. The outside diameter of the trunk is thirty-eight feet nine inches. When standing in its native glory the tree was over 325 feet high. Its trunk is now a relic of the big Midwinter fair, held in Golden Gate park in 1893.

Round Trip Home-seekers' Excursions to the West.

Information from all ticket agents, or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul.

Heat From Cold Water.

Heat from cold water seems fabulous, but it is an established fact. The water is decomposed by electricity into its constituent gases, hydrogen and oxygen. When these gases are reunited the act of combination causes the evolution of intense heat. The well-known limelight is an example of this.

BARBER WAS ON EASY STREET.

But He Failed to Reassure the Nervous Customer.

William De Long, Commissioner Dougherty's right-hand man in the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, tells this:

"There used to be a Dutch barber who kept a place in the city here. He had an assistant who was just about as Dutch as the boss, but the assistant thought the boss about the meanest man on earth. Every time he got a customer in the chair he would tell him all about the boss. One day he had a man all fixed, face lathered, and head laid back. Then he began his tale of woe as he stropped the razor:

"Mine poss iss der meanest man. He charches me 10 cents if I cud a man and a quarter if I gash him."

"The assistant went on stropping and the man in the chair was beginning to get uneasy, for it seemed to be a settled thing that every customer would have something happen to him. He waited in silence. Presently the assistant resumed:

"'Pud I don't care to-day."

"'Why?' inquired the customer.

"'Cause I vun fife dollars on der races yesterday and I mide as vell spend id dat vay as any odder.'

"The customer suddenly remembered that he had to catch a train."

Of the United States Treasury Recommends Pe-ru-na.

The Women Also Recommend Pe-ru-na.

Miss Blanch Grey, 174 Alabama street, Memphis, Tenn., a society woman of Memphis, writes:

"To a society woman whose nervous force is often taxed to the utmost from lack of rest and irregular meals I know of nothing which is of so much benefit as Pe-ru-na. I took it a few months ago when I felt my strength giving away, and it soon made itself manifest in giving me new strength and health."—Miss Blanch Grey, seventh Mrs. X. Schneider, 2409 Thirty-seventh Place, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"After taking several remedies without result, I began last year to take your valuable remedy, Pe-ru-na. I was a complete wreck. Had palpitation of the heart, cold hands and feet, female weakness, no appetite, trembling, sinking feeling nearly all the time. You said I was suffering from systemic catarrh, and I believe that I received your help in the nick of time. I followed your directions carefully and can say to-day that I am well again. I cannot thank you enough for my cure."

Pe-ru-na cures catarrh wherever located. Pe-ru-na is not a guess nor an experiment—it is an absolute scientific certainty. Pe-ru-na has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Pe-ru-na.

A free book written by Dr. Hartman on the subject of catarrh in its different phases and stages, will be sent free to any address by the Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Catarrh is a systemic disease curable only by systemic treatment. A remedy that cures catarrh must aim directly at the depressed nerve centers. This is what Pe-ru-na does.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-ru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

DR. LLEWELLYN JORDAN, Medical Examiner of the U. S. Treasury Department, graduate of Columbia College, and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Pe-ru-na:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short month has brought forth a vast change and I now consider myself a well man after months of suffering. Fellow sufferers, Pe-ru-na will cure you."

Pe-ru-na immediately invigorates the nerve-centers which give vitality to the mucous membranes. Then catarrh disappears. Then catarrh is permanently cured.

Edward W. Stees of Chicago was in town Tuesday but he didn't have that promised railroad with him, and what he knows about the future of the proposed line he kept to himself. Mr. Stees has the franchise for the road and can build when he gets ready.

The big drain pipes on Washington street between Ela and Williams street are being lowered. M. C. McIntosh will have constructed a lateral drain to connect his block of property on the east side of Ela street with the Washington street drainage system.

A quarter of a million dollars will be expended in enlarging the Elgin Watch Co's plant and the force will be increased to 4,000. This, the greatest institution of its kind in the country, at one time asked for a location in this village. The people were opposed to in any way favoring manufacturing industries to locate here. The same spirit of opposition to advancement exists today. The watch factory made Elgin a city of 25,000 inhabitants. It would have accomplished as much for Barrington.

Rev. F. N. Lapham of the Wauconda M. E. church, and Rev. Tuttle of this village, will exchange pulpits Sunday, July 13. All the regular services will be held that day to which the public is invited. Rev. Tuttle expects to preach in his own church Sunday morning, July 20.

Many of our readers will learn with regret of the death of Rev. A. Hirst, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Omaha, Nebraska, and for five years the popular pastor of Centenary Methodist church, Chicago. Rev. Hirst was an eloquent preacher and a steadfast friend of humanity.

The executive committee of the Lake County Soldiers' and Sailors' Reunion association, will meet at G. A. R. hall, Waukegan, tomorrow, July 12, at one o'clock, for the purpose of selecting date and place for the annual reunion. Comrades and others interested are invited to attend the meeting.

A prominent person tells a story of a mother who won a silver trophy at a euchre party; on displaying the same to the family the next morning, her son, a lad in his teens, confidently told her that he had done better than that by winning ten dollars at the pool table the night before. She could not condemn the lad, but it taught her a lesson not soon forgotten.

A sidewalk is to be constructed on the south side of Liberty street from Williams to Ela street if the orders of the village board are carried out. If, however, the property owners do not pay more attention to the request to build that walk than others have paid to notices sent out by the board to repair defective walks, that side of Liberty street will be barren of a sidewalk for years to come.

Bookkeepers in the general offices of the Chicago & Northwestern line at Chicago, left their desks Monday and were given a taste of actual labor at trucking freight at the warehouses. Station agents and section men from all along the several divisions, within 75 miles of Chicago, were called in to take the place of striking freight handlers. These employees were not working for the scale of wages offered to the strikers, and of course could not appreciate the striker's position.

The Forty-third annual camp meeting of the Chicago districts opens at Des Plaines, Monday, July 16. Nothing in Chicago Methodist circles is of more interest than this annual event which attracts members of that faith from all sections of the west. There are many people now encamped on the old historic grounds and it is predicted that the attendance this year will be the largest in the history of the association. Eminent divines from all parts of the country will be present.

The Wauconda Leader is an advocate of the temperance cause but it carries the following display ad. We omit the proprietor's name because we never solicit or give space to any ad of the kind: "Buffet. John Sharres and Frank Keppler Booze clerks. The headquarters Lake and McHenry Co's people. Chicago." The ad is out of the ordinary, and it is safe to bet that the people of Lake and McHenry counties do not make a buffet headquarters while in Chicago.

The manager of a Chicago factory in which all the labor laws are violated and men are forced to work for boy's wages declares that the company "conducts its business on business principles," and that the inability of a workman to support a family on the wages paid is "no concern of the company's." The employer who holds that it is no concern of his whether the men who produce wealth for him live like human beings or die like starved dogs is as foolish as he is heartless, and his day of trouble is not far away.

Senator Mason has opened his headquarters in Chicago and is preparing to open his senatorial campaign which he says "will open the eyes of the people of Illinois to the unscrupulous tactics employed by the Lorimer-Hopkins machine." In other words the senator will tell how the machine run over him. He has constructed a new and improved "machine" of his own. It looks as though William was leading a forlorn hope, but as there is nothing certain in politics he may, in a measure, dam the tide now flowing in the direction of the Aurora candidate.

Beginning Sunday matinee, July 13, and all the week the Ferris Wheel Park will have another strong vaudeville bill. The program will be headed by Sharp and Flat comedy musical act. Ferguson & Mack, Joe Mathews, Hedrix and Prescott refined singing and dancing; Harvey & Moore introducing parodies and comic conversations; Jas. R. Douglas, the peerless baritone. Orva W. Nichols, fancy and trick cyclist. The attendance at the Ferris Wheel Park has been large and the weather in its favor the business from now on will improve. The wheel is free week-day afternoons and Capt. Bogardus gives free instructions in rifle shooting to ladies in the afternoon. Manager Max Godenrath was nothing but smiles on the 4th of July, as it was a record-breaker on that day.

Miss Netta Lombard chaperoned Misses Glydys Lines, Mamie Morrison, Florence Peck and Grace Young on a visit to Chicago Wednesday. There the party was joined by Misses Helen Waller and Cora Jahnke, and enjoyed a part of the day at Miss Waller's home, the weather preventing an intended outing in Lincoln Park.

Surprised by Her Associates.

Thursday, July 10, 1902, will be remembered by Miss Jeannette Thorp as one of the pleasant dates in her young life. It was the occasion of her 14th birthday, and a number of her associates repaired, early in the evening, to the handsome and hospitable home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Thorp, and surprised, or at least thought they surprised, Miss Jeannette, and presented her with tokens of remembrance.

The young folks enjoyed themselves to the limit and indulged in tempting refreshments, the pretty little lady in whose honor the party was given, leaving nothing undone which would add to the enjoyment of the company.

Miss Jeannette is one of our popular, beloved little ladies, and all, old and young, wish for her many happy returns of the day. Those present were,

Early Closing.

For some time the question of the early closing of places of business during the heated term, has been agitated by the merchants of this village. The matter has received encouragement from a majority of the business men, and it is said that beginning next week the stores, with perhaps one or two exceptions, will close at 6:30 p. m., Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. The early closing movement has been adopted in surrounding towns and met the approval of the people. It is a move in the right direction.

Missed an Opportunity.

A brighter, more perfect day for a celebration never dawned than July 4th, 1902. The weather was the kind necessary to make glad the heart of the patriotic citizen and cause dollars to roll into the coffers of the proprietors of refreshment stands. Many people started out early and remained out late. They came to Barrington to find that the much talked of celebration had been sidetracked on "account of the weather." Our own people could not explain the situation—like the visitors they had been hoaxed.

That the people were greatly disappointed is well known. That the promoters made a mistake and missed an opportunity to advertise the village and keep faith with the people is the opinion of everybody.

The Highwood Independent makes announcement that "I will issue the Highland Park Herald next week. It will be laid on the reading table of the prominent families soon, etc." Highland Park is a pretty nice little city. Why the people there should suffer an affliction of this kind is a mystery. The individual known as "I" has a peculiar idea of what a newspaper should contain. His Highwood production is the worst specimen of typographical work ever inflicted on the people of Lake county, and is devoted to advertisements of sample rooms and laudation of "I," and that is all.

A Warning to Parents.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the village of Barrington held July 7th, 1902, the following was unanimously adopted and ordered published:

That whereas complaint has been made because of the destruction of song and other birds by boys with air, spring and other guns, and

WHEREAS, the same is in violation of the statute of Illinois, and an ordinance against shooting inside the corporate limits of said village of Barrington, therefore be it

Resolved, That upon and after the publication of this resolution that any boy or boys, person or persons, who are found shooting or attempting to shoot birds or for any reason, shooting any air, spring or other gun within the corporate limits of said village, that they be dealt with according to law, and the village marshal is hereby instructed to keep close lookout for any and all violators.

Dated at Barrington, Ill., this 10th day of July, A. D. 1902.

L. H. BENNETT, Village Clerk.

Announcement.

I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of county superintendent of schools, subject to the decision of the republican county convention.

DROWNED IN BANGS LAKE.

Paul Weis of Chicago the Victim of an Accident at Wauconda.

Our neighboring village Wauconda was the scene of a sad accident last Saturday forenoon, which resulted in the drowning of Paul Weis, of Chicago, a young man 21 years of age, and the narrow escape from the same fate of his brother Charles, 17 years old. Our correspondent at Wauconda furnishes the following particulars of the accident.

Paul and Charles Weis of Chicago were enjoying a short vacation in this village. Early on Saturday the secured a boat and rowed across the lake in tent upon capturing a string of fish. They dropped anchor in about 7 feet of water. In moving about the boat was tipped to one side and partially filled with water. The young men both stepped to the bow of the boat when it sunk in an instant.

Messrs. Joy and Grosvenor of Chicago, accompanied by Misses Jennie Green and Laura Harrison, were fishing about 100 yards away when they heard the call for help and started for the spot where the boat went down. Mr. Joy leaped into the water, swam to the spot and caught the body of Charles Weis as it came to the surface and took it to shore. The form of Paul was not to be seen. Help was summoned and in a short time the body of Paul was recovered. Doctors and others tried all known remedies to revive life in Paul Weis; working for nearly three hours, but without avail. After half an hour's treatment Charles Weis was able to be removed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cook, where he is rapidly recovering.

The body of Paul Weis was removed to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Pratt, and given in charge of Undertaker Hughes. Coroner Taylor was notified and arrived early Sunday forenoon. An inquest was held and the jury returned a verdict of accidental death by drowning.

The remains were removed to Chicago Sunday evening.

An Advertisement
In a newspaper is what counts; it is constantly before the reader. A poster or circular, no matter how striking, is quickly scanned over and then thrown away. A newspaper is read over a dozen times.
