ADVANCE IN COAL

Dealers Announce That $10 Per Ton Will Probably be Asked.

If you have not contracted for your supply of coal for the coming winter you had better do so now for the good reason that the supply is short and the price steadily advancing. That $10 per ton will be the ruling price before November 1, is predicted by the dealers in that necessary article. At Elgin dealers are taking a few contracts for September delivery at $8 a ton, but they are not soliciting orders. The increase in price is one of the benefits handed down by the coal trust. How the laboring men of the country are going to purchase and pay for fuel to warm the family fireside during the coming winter is no concern to the coal barons.

The working classes thought their burden a heavy one when the price of provision was advanced to the present high figure, but not content the trust adds another weight to that burden. Is this prosperity or is it bondage?

Did the Creator of this earth—that portion of the universe which we are familiar with—intend its coal for the use and benefit of a few private persons? Or was it placed here for the entire human family? If every person was to answer, what would the reply be? Would it be that Morgan and other claimants owned all the coal mines and that the millions of people must buy their coal of them and pay their price? Or would it be that the millions of the earth's inhabitants held a prior claim to the coal mines because a bountiful Creator had placed coal here for their use? It was their birthright. The title of the human family to this coal was vested in and dated from the Creator. The people's birthright has never been sold or exchanged for a "mess of pottage" or any other consideration; and so the present claimants are usurpers. The latter has seized the people's coal lands and mines for their private and personal benefit; and as a consequence the people of the earth are deprived, robbed and plundered by those who claim coal mines and lands. The welfare of the masses stands first and above all private individual interests.

Private ownership and vested interests must always give way to the common ownership of the people. The right of eminent domain is the people's. It is as far above private ownership as the highest mountain peak is above the sea level. And just here is the people's power to destroy the coal trust. Let every state and territory in the United States take possession of every coal field and coal mine within its borders for the good of all the people under the right of eminent domain.

DEADLOCK UNBROKEN.

Democrats of Eighth Senatorial District Make No Choice.

Adjourned Sine Die and will Call New Primaries—473 Ballots Taken.

The most determined lot of delegates that ever composed a political convention in this, the eighth senatorial district, were the fifty elected at the democratic primaries held in Boone, Lake and McHenry counties last July, instructed with the duty of naming a minority representative for the district. It has been said there is no harmony among democrats. In this instance that has been disproved and it has also been made clear that boodle has played no part in the work of the delegates. The first convention was held at Harvard August 7, when McHenry county presented Wm. Desmond as its candidate, Boone presented the name of O'Connor and Lake that of McDermott. After 100 ballots had been taken and it was found that each county refused to disobey the instructions given—to vote first, last and all the time for its favorite—the convention was adjourned to August 14. Again the delegates met and voted in the same stubborn manner until 254 ballots had been cast. Every delegate stood by his original choice and again adjournment was taken.

Thursday the delegates assembled at Chicago and resumed balloting, taking 119 additional ballots, making a total of 473. It was the same old story—McDermott 22, Desmond 21, O'Connor 7.

At one time Boone cast 4 of its votes for Desmond, but he still lacked one to give him the prize. It was proposed by McHenry county that O'Connor withdraw, but his delegates would listen to no such proposition. This showed that the deadlock could not be broken.

It was then that it was decided to call new primaries and start over again. The new convention will be held in Chicago September 15.

The political history of this district recites no such persistency to abide by instructions of county conventions as has marked the work of the democrats, and through it all there has been no semblance of discord, only a dogged determination on the part of the delegates to carry out the will of the people who elected them.

There is not a man on the face of earth who can pick out the nominee for minority representative from the eighth district.

Political Notes.

Tomorrow the republicans of Lake county will gather in convention at Grayslake and nominate a county ticket. There are 26 candidates for the five offices to be filled. Somebody will be disappointed. Look out for dark horses.

George A. Mawman of Lake Bluff is out as the Peoples' Party candidate for representative from the Eighth Senatorial district. Mr. Mawman was an independent candidate for the same position four years ago and made a run which surprised the leaders of both the old parties.

Samuel F. Knox, the curly-haired lawyer of Highland Park, desires the democratic nomination for probate judge of Lake county. Just what Sam wants the nomination for is a mystery. A nomination by a Lake county democratic convention is not exactly equivalent to an election—at least not this year.

When a United States senator makes over his own signature charges of the serious nature that Senator Mason did recently, says the Waukegan Sun, he should have the facts in his possession to make good. Senator Mason has had ample time to reflect on the evidence in hand and if anyone knows the seriousness of his charges, the senator does. Serving the people as he has done in various public positions, he knows what malicious and false reports can get out and how hard it is to counteract them. No one will attempt to deny that if such conditions really exist, as the senator has stated, then the thing for him to do is to push on without let-up until the whole nefarious practice of "levying blood money" be done away with.

There is an unwritten law that all who hold appointive office of no matter what party, are expected to "give up," but there is also an unwritten law that such donations (?) go for the use of the state and national committees, and not to "buy primaries."

Charges against public men are very easily made but hard to prove. Senator Mason, force the issue—you are right or you are wrong. If right, a better service could not be done by you at this time than in exposing the rotten conditions you charge certain influential men guilty of. If wrong, a grievous error has been made and you alone will suffer.

Your duty, Senator, make good.

When the republican campaign speakers to be sent out by the congressional committee which is carrying on the national fight for the party this fall begin to talk about the "full dinner pail" it is the purpose of the democratic congressional committee-men to have their own speakers show the cost of what is in the "pail." As a feature of the trust campaign they intend to localize the issue in every district in which it is raised. Their speakers will say that "John Jones sells neat now at 18 cents a pound which he sold three years ago at 10 cents a pound, the rise in price being due to the beef trust. Henry Smith, on the opposite corner, sells eggs for 20 cents a dozen that formerly brought 15, due to the poultry combine." This is the kind of campaign the democrats will wage with increasing earnestness and vigor from now until the 4th of next November.

DANGER OF POWER

The Leading Question—Will the Republicans Lose the Next House of Representatives.

The party which has the president always loses some votes in the house of representatives in the election around the middle of his term. This was true even in the civil war and early reconstruction period. Sometimes this setback is not severe enough to revolutionize congress. It will be remembered that Cleveland did not lose the house elected in the middle of his first term, but he lost enough votes to reduce his majority in that body in the second two years to less than half what it was in his first two. President McKinley hung on to the house chosen in 1896, but the cut on his side was so great that he had less than a third of the majority in that branch in the last half of his service than he had in the first half.

An interesting article in Leslie's Weekly refers to party reverses in the house of congress back to the administration of President Pierce in 1854. No party, since the republicans lost the house in 1874 for the first time since Lincoln's election in 1860, ever carried the house so many times in succession as the republicans already have beginning in 1894. What will happen this year is what is agitating the leaders of both political parties.

There are certain things which the leaders of the party in power should keep in mind. The prosperity which came in with the republicans as a result of the election of 1896 has lasted so long and seems so much like the regular condition of things, to those fortunate enough to benefit by it, that a great many voters have forgotten that there was a season of adversity. For any errors of omission or commission chargeable to the president or congress the republican party will be held responsible. On one of the great questions—that relating to trade relations with Cuba—republicans are discordant. There have been disappointments regarding some of President Roosevelt's selections for federal offices. The trust question is embarrassing the dominant party, and there are republicans who wishing to rebuke their party for any cause, may feel that they can do so just now without putting the democracy in control of affairs; for no matter what the result of the coming election for the house may be, the republicans will hold the president and the senate at least two years longer.

The congressional election of 1902 promises to be exceedingly interesting for the country.

The Harvard Independent says, oats are a very poor crop this year. The bulk is there, but the weight falls short by a big margin. A grain bag of the common yield around here will only weigh about 50 pounds. There will be a big crop of straw, but the grain did not fill out and ripened too soon. Barley is turning out much better than was expected and will go from 50 to 60 bushels per acre. If that is the general conditions in McHenry county, Cook and Lake counties are ahead this season, the oat and barley crop being far above that average.

The consumption of malt liquors in the last forty years has increased from 2006,675 barrels in 1863 to 34,330,049 barrels in 1900. In 1863 there was 16,149,954 gallons of distilled spirits manufactured, and in 1900 the output was 109,245,187 gallons. And still some orators tell us that the cause of prohibition is rapidly gaining ground. It don't look like it.

CHAFFEE PLANS TO FIGHT MOROS

General Curtails His Trip of the Southern Islands and Hastens to Manila.

TROOPS ARE BEING MOBILIZED

Moros at Bacolod Have Strengthened the Forts by Lining Them with Stone to Resist Projectiles Fired From American Guns.

General Chaffee has curtailed his tour of the southern islands and is hurrying back to Manila. It is believed that this action is the result of the serious developments in the trouble with the Moros in Mindanao.

An order was received from the war department at Washington leaving action in the Moro situation to General Chaffee's discretion.

Will Increase Forces. It is believed here that General Chaffee will increase the American forces on Mindanao and issue an ultimatum to the hostile Moros. There are at present 27,000 American troops in the Philippine islands, a goodly portion of whom could be spared for active service.

Captain John J. Pershing of the Fifteenth cavalry, who is in command of the American column at Lanao, Mindanao, has reported a fierce Moro inter-tribal fight near Camp Vickers, Mindanao. The contending factions met at Wedding. Thirty-five men were killed outright and many others were wounded. No Americans were concerned in the trouble.

Strengthen Forts. Captain Pershing undertook to ascertain the condition of Bacolod, and was informed by the sultan of Bacayan that there were three forts, all of which were strong. The people had been strengthening them by lining them with stone, so that the projectiles of the Americans could not penetrate. He said that Bacolod had 300 men, but if the Americans went there the Moros adjacent would assist in the defense. Other native chiefs informed Captain Pershing that the sultan of Bacolod would kill them (the natives) if he knew they had been on friendly terms with the Americans.

To Stamp Out Cholera. The board of health of the City of Manila has decided to rid the city of infection. The cholera, which has been raging in that city, is responsible for the determination, and every unsanitary building is to be destroyed. An estimate is made that it may cost half a million dollars to carry out this plan. It is stated that there is a clash between the American and Filipinos in handling the cholera epidemic. The Filipino health officers are said to be more or less a failure and it is therefore probable that the ideas of the Americans will be carried out.

McComsey, whose wife had been ill for several days, was attempting to start a fire in a wood stove when the oil exploded, setting fire to his clothing and throwing burning fluid all over the room. He was fearfully burned and ran screaming out of the house.

FRANK ANDREWS IS FOUND GUILTY

Convicted of Looting the City Savings Bank at Detroit, Michigan.

DECLARES VERDICT IS UNJUST

Outline of the Financial Career of a Country Boy, Whose Ambitious Speculation Made Him a Millionaire and Led to a Felon's Cell.

Frank C. Andrews, former vice president of the City Savings bank of Detroit, was convicted of looting the bank and sweeping away the savings of hundreds of persons in moderate or poor circumstances.

When the verdict was announced Andrews became deadly pale. "It's a terror," he gasped. "It is unjust. I never intended to defraud or cheat any one. God knows it."

The trial had been in progress four weeks. Only two ballots were taken. The first stood ten for conviction and two for acquittal, but the latter two soon joined the majority.

Lived in Fine Style. A few months before the crash came which swept away his fortune and left him in a felon's cell, Andrews was one of the richest and most prosperous men in Detroit.

He lived in magnificent style in a house on Woodward avenue, which cost him $100,000; he was police commissioner, he owned stock in half a dozen banks, in several electric railroads and in numerous valuable properties, was the vice president of the City Savings bank, controlled a leading newspaper and was the treasurer of three trolley lines.

Lost His Wealth. Within six months he had lost every farthing of his wealth, and to feed his passion for speculation had robbed others of very nearly $2,000,000.

Andrews was born about thirty years ago in the little town of Romero, near Detroit, and until 1890 his ambition had not enabled him to rise above a clerkship in a country store. In 1890 he went to Detroit with $5 in his pocket and secured a job as a clerk in a real estate firm. His push, his tireless energy and his inordinate love for work won him quick promotion, and at the end of his first year of service he had $3,000 in bank.

Makes Money Fast. Then he went home, married his sweetheart and returned to Detroit to begin "real work."

At the end of two years Andrews had cleared $25,000 and was still winning. He was placed at the head of the loan department of the real estate firm and began his third year in Detroit as a full partner in the house.

In 1895 the rising young capitalist and financier first felt the fever of speculation, which was ultimately to prove his ruin. Thus far he had wisely invested his savings in bank stock, and was now a power in the financial world of Detroit.

Fortune Grows. His fortune waxed larger and larger until in 1900 he had acquired so much of the stock of the City Savings bank that he succeeded in getting himself elected vice president. The president of the bank was Frank C. Pingree, a brother of the late Hazen Pingree, but the actual management of the institution was largely in the hands of the daring young financier from Romero.

Andrews had by this time proved himself a successful speculator, and he was open in his advocacy of that method of getting rich.

Falls on Amalgamated. He speculated freely, bet on stocks with the coolness of a veteran, and as was generally believed, won some millions in his ventures. But the day on which he was drawn into the betting on Amalgamated Copper stock was the beginning of his downfall.

The banker played copper heavily, and by degrees he added property after property to the burning pile. His railroad stocks went, then his real estate, then his home, then his stock in the banks of other cities, and finally he saw ruin staring him in the face.

Overdrew His Account. One day in January last President Pingree took a little trip to New York to be gone a week or so. The first day that Andrews was left alone he overdrew his account at the bank for $1,000,000 and cashed worthless checks for $600,000 more.

Then came the explosion, but the buoyant young financier did not seem to care. He was cheerful in his prison cell, and did not worry about the mean things said of him in the papers. Although he had many friends before his fall, it was only with the greatest difficulty that he secured bondsmen for the $100,000 at which his bail was fixed.

Loot a Postoffice. East Palestine, Ohio, dispatch: A gang of robbers blew open the post-office safe and secured about $600 in stamps. The explosion aroused the citizens and an exchange of shots took place, but the robbers escaped.

Kaiser Writes of Maneuvers. Berlin cablegram: The Kaiser has prepared a memorandum of his observations during the Russian maneuvers at Reval for the confidential information and use of the higher officers of the German army.

LOSES HER LIFE TO SAVE MONEY

Woman's Desperate Battle to Protect Her Hoard Ended With an Ax.

HUSBAND'S SKULL FRACTURED

Mrs. Tuman's Body is Found 150 Feet From Her Cabin Minus All Her Clothing—Hut Bears Evidence of Terrible Conflict.

Muscatine, Iowa, dispatch: Because they fought desperately to prevent being robbed of the hoarded savings of a lifetime Jesse Tuman and his wife were beaten with an ax until the woman was killed and the man rendered insensible by wounds and the loss of blood.

Mrs. Tuman's bruised and broken remains were found on a hillside about 150 feet from her cabin home, five or six miles north of this city. She had fought until her clothing was torn off completely before she received her death blow.

Man's Skull Crushed. Her husband was discovered on a cot in the cabin. His skull had been crushed and his jaw broken and he was unconscious.

Daniel Williams, a clam digger from Texas, had been making his home with the Tumans for two weeks. He is now missing and the police officials of this city, to which Tuman was brought during the day, are searching for him. Tuman was a clam digger and his shanty, a two-story structure on the Sherkey farm, north of Muscatine, is in a lonely spot.

Thought to Have Money. The couple had lived frugally and the common report was that they had accumulated a snug sum which they kept in the hut. They seldom received visitors and the discovery of the tragedy in the shanty was made by accident.

Two boys named Judson, who were gathering wild grapes in the woods on the Sherkey farm, discovered the ghastly end of a terrible tragedy.

Evidence of Struggle. They went to Tuman's hut and on entering discovered a scene of confusion, with tables and chairs overturned, curtains and bed clothes strewn on the floor, blood everywhere and on a cot unconscious, but with blood oozing from his wounds, one of the victims.

It was plain that there had been a terrible struggle for life. A woman's garments, evidently those of Mrs. Tuman, were scattered on the floor.

Find Woman's Body. The frightened youths hastened to the nearest neighbor and the searching party organized, returned and found several hundred feet from the house the nude body of the wife, face downward in a ravine, her face badly bruised, one eye out and her arms terribly lacerated.

The murderer of Mrs. Tuman had evidently followed her when she made an effort to escape and brained her with an ax which was found close to her body.

Robbery the Motive. There is no doubt that robbery was the motive for the crime. The shanty had evidently been thoroughly ransacked and when the officials searched the place not a valuable or a piece of money could be found.

Tuman will be operated upon in the hospital here. It is hoped if he ever becomes conscious that he may be able to name the assassin.

CHAPTER XII.

Jones on Watch.

When he failed to locate her at first, a sense of disappointment swept over him, since he especially desired to reassure her of his intention to never again appear at a table where a game of chance was being played.

Little did he suspect what tremendous forces were at work in that garden, since there were so few signs visible on the surface.

Men may plot even amid the most beautiful surroundings—laughter and apparent good cheer are no positive guaranty against such devices, and indeed, these things often mask the deeper, more troublous billows of life's tempestuous sea.

So Merrick, intent on finding the one whom he most desired to see, noted not the fact that dark figures flitted after him wherever he went, figures of men who apparently sauntered about bent upon enjoying the delightful occasion, yet ever keeping tab upon his particular movements.

Further back Jones was watching the little game of hide and seek, as if speculating as to what manner of business was in the wind. He apparently had quite a few acquaintances among those who sauntered about the well-kept paths of the terrace garden, for on numerous occasions he seemed to exchange quiet little signals with various men.

Evidently Jones was indulging in a little mysterious move of his own.

When the count, believing things were all going his way, would be led to make his boldest master stroke, perhaps a sudden dexterous move on the part of this unsuspected antagonist might bring about a checkmate.

Merrick began to quicken his pace. There is always an exhilaration in the chase of love, such as in a small degree the hunter feels who follows his antlered game, through fen and forest.

The princess saw his meteoric flight up and down the paths, and at another time might have sought to exercise her charms for a last time, piqued as she had been because of her ill success with regard to Mark.

But even the princess seemed to have her mind bent upon other matters of much greater importance just at present.

Even when she came across Jones, whom she had marked for her latest victim, she hardly showed much desire to renew the friendly confidences they had seemed to experience for each other a while back.

"You know, Monsieur Jones," she said, in her pretty, confidential way, one hand upon his sleeve, "that I am connected with the diplomatic corps of my beloved country, and as wretched luck would have it, the ambassador has assigned me certain important work in connection with a distinguished personage whom I need not mention, but whom you have seen at the tables. More I cannot say. Surely you will pardon me, and believe me when I say that to-morrow, Monsieur Jones, to-morrow I shall feel honored by your company."

And Jones was compelled to submit, though he did so with considerable reluctance, as if she was correct in thus diagnosing the look upon his face.

He walked away through the grounds, but kept a watchful eye on the princess. Suddenly he started.

"Now, bless my soul! there's that same burglar or brigand who commanded the forces at the wreck when they carried off the general; and he's deep in conversation with the princess, taking his orders, as it were, if I can judge from her gestures. I'd give half of my winnings to-night to be able to overhear; but since that is impossible, let's see if we can't guess it all from their looks and manner."

Jones saw them separate. "She has won him over to her way of thinking, as sure as fate, and I have good reason to believe Olgavitch is determined upon desperate action, so that we may look for an explosion soon. Meanwhile, where is our valiant count all this while?"

Yes, where? The African explorer was a man who might bear watching as a general thing, and if perchance he had slipped away unobserved, the chances were, mischief would come out of it. Never before in all his life had he known the Fates to be so perverse—but he could even forgive this if one grand coup were to reward him for his patience and perseverance.

There was his grand scheme to be carried out religiously—he marked that down as Article Number One, of the first importance.

Then came the kidnapping of the heiress, with her ultimate rescue by himself, and, of course, a marriage to follow, for a Frenchman could not conceive of a romantic girl turning a deaf ear to a son of chivalry who, at the risk of life and limb, had saved her from a nest of desperate bandits, slaying half their number and escaping amid a storm of hail.

Last of all was the securing of the man whom he had reason to believe carried the precious key to Darragh's infallible system upon his person.

Count Leon evidently believed in lumping things.

Jones became a little more active now, as though he realized that matters were reaching an acute stage, and required more attention than at any period in the past.

In all probability an encounter might be brought about at any moment, and with desperate results.

A trio of men attracted his attention, standing at a retired spot.

Two of them might have passed unnoticed, but that the third somehow caught his attention, and despite the evident desire of the party to keep his identity concealed, Jones guessed it.

"My God!" he muttered hastily, "it is the president visiting Monaco incognito, to see what manner of witch it is that lures so many from the gay capital all through the winter."

Having overcome the uneasiness produced by his discovery he began to put two and two together.

The royalists undoubtedly knew the French president meant to secretly take a flying trip under cover of an assumed name to the Riviera—perhaps the assault on the train had been made with the bold idea of capturing this illustrious personage.

These valiant sons of France, how they love a sudden, bold stroke that wins admiration from friend and foe alike—as Louis Napoleon seized the reins of government and fought his way to the throne, so others aspire to follow the example thus set.

There are many who declare all the designs of the times point that way, yet the sincere friends of the republic are just as vehement in asserting that it can never be.

Had those same partisans been present at Monte Carlo on this night, when for the second time the American adventurer broke the bank that had seemed to be as stable as the rock of Gibraltar itself, and could they have witnessed the mysterious and hurried consultations between little knots of men who were many of them well-known personages in the recent life of France, they might have shuddered to contemplate the disaster that seemed so imminent, and have realized that a secret understanding with the army generals might be possible whereby under certain conditions the military forces would be wheeled into line like magic and with the disappearance of the president a mighty shout go up for the old empire and a new emperor!

Doubtless it was a singular freak of fortune that had arranged matters so that Merrick should play his little game of hide and seek in the name of love, surrounded by all the disturbing elements that went to make up a revolutionary upheaval.

Circumstances govern the conditions in all such cases, and poor mortals must rest content to accept whatever the Fates bestow.

Jones had missed the valorous count from the scene of action.

This did not come about through any delinquency on the part of Villebois, who, on the contrary, had never known a busier hour in the whole course of his checkered career.

If he could secure possession of the secret document, which he felt sure, was somewhere about the person of Mark Merrick, and at the same time carry off the girl who represented those South African diamond mines in the sovereign state of Oom Paul Kruger, he would be killing two birds with one stone and feathering his own individual nest, whether the revolution came about or not.

Merrick's search continued. Not until the last spark of hope had gone would the lover own himself defeated.

Such conspicuous pertinacity surely deserved some reward, and Mark was finally delighted to discover the face for which he sought.

Strange to say, he did not hasten forward, as he had contemplated.

For Constance was not alone.

The count was there, making himself as agreeable as only a Frenchman knows how.

Merrick came to a full stop.

Of course, it could not be pleasant to see an old-time rival, who had been the cause of his suffering and their parting in the past, talking apparently so confidentially to his sweetheart; but Mark would have shown his good sense by stepping forward and letting the count realize his proprietorship in the precious little bundle of femininity by various signs which he could not mistake.

Later on he was sorry he had not done so. But he was only a man, not a demi-god, and had a few little weaknesses of his own.

He turned his attention upon the count and indignation began to arise. The count seemed at his very best. He could be a very brilliant man when he chose to exert himself, and he was certainly doing that same thing now. He fairly scintillated with wit and endeavored to dazzle Constance.

He apparently did not take Mark into account, since that individual was under surveillance, and when the prearranged signal was given would be inconspicuously laid by the heels, the usual fate of reckless individuals who ventured to cross his plans.

So the kettle simmered and bubbled, ready at any auspicious moment to take a sudden turn and boil over.

CHAPTER XIII.

When Jones had to grapple with an enraged bull, metaphorically speaking, it was his custom, and a most excellent one, too, to seize the animal by the horns, and thus have a fair chance to pit his strength against the power of the beast.

So it was in this case.

The apparent presence of France's chief executive in Mentone accentuated matters, and promised to bring about a speedy crisis.

Should the deep-laid plans of the revolutionists meet with success over the border would flash into existence a bright flame which, spreading across the country, would blaze up like a prairie fire until it reached Paris; and that gay, thoughtless capital, always eager for a change, would make the heaven echo with shouts of acclaim to the new emperor.

It was a critical hour for the life of the French republic.

Jones had decided upon his course of action, and, like a wise general, meant to meet the tricky advance of the enemy by a counter movement. His first design was to gain an interview with the president.

Approaching the spot where the president stood leaning upon a stone balustrade and apparently admiring the night panorama spread out before his eyes, Jones, speaking excellent French for a Yankee, suddenly addressed the quiet gentleman as one tourist sometimes does another in his enthusiasm over a sublime spectacle.

The president courteously replied, as a French gentleman always will, nature having made them in such a different mold from their English neighbors across the channel.

The door was thus opened. Jones stepped in.

"Mr. President, you are in great danger," was what he said, impressively.

The distinguished Frenchman started when he heard these words addressed to him by one he looked upon as a stranger.

"What! you know of me?" he exclaimed.

"Yes, Your excellency, and there are others present who have been watching you all the evening, with a very serious object in view."

Jones was delighted to discover how calmly the president took his news.

It spoke well for his nerve. Of course he was curious to know who had recognized him, and why they were so deeply interested in his welfare.

Jones told of the waylaid train, the capture of a republican whose name was a power in France, the possible desire to seize upon the president if he could be located on the Nice express, and last but not least, the gathering of the revolutionary clans at Monte Carlo, and their evident design to carry out some desperate plan.

All of which, condensed into a comparatively few paragraphs, constituted a sensation that might have well aroused alarm in the breast of the bravest.

The president did not seem to be shaken.

Of course this steadiness delighted the man who carried the news—if there was one quality in the make-up of humanity that he admired more than another, it was the faculty which so few men possess, of controlling their emotions.

The Frenchman was a wonder in his eyes, and Jones felt especially proud to serve him.

Confidential relations seemed to have been established between them, as though the president had recognized in Jones one gifted with authority to look after the peace of Europe, and particularly of France, with power to balk any and all desperate games put into circulation by such trouble makers as the shrewd Princess Olgavitch and her allies.

HELD "MAD ANTHONY'S" BONES.

Kettle in Which His Body Was Reduced to a Skeleton.

A unique and interesting relic, though gruesome enough in its associations, has been added to the Erie Library museum. It is the kettle in which General Anthony Wayne's body was reduced to a skeleton nearly a century ago.

Through all the intervening years it has been in the possession of descendants of the General, and through one of them, Major O. W. Pollock, U. S. A., was obtained for the museum.

It was in the winter of 1796, at Erie, on his return from making a treaty with the Northwest Indians, that General Wayne was prostrated with what proved a fatal illness. His body was buried within the walls of the old blockhouse which guarded the entrance to Erie, where he died, at the foot of the flagstaff. There it remained undisturbed until 1809, when, at the request of a daughter of the General, his nephew, Colonel Isaac Wayne, came to Erie to remove the bones to the East, to be buried with those of his family.

The journey to Erie was made in a two-wheeled carriage, the only kind of vehicle that the roads, or rather tracks, of the country then permitted.

On taking up the body it was found to be in an almost perfect state of preservation, and the kettle became necessary to reduce the remains to a compass that would allow of their being carried on the sulky.

Dr. J. C. Wallace, a friend of the General's, superintended the operation and the bones, after their arrival in the East, were deposited in Radnor churchyard.—Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald.

Cause for Rejoicing.

"Have they any candy in heaven, mamma?" asked little four-year-old Margie, who was slowly recovering from a serious illness. "I think not, darling," replied her mother. "Then," said the little invalid, "I'm awful glad we've got such a good doctor."

Quite a sensation was created in Farina recently when Jo Maro, an Italian, came crying into the town, showing two knife wounds and claiming he had been robbed of over $1,900, which he had drawn from the bank, being the month's wages of seventy Italians working on the Illinois Central railroad. The men work till six o'clock and gave Maro their checks from the company to draw for them, as the bank closes at 5. Maro's story was not credited and the men took quick action. They armed themselves and went to his car demanding the money. Maro collapsed and made a full confession. He told where he had hid the money and $1,500 was found in a cornfield. This so pleased the crowd that Maro was allowed to escape without producing the remaining $400.

The company has been trying for some time to get a franchise to enter the city, but the council has refused to grant it unless the company agrees to pay $1 per year for each of its poles. The Duquoin company conceived the idea of having the Central Union enter the city on its franchise, but the city claims this is illegal.

McPike, who is now operating a corrugated paper factory in Alton, has asked the city council to give him a lease on three or four acres of city property on the river front at the foot of Cherry street for a term of twenty-five years, and the city will do so. Mr. McPike proposes to erect at once a plant that will manufacture paper principally from straw. The plant will be on the bank of the Mississippi river and there will be no trouble experienced in getting rid of refuse matter. Mr. McPike will also continue to operate his corrugated paper factory.

Illinois Jurist Who Died at His Home in Danville.

Many on Pay Roll.

It is said that 3,200 persons will be on the pay roll of the Illinois glass works at Alton when the plant resumes operations in full early in October, which is a larger number than ever, and it is stated by an official of the company that the number would be much larger than that if enough boys to carry off the ware could be secured.

These Articles.

The articles for the incorporation of the Danville, Urbana and Champaign interurban railway have been filed in the office of the Macon county recorder. The road is to run through Vermilion, Champaign, Platt, Macon and Sangamon counties to Springfield. The capital stock is $250,000. The road is now in course of construction.

Electrical Storm.

A terrific electrical storm passed through Lerna doing much damage. On the Montfort farm, near that village, two fine horses were struck by lightning and killed, and a large force of broom corn hands who were at work in the field were shocked, some of them being seriously injured.

Open New Coal Shaft.

The shaft of the Chicago-Carbon-dale, which has been under construction for several weeks at Carbondale, has been completed. The vein is fully 3 feet in thickness and of a good quality of bituminous coal.

Racing at Mattoon.

It has been announced that racing will be one of the chief attractions at the coming Mattoon street fair. Plans are being made to bring the best horses of the country to this city for the event.

Bankrupt Farmer.

Edward Everett Standard, a farmer residing at Carthage, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States circuit court. He schedules liabilities at $764.04 and assets at $403.

Senator Buys Orchard.

Senator Henry M. Dunlap of Savoy has purchased forty acres of apple orchard from George Hosselton in Stanford township for $3,400.

Ordered to Work.

Squatters on the sandbars and in vacant lots about Alton have been ordered by Chief of Police Volbracht to go to work, out of town or to jail. The chief is of the opinion that the squatters are responsible for much of the petty stealing around the city.

Land is Cheap.

One hundred and twenty acres of land in East Fork township were sold at public sale by the executors of William Young to Henry N. Randle for $2,500.

Goes to Missouri.

Professor James H. Raybill of Jacksonville has been elected to the chair of elocution and oratory of Christian University, Canton, Mo.

League of Christian Citizenship.

In October last, moved by the tragic death of President McKinley, Rev. Dr. Johnson, the pastor of a Presbyterian church of Chicago, started in connection with his Sunday school a movement for the instruction of the children and young people in the duties of Christian citizenship, certain Sundays being set aside for exercises of a patriotic character. The idea was soon adopted by the Cook County Sunday School association. It has now been taken up by the Sunday schools of the country at large and becomes a national movement. At the recent national Sunday school convention in Denver it was recommended that the teaching of Christian citizenship be made a part of the work of all Sunday schools.

The symbol adopted is a flag containing "By This Sign Conquer" in white on a blue field, with a red cross on a white union. With reference to the flag Dr. Johnson has said: "The church should have a flag that will stand for religion as the national flag stands for patriotism, and this flag should be to the church what the stars and stripes are to the country. The use of the flag in conjunction with the national flag would say to the eye that Christianity is in favor of government as against anarchy and in favor of good government as against bad government."

The results aimed at are diverse—first, there is respect for law and hatred for anarchy; second, there is the discharge of the duties which citizenship implies; third, there is love of country. All these are embraced in the term "Christian citizenship," the duties and obligations of which should early be impressed upon the minds of the rising generation.

Socially Ostracizing Automobiles.

Hitherto the war on reckless automobilists has mainly been waged by the poor of the cities, by village constables and in general by those unable to own the expensive horseless vehicles. While this campaign was largely one of self defense, there was undoubtedly in it a certain amount of class feeling and animosity against a new and extravagant pastime.

It now appears that another element of society has taken up a cudgel against the abuse of automobilism which is likely to be quite effective. This is the opposition of certain people of wealth and high social standing. The weapon employed is social ostracism. The racing automobilist is to be shut out of many of the homes and resorts of fashion. The exclusion of automobiles from the Meadow club at Southampton, on Long Island, the general closing to these machines of great country places which are freely open to carriages, the standing offer of a reward for the prosecution and conviction of fast drivers made by residents of Lenox and Stockbridge, in the Berkshire hills—all these things are bound to have their effect in forcing the owners of powerful machines to observe both the law and the courtesy of the road.

Of course there are many rich automobilists upon whom this ostracism will have no effect, but it will doubtless bring the merely careless to terms. For the reckless and vicious, who have no respect for the rights of others, the law should be sternly invoked.

Arthur S. Green, a young artist residing in Connecticut, has taken upon himself the rather arduous task of redeeming the Holy Land from the Mohammedans and restoring it to the care of the Christians. Mr. Green purposes buying it from the sultan. Mr. Green says: "My idea is first to raise enough money by international subscription, founding an organization for the purpose. After the necessary amount is raised we would, through the organization, petition a suitable Christian power or powers to guarantee the independence, neutrality and integrity of the Holy Land, creating a republic by and for Christians, in honor of Christ." There is one good reason why the sultan should be willing to sell the Holy Land. He needs the money.

"I wish to say that I have great admiration for newspaper men and for the United States," says Liang Chen Tung, the newly appointed Chinese minister at Washington. All of which would seem to indicate that Mr. Tung has a rather smooth tongue.

The small amount which is to be doled out to the striking coal miners and those dependent upon them may be enough to keep them alive through the summer, but it won't be sufficient to buy their winter coal at present prices.

There is talk of establishing a college in Paris for the purpose of teaching the science of aerial navigation. This would certainly be an institution of higher education.

Who shot Latimer? is likely to prove as perplexing a problem as Who struck Billy Patterson?

Mr. Lawson of Boston Again.

While the New York Yacht club could and did prevent Mr. Thomas W. Lawson from entering his Boston built yacht as a defender of the America's cup, the club could not prevent Mr. Lawson from writing a book about the affair, and this Mr. Lawson has done. It is a nice book, lavishly illustrated, richly bound and published for free distribution to Mr. Lawson's friends, whom he evidently numbers as 3,000, that being the number of volumes issued.

In the book Mr. Lawson of Boston prints with much frankness his opinion of the New York Yacht club, collectively and individually. He classes its members among America's "mushroom aristocracy," which is composed, he writes, "of those who know no law but might, who admit no God but self, whose standard is cunning and whose code is 'Get there.' Probably never in the history of the world has there been a class so powerful for evil as this."

Concerning his dispute with the New York Yacht club Mr. Lawson says: "That such a controversy was possible in the history of so noble a trophy as the America's cup showed that something was rotten in Denmark, and before the season of 1901 was half over the world saw what that something was—the cup had ceased, in effect, to be a national trophy and was held as a club prize, to be raced for only under such conditions as the club holding it saw fit to lay down."

Of course most of us have too little interest in the controversy itself and too little actual knowledge of the facts on both sides to hold decided opinions, but most of us must now acknowledge that, whether he was entitled to defend the cup or no, Mr. Lawson is an original and entertaining soul, a sportsman unafraid and an author whom any publisher would always be glad to welcome.

To Investigate Earthquakes Next.

The latest proposal for united international action comes from Germany. And what do you suppose is the object? An investigation of earthquakes. Count Quadt, charge d'affaires of the German embassy, acting in accordance with instructions from Berlin, has invited the United States to participate in a conference which shall take steps for a thorough study of seismological problems. Germany has also invited delegates from all European states, Japan, Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Mexico.

Count Quadt asks whether the United States government feels disposed to take part in the establishment of an international investigation and to send experts to the constituent convention, which will probably meet next spring. It is expected that when Secretary Hay receives the communication he will determine whether the United States should participate. It is said to be likely that he will assent.

Of course the Martinique disaster suggested this somewhat unusual enterprise. Just what form the investigation will assume will be interesting to note. Will Pelee be cross examined as to why it blew its head off? Will Chimborazo be put under bonds to keep the peace? Will notices be posted in the volcanic districts warning all mountains that unseemly eruptions will be prosecuted? Or will the old earth be told, with all the high dignity that an international body can command, to shake no more?

An event of momentous importance to Egypt is chronicled in the announcement that the last coping stone of the Nile dam at Assouan has been laid. The construction of this Nile dam will mean great things in the development of the agricultural resources of Egypt. The Nile reservoir, with its dams at Assouan and Assoult, is expected to enable wide tracts of land to bear two crops a year and will materially increase the sugar cultivation area in the Nile valley. It is claimed that the reservoir will supply a billion cubic meters of water annually for irrigation purposes.

Have you seen a stray poet-lecturer out your way recently? A New York dime museum has lost one. He quotes Shakespeare and other poets without exertion and can talk in verse for half an hour at a stretch. If you find him and don't want him particularly, please send him back to New York.

That Massachusetts burglar who ransacked a house between midnight and sunrise was so astonishingly thoughtful and considerate as to send, back by mail a number of checks which he could not cash. Housebreakers rarely take the trouble to return anything.

It is now the height of that season when the stay at home city man has added to his other troubles the supervision of the laundry list and a break-fast downtown.

If some one should happen to discover the north pole, one of our greatest summer industries—that of sending relief expeditions—would be destroyed.

Of course the rumor that J. Pierpont Morgan is to retire is wrong. There are several industries that have not been overcapitalized yet.

THE GIRLS OF KASHMIR.

Why They Are Not as Beautiful as They Once Were.

The girls of Kashmir in former times were sold and carried away to the Punjab, in India. They commanded a large price, and parents in moderate circumstances for centuries past have been in the habit of parting with their daughters to place themselves in easier circumstances, and the daughters have generally been quite willing to escape from a life of penury and labor to one of opulence and ease.

A laboring man in this part of India cannot earn over $2 or $3 a month, while many receive for their daughters as high as $1,000. There are some cases where $5,000 was paid, but the usual price has been from $100 to $500.

The practice became so common as well as so damaging that a severe law was enacted prohibiting any one from removing any woman from the country, but it is said that the business goes on now as it has done for hundreds of years, and to that practice may be charged the fact that the women of Kashmir are not as beautiful as they once were.

The process of taking all the beautiful girls away, leaving only the ordinary and ugly ones to continue the race, has lowered the standard of beauty. Most of the women and girls perform field labor as much as the men, and their dress is of the coarsest and plainest materials, consisting of a garment like a nightgown made of white cotton. There is no effort to have it fit.

The condition of women in Kashmir is a very sad one, but one from which there does not seem to be any present escape. It is a constant struggle to live, without the least hope of any accumulation of or ever seeing better days.

The men only receive about 5 cents a day and the women generally about 3 cents, and that will provide only the coarsest food.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Useful Purposes of Rosin. There are many useful purposes to which rosin can be applied outside of those of general practice. As a non-conductor of heat it is used in the protection of water pipes, particularly in crossing bridges, where the pipe is laid in the middle of a long box and the whole filled with melted rosin. Rosin is also used in supporting basement floors in machine shops, which may be laid over some dry material, as spent molding sand, which is carefully leveled off, and the planking laid upon temporary supports separating it about two inches above the sand.

Numerous holes about two inches in diameter being bored through these planks, melted rosin is forced through them by means of funnels until the whole space is solidly filled, and then the upper flooring is laid upon these planks. In case the floor is subjected to shocks sufficient to break the rosin it rapidly joins together again in much the same manner as the regulation of ice.

The Dragon Slayer. At an English school a pompous youngster whose father, it was well known, had been a successful omnibus driver was one day fingering ostentatiously a large seal which he is in the habit of wearing, representing St. George and the dragon, and, having drawn the attention of a school companion to it, remarked carelessly:

"Ah, one of my ancestors is supposed to have killed the dragon, don't you know?"

"Good gracious!" inquired the other, somewhat anxiously. "Did he run over it?"—London Answers.

CATCH PHRASES.

Their Utility In Advancing the Interests of Business Men.

There are many instances of where a suitable catch line well drilled into people has been of great value in building business. The best catch line is one that fits your business best, and the discoverer of such a line is apt to be due more to inspiration than to effort. Pick the distinctive feature of your stock or business methods and endeavor to express it in a breath.

If you can coin a phrase that expresses your central business idea or emphasizes some feature that marks your store alone, you can make good use of it. It puts into condensed form an idea that will get hold of people and influence them if persistently presented to them. One fact about your business well lodged in the heads of people is as good as a score that do not penetrate.

You can make people believe about what you like if you go about it properly. If a man comes to you today and tells you there will be a panic inside of six months, you will pay no attention to him. If another comes tomorrow with the same story, he will get no attention, but you will idly wonder what is getting into folks. The third man you will argue the matter with. The fourth will get more of a hearing, and you will begin to see signs of disaster yourself. By the time the tenth man has made the statement you will be ready to tell folks the same story yourself.

Probably you yourself could not be influenced in such a manner, but the common run of people are built that way and will believe what they are told often enough. That is why an expressive catch phrase does good. It comes to stand for you and your methods and of necessity is remembered when goods in your line are wanted.

As ordinarily used such a phrase is of little value, because it is not properly hammered into people. Such a line should go on letter heads, billheads, stationery, envelopes, should go into every ad. or circular, should be seen about the store and should appear on labels. Put it on a sticker to attach to goods and packages. Let people see it everywhere. If it means what it says, people are going to respond to it. —American Druggist.

An Optimistic Cripple.

A one legged newsboy had been hopping about on his crutch selling afternoon "extras," and when there was a lull in the business, owing to a falling off in the crowds, he sat down for a brief rest.

"How did you lose your leg?" I asked.

"Cable car," he said, with the street urchin's characteristic economy of words.

"Too bad!" I remarked.

"Oh, but it might 'a' been worse, sir," the boy replied. "The company paid the doctor and gave mother $800. That paid all our debts and left us $500 in bank, and it's all there 'cept $40 we had to take out when mother was sick, and I sell more papers than most of the boys, just 'cause I've a crutch. There's one of my customers now."—New York Times.

Her One Success.

In the civil war time a western woman who had lost her husband in the field and who hoped to win a livelihood for herself and her little ones by writing sent to Harper's Magazine a story which had no special distinction and was returned. In the desperate mood that followed this rejection she sat down with pen a flame and told "why I wrote it," and her story under that title was accepted and published, winning a sympathetic response from all its readers. But this production, the echo of a vital moment, was her one story in the magazine. Oliver Wendell Holmes said that anybody could write one interesting novel if he could truly tell the story of his own life.—Harper's Magazine.

Monon Passenger Crashes Into an Erie Freight With Fatal Results.

ENGINE MEN STICK TO POSTS

Fireman Pinioned Beneath Cab—Daniel E. Farris, Badly Hurt, Pleads for Help for Brother, Who Was Burned to Death.

Chicago dispatch: Carrying 300 excursionists on their homeward journey, a Monon passenger train crashed into a heavy Erie freight near Hammond, Ind., killing one man, probably fatally injuring his brother, and wounding three others. The victims were all on the Erie train.

So great was the force of the impact the passengers, most of whom had been asleep, were thrown into a panic. Women screamed and fainted, and it is said the men fought each other in their endeavor to escape.

Demolishing the caboose, the engine turned diagonally across the rails and struck a Monon freight train which was standing on an adjoining track.

Wreckage Catches Fire.

To add to the excitement, the wreckage caught fire, entailing great loss to the two railroads, and then while rescuers were at work the wrecked engine exploded, increasing the panic, and many more narrowly escaped injury.

The dead: George W. Farris. The injured: Daniel E. Farris, F. E. Kline, Frank Lewis, Samuel R. Marshall.

On board the excursion train were the faculty and students of Bartlett's Business college at Indianapolis and Cincinnati. Ten days ago the train left Cincinnati for Chicago. Arriving here, the entire party crossed the lake to Grand Haven and after a week at the lake resorts returned to this city and boarded the cars for the homeward trip.

Applies Brakes too Late.

Running out of this city over the Chicago and Western Indiana tracks at forty miles an hour to make up lost time in starting, the train of ten coaches and a baggage car was almost upon the freight a mile west of Hammond before Engineer Kline saw the red lights displayed on the caboose. He applied the brakes, but it was too late.

Police were summoned from Hammond, and on their arrival gave their attention to the work of rescue. From almost the bottom of the wreckage Daniel Farris was taken, four of his ribs being broken. His brother, also under the debris, was crushed and probably burned to death.

Asks Aid for Brother.

Forgetting his own injuries, Daniel begged the rescuers to save his brother, but the fire, which had spread to the other cars, was so hot it was impossible to attempt to save the unfortunate man.

Engineer Kline and Fireman Lewis stuck to their posts and Lewis was pinned beneath the cab, which had caught fire. It was not until the arrival of help from Hammond that he could be released. Marshall and the Farris brothers were in the Erie caboose.

Furniture and meat cars, splintered by the collision, added fuel to the blaze, which lighted up the country for miles. Firemen were summoned from Howewich and Hammond, but the only water available had to be pumped from a nearby slough and little headway was made against the flames.

Telegraph poles many feet away were burned and the rails on both tracks were tied into knots by the fire.

So great was the crowd attracted by the wreck the police had difficulty in preventing spectators from being injured.

Detroit, Mich., dispatch: Extreme simplicity marked the funeral services over the body of Senator James McMillan, who died suddenly at his summer home in Manchester, Mass. It had been proposed that his thousands of employes should march in procession behind the hearse bearing his body to the tomb; that there should be a military escort and a public funeral commensurate with the senator's career, but in obedience to the wish of the family, this was given up. The services began at 2:30 o'clock at the Senator's late residence, 515 Jefferson avenue. The large house was crowded to its utmost capacity and many persons were unable to gain admission. Both branches of Congress, the State Legislature and all departments of the state and city government were represented at the services. Governor A. T. Bliss was present with several of his staff. The senatorial delegation included some of the most intimate friends of the dead Senator.

TROOPS CLASH WITH RIOTERS

Company of Infantry Forms Hollow Square to Protect a Nonunionist.

HURL WATCHMAN INTO CREEK

Washery Guard Tries to Rescue Fleeing Man From His Pursuers and is Given a Ducking—Duryea Deputies Released on Bail.

Shenandoah, Pa., dispatch: Miners and troops clashed Friday night and for a time it looked as if there would be a serious fight. For nine minutes a company of infantry with fixed bayonets formed a hollow square about a nonunion workman whose life was in danger, while a big crowd of strikers stood about, hurling epithets and now and then a stone. Then the entire Twelfth regiment and a battalion of the Eight swept down from camp on the run, the crowd vanished into the darkness, and soon all was quiet.

Chase Nonunion Man.

The disorder was the result of a mob chasing an alleged unfair workman near the Philadelphia and Reading coal and iron company's washery in the southeastern part of the town. There were fifty or sixty men in the mob. As they chased the man up the railroad throwing stones at him the night watchman of the washery, named Anthony Flinn, tried to rescue the man.

The watchman was promptly thrown into the creek running parallel with the railroad by some of those leading in the chase. The crowd kept after the workman and he ran to the Reading railroad station, where a company of infantry was on provost duty. The company was immediately called into formation and attempted to hold the crowd back.

Dispersed by Troops.

The mob caused a large crowd to gather from all directions and word was immediately sent to camp for reinforcements. When these arrived, three men, John Howe, Frederick Zimmerman, and Matthew Bronz, who are alleged to have been participants in the assault on the watchman and the workman, were arrested and taken to the town lockup. The troops were kept in the streets until a late hour. The men were later given a hearing and held in $500 bail.

GUARDS GIVE BAIL.

Duryea Deputies Released on Bond by Judge Halsey.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., dispatch: The twenty-five deputies on guard at the Warnke washery, Duryea, when the riot took place Thursday, and who were arrested and jailed by the authorities on the charge of inciting a riot and felonious wounding, were given a hearing before Judge Halsey. It was shown that the two men shot were not seriously wounded. Judge Halsey then released the prisoners in the sum of $10,000 for a further hearing. The bail was promptly furnished and the men released.

Havana cablegram: During the last few days several Havana newspapers have been making violent onslaughts upon the chief executive of the republic, accusing him of incompetency, ignorance and weakness in not having as yet done anything useful for the country. La Lucha claims that President Palma's promises to treat the various elements in Cuba alike have not been kept and declares that what the executive wants is to govern without law and to ignore the constitution. The paper says that in spite of the repeated requests of congress President Palma has not yet presented the budget.

La Discussion says that congress is wasting time lamentably and declares that a number of laws have been delayed either in the house of representatives or in the senate. Congress must do more work, says the paper, or the session will pass without the accomplishment of anything for the interests of the country.

In the house of representatives it was voted that none of the fortresses or arsenals of the Cuban republic could be leased or sold by the government.

TIDAL WAVE STRIKES A MEXICAN SEAPORT

Fifty Persons Are Killed and Scores Are Missing From Ruined City of Altata.

Culiacan, Mexico, special: The city of Altata, the seaport of this city, was swept by a tidal wave and is in utter ruins. The devastation is complete. Fifty persons are known to have been killed and scores are missing. The city is situated at the mouth of the Culiacan river, where it flows into the Pacific, and a large portion of the shore has been washed away by the wave.

Several small towns north of Altata have also suffered severely, and communication being shut off, it is not known how great the damage to the northward has been. The water swept far inland and the gold and silver mines which lie near the sea are flooded.

This city escaped the effects of the inrush of water owing to its high situation, being indeed upon the site of the ancient Aztec city of Huicohuacan, famous in Mexican history. The low-lying sections, however, were damaged by the sudden rise of the Culiacan river and property at Altata and the other towns where the tidal wave struck cannot be estimated.

More than twenty years ago Paul Hines, then left fielder of the Providence National league team, made a triple play unassisted. Not since then has any baseball player ever equaled the feat.

In one of the early innings of the game Shoch was on second and Mack on first base. The batter, in an attempt to bunt, hit a short infield fly, which O'Hagan caught. He then ran to first base and touched the bag, heading off Mack. O'Hagan then went to second, which he reached before Shoch, who was running for third, could get back.

PLANNING TO END MINERS' STRIKE

Committee Calls on Senators Quay and Penrose at Atlantic City

TO INVOKE THE AID OF THE LAW

Business Men of the Anthracite Region, Tired of Being Ground by the Two Forces, Propose Strenuous Legislation.

The committee from the Public alliance called on Senators Quay and Penrose at Atlantic City. The committee discussed with the senators plans for compelling the coal operators to arbitrate the strike.

While no written proposition was made to the two senators they were told that the business men of the region are tired of being ground between the two forces and that, representing the best interests of the upper part of the state, with direct losses already of several million dollars, they want the strike ended if it is in the senators' power to end it.

Look to Quay.

It was suggested that this power lies in the influence of Mr. Quay to direct legislation so that he could if desired command the passage of bills which would compel the coal companies to treat with their employes. It was pointed out also that he can compel the enforcement of laws affecting the railroads of the state, particularly in such centers as Philadelphia and Pittsburg, which would force the roads to a change of system and the expenditure of large amounts. If these things could be threatened it is believed by the committee that the railroads which control most of the coal mines would soon consent to arbitrate.

Sheriff Disperses a Mob.

Only one call was made upon the sheriff for aid, when a march which had started for the Franklin colliery of the Lehigh Valley Company, promised to result in violence. The local authorities managed to disperse the mob. According to the present plan the resumption of work at the Warnke washeries at Duryea is to take place and if it does it is believed troops will be on the scene.

Threatens Officers.

Frederick Warnke, the owner of the washery, contemplates action against Burgess Burlington and Chief of Police Cosgrove of Duryea and hopes to have them removed from office. He says they were in league with the strikers to prevent the resumption of work. The arrest of the guards and their commitment under heavy bail by the burgess will be the main grounds of the complaint.

With the soldiers in the region the Lackawanna company hopes to be able to resume work at three of its mines, where the officials say enough men can be had to operate if assured that there will be no interference by the strikers.

Prepare to Resume.

Within the past week three of the largest collieries of the Reading company in the Mahoney district have been put in condition to resume operations. Maple Hill, Tunnel Ridge and North Mahoney collieries are now free of water and obnoxious gases. Nine miles have been brought to the collieries and it is expected an attempt will be made to resume mining this week.

The total losses resulting from the strike are estimated to be $79,080,000.

Of this amount $33,050,000 falls on the operators. The strikers have lost $16,000,000 in wages.

GOLD STRUCK IN GAGE'S MINE

Former Secretary of the Treasury Rewarded for His Faith.

Denver dispatch: Lyman J. Gage, after spending money for twenty-five years on the Brainard Mine at Boulder, has finally struck a rich lead that will more than compensate him for his heavy loss by the decline of silver. The strike was made simultaneously with the arrival of the former secretary at his mine, when gold sulphides in a vein eight feet wide were struck in the Alaska claim. There is a rich pay streak, averaging fifteen inches in width, and it is estimated that the whole vein will run $160 to $200 a ton. For twenty-five years Mr. Gage and Wesley Brainard, his brother-in-law, have been partners in a very considerable enterprise about a mile and a half below the mining camp of Ward. One of the mines, the Moltke, has a very large body of silver ore, and in times past paid immensely.

Oakland, Ill., dispatch: The farmers at Bushton have organized a farmers' co-operative elevator company. The purpose is to protect the interests of the members of the company in the handling of grain. They will build an elevator at Bushton.

STORY OF A FAITHFUL DOG.

Went Hungry All Day in Order to Guard Lost Coin.

A gentleman traveling in Europe had for a companion and faithful friend a most intelligent dog. Before he left his lodgings one morning, with the expectation of being absent until evening, he opened his purse in his room to see whether he had sufficient money for the day's expenses, then went his way, leaving the dog behind him.

Having dined at a coffee-house he took out his purse, and missed a louis d'or, for which he searched diligently, but in vain. Returning home late in the evening, his servant met him with a face expressive of sorrow, and told him that the poor dog was very ill, and had refused to eat anything all day, and what appeared very strange, she would not allow him to take her food away from before her, but had been lying with her nose close to the dish, without attempting to touch it.

Upon the gentleman entering the room the dog instantly jumped upon him, then laid the louis d'or at his feet, after which she immediately began to devour her food ravenously. The truth was now plain to understand. The man had dropped the money in the morning when leaving the room, and the faithful dog, finding it, had held it in her mouth all day until his return enabled her to restore it to his own hands; even refusing her food for a whole day, fearing to let the coin out of her custody.

THE DISEASES OF ALASKA.

Ills Which Trouble Residents of That Section.

An English physician has lately reported on the diseases prevalent in Alaska, after a residence of sixteen months in the country. There are two seasons, winter, the season of pack ice, summer, the season of swamps. The winter lasts for nine months, the summer for three. Among human maladies cerebro-spinal-meningitis is very prevalent, sometimes in epidemic, sometimes in sporadic form. It is often difficult to distinguish from the cerebral form of typhoid. Scorbatus is also widespread. Rheumatism is frequent and usually takes the neuralgic type; inflammatory rheumatism is rare. Pneumonia is almost unknown, strange to say. Affections of the digestion are very frequent, owing to poor food, nervous diseases, such as locomotor ataxia, etc., are also frequent. Alcoholism and the like are prevalent, due to the ennu of the long winter, but, on the whole, intemperance is less harmful in Alaska than in more southern climates. Insanity is by no means rare, and it declares itself most frequently in winter, owing to ennu, absence of occupation, lack of exercise and isolation. Its usual form is acute melancholia, almost always followed by acute mania. Suicidal mania is also frequent. Taken altogether, the catalogue of Alaskan diseases is a long one and indicates that a vigorous physique and morale is required to resist them.

MILES OF VARYING LENGTH.

Measures of Distance Differ Materially in Several Localities.

Among the English-speaking peoples of the earth there are four different miles—the ordinary mile of 5,280 feet and the geographical mile of 6,085 feet, making a difference of about one-seventh between the two; then there are the Scotch mile of 5,928 feet and the Irish mile of 6,720 feet—four various miles, every one of which is still in use. Then almost every country has its own standard mile. The Romans had their mil passuum, 1,000 paces, which must have been about 2,000 feet in length. The German mile to-day is 24,318 feet in length, more than four and a half times as long as ours. The Dutch, Danish and Prussian mile is 18,499 feet, three and a half times as long as ours, and the Swiss get more exercise in walking one of their miles than we get in walking five miles, for their mile is 9,153 yards long.

St. Bernard Saved Life.

A big St. Bernard dog saved the life of Josie Smith, aged nine years, who fell into an open cistern to-day. Passers-by saw the dog sniffing and smelling around the curb, and then saw him disappear through the hole. In a short time they heard muffled barks, and they at once ran to the spot.

They found the noble animal supporting the little girl's head out of the water with its paws, while it kept up a barking for help. The girl was lifted out and then the big dog was assisted from the cistern. The animal followed the girl and watched over her until she was fully restored to consciousness. There was eight feet of water in the cistern.—Toledo Dispatch Cincinnati Enquirer.

ROBERT R. HITT SERIOUSLY ILL

Congressman Is Stricken on the Way to Take a Train for Home.

SPEEDY RECOVERY EXPECTED

Legislator is Suffering From an Attack of Acute Indigestion and Summer Complaint, Which His Doctor Believes Will Soon Disappear.

While on his way to a train at Chicago to return to his home at Mount Morris, Ill., Congressman R. R. Hitt, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs, was taken seriously ill and was forced to return to his hotel.

The legislator is suffering from acute indigestion and summer complaint. Dr. D. R. MacMartin, who is attending him, says several days must elapse before Mr. Hitt can continue his journey.

Has Dizzy Spell.

The congressman had just completed arrangements to return to Mount Morris when he was stricken. A spell of giddiness seized him and it was with some difficulty that he summoned assistance. Dr. Scott of the Stratford was absent from the hotel on a professional visit and Dr. MacMartin of the Great Northern was summoned.

Mr. Hitt was determined to carry out his plans and after prescribing for him Dr. MacMartin called a carriage and the two started for the Union depot.

Returns to Hotel.

The vehicle had proceeded scarcely three blocks when Mr. Hitt grew worse and in spite of his protests the doctor ordered the driver to hasten back to the hotel.

As he was leaving the cab Mr. Hitt again became faint and only the outstretched arm of the doctor prevented him from falling to the sidewalk. He was hurried to his room and a professional nurse was summoned.

Dr. MacMartin, when asked for his opinion of the congressman's illness, said:

Attack is Sudden.

"He is suffering acutely. The attack was quite sudden and was more severe for that reason. The giddiness to which Mr. Hitt was subject is natural in such cases, but there is no danger of any complications of the heart. His advanced age caused him to give way before an attack which a younger man could have withstood. I confidently expect that with the good care he is getting he will be all right in a day or two."

Congressman Hitt is 66 years old and has been a member of congress since 1881.

FARMERS HOLD A BIG PICNIC

Discuss Illinois Crops and Express Doubt as to Late Corn.

Sycamore, Ill., dispatch: The twentieth annual farmers' picnic was held in S. S. Man's grove in Burlington. Fully 25,000 people were present. The day was spent partly in discussing the crops. It was decided that the oats were fair and that the early corn would be saved if frost kept off till October. The late corn, it was argued, would have to be blanketed if saved at all. One-third of the acreage of corn was destroyed by heavy rains.

EUROPE SELLS HEATHEN IDOLS.

Practice Carried on by Many Civilized Nations.

European enterprise is furnishing Africa with its heathen idols! It is an actual fact that the hideous images which the African savage worships are now being made at factories in England, at Nimes in France, and at Griez in Germany. The firm that deals in these strange gods has its headquarters at Zanguebar, where it does a thriving business. The natives pay for the European-made gods with ivory, palms, maize, nuts, gold and cattle. They pay at the exorbitant rates, too, which the white man has always exacted from the unsophisticated savage.

The merchandise paid for a single god varies in value all the way from $250 to $5,000.

The tribes of the Senegambian district in Africa, particularly, believe that they propitiate their gods by having their images made in rich metals. A chief will readily pay 500 barrels of palm oil, worth $125 a ton, for a fetish in the shape of a gold monster with a fiendish head or for a serpent with three heads affixed to a long pole of ivory.

Couldn't Live Without Them.

New York City, Aug. 18th.—Mr. Charles Back of 64 Rue de la Victorie, Paris, France, relates a most interesting experience:

"Ever since I was about three years of age I have suffered severely with Kidney Disease.

"Last year I spent some time at the baths at Carlsbad (Bohemia), but I came back after five weeks' treatment with a severe pain still in my Kidneys.

"My doctors in Paris and Hamburg could do nothing for me.

"I was obliged to start from Paris to Montreal, Canada, and when I arrived in the Canadian city I was half dead.

"I read an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills in a newspaper there and began to use this remedy and after two days' treatment I felt that my pains were leaving me and in a week I had no pains at all.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wonderful remedy in the world. I keep them always with me for I believe I could not live without them."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Ironing a Shirt Waist.

Not infrequently a young woman finds it necessary to launder a shirt waist at home for some emergency when the laundryman or the home servant cannot do it. Hence these directions for ironing the waist: To iron summer shirt waists so that they will look like new it is needful to have them starched evenly with Defiance starch, then made perfectly smooth and rolled tight in a damp cloth, to be laid away two or three hours. When ironing have a bowl of water and a clean piece of muslin beside the ironing board. Have your iron hot, but not sufficiently so to scorch, and absolutely clean. Begin by ironing the back, then the front, sides and the sleeves, followed by the neckband and the cuffs. When wrinkles appear apply the damp cloth and remove them. Always iron from the top of the waist to the bottom. If there are plaits in the front iron them downward, after first raising each one with a blunt knife, and with the edge of the iron follow every line of stitching to give it distinctness. After the shirt waist is ironed it should be well aired by the fire or in the sun before it is folded and put away, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The question of a return to an aboriginal clothing—or lack of clothing—is becoming active. We are well advanced toward shirt waists for both sexes show a tendency to stop above the elbow. Children are discarding shoes for sandals, and a crusade has been started against hats. Why wear hats, anyway? We are told that their chief effect is to make one baldheaded, and that if a person would do without them, and expose the head to the sun and air, he would be rewarded with a fine thatch of hair that would afford all the warmth needed for the average brain. But if this thing goes on we are liable to get back to the fig leaf, and then we shall be forced to the disagreeable resort to a tariff on figs in order to produce our own supply of clothing.

Held to the Grand Jury.

Tuesday morning Fred Roloff was held to the Cook county grand jury in bonds of $1,000, the charge being robbery. It will be remembered that some two months ago an agent of the Chicago Merchandise company sold to Roloff an assortment of goods, Roloff signing an order for the same. Roloff formed an opinion that there was a colored man in the woodpile and desired to recover the signed order. The agent appeared here a few days later when Roloff met him and requested a few moments conversation. The two went to Schwemm's livery barn and Roloff asked to see the order blank he had signed. The agent produced a large pocketbook containing papers and; it is alleged, nearly $100 in bank bills. It is charged that Fred Roloff grabbed the book and ran away with it. A little son of the agent witnessed the act and followed Roloff crying out "that man has taken papa's big book and all his money!" A number of citizens witnessed the sprinting of Roloff and it is said that several papers which the book contained, were found in the wake of the runner. Mr. Roloff says he is innocent of the act. The September grand jury will consider the matter.

Another Veteran Gone.

John Wesley Acker, well known to many Barrington people, especially to veterans of the civil war, died at his home at Grayslake, Sunday, his death resulting from a stroke of paralysis. Mr. Acker was 65 years of age and leaves a widow but no children.

"Wes" Acker, as he was familiarly known, was a veteran of the civil war serving through the struggle in Co. I, 52nd Illinois infantry, Capt. Wilburn commanding, being one of the number of recruits from this vicinity who enlisted with the men at Dundee. Leroy Powers of this village was a comrade in the same company.

At the close of the war Mr. Acker returned to Illinois and located in Elgin, being employed for several years at the watch factory. When the free delivery of mail by carrier was instituted in Elgin Mr. Acker was one of the original force. He served in that position for a number of years and resigned to remove to Lake county, taking his residence at Grayslake. He was at one time a member of Veteran Post G. A. R., but transferred his membership to Wauconda Post. His wife was a resident of Barrington at one time, her parents residing on the property now owned by Wm. Grunau. Mrs. Acker has the sympathy of the host of friends of John Acker.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

Of Lake County Preparing for Annual Reunion at Grayslake.

The arrangements for the annual reunion of Lake county soldiers and sailors to be held at Grayslake, next Wednesday and Thursday, are about complete. The people of that progressive village will provide the best of everything and the weather being favorable there will be a large attendance. The list of speakers is headed by two of the most brilliant orators in this part of the country, General Jno. C. Black and Judge R. S. Tuttle of Chicago. The musical features will be vocal selections by the Grayslake quartet and a company of colored minstrels who will also be a feature of the camp fire Wednesday evening. The instrumental numbers will be furnished by the Young Ladies' brass and reed band of Barrington. The Veteran Drum corps of Waukegan will be present.

The reunion promises to be an event of more than ordinary interest to the veterans of Lake county and should attract a large number of visitors. The Ladies' band of this village will prove a leading attraction and should be accompanied by a large delegation.

What Is The Farm Fit For?

A word to the restless people—to, the fast and feverish age;
 A perfect manhood is better than any wealth or wage.
 Some are for gold—some, glitter; but tell me, tell me, when
 Will we stand for the farm and the college that go for the making of men?
 Yes, what is the old farm fit for? The word is wisely said;
 There may be stumps in the pasture and the house may be ashed;
 But what if a Lincoln or Garfield be here in this boy of ten?
 And what should the farm be fit for, if not the raising of men?

'Tis a scanty soil for a seeding, but here we win our bread,
 And a stout heart may grow stronger where plow and harrow are sped;
 Then break up the bleak, high hillside and trench the swamp and fen—
 For what should the farm be fit for, if not the raising of men?
 The crop by the frost is blighted, a niggard the season seems;
 Yet the ready hand finds duties and the heart of youth has dreams—
 The bar and the senate tomorrow; tomorrow the sword or the pen;
 For what should the farm be fit for, if not for the raising of men?
 And what if our lot be humbler—if we on the farm abide?
 There is room for noble living and the realm of thought is wide;
 A mind enriched is a fortune—and you will know it—when
 You see that the farm is fit for the rearing of noble men.

WILL BE A WARM ONE.

Lake County Republican Convention at Grayslake Tomorrow—Large Number of Candidates.

The republicans of Lake county are called to meet in convention at Grayslake tomorrow and the large number of aspirants for the five county offices give promise of injecting into the proceedings no small amount of excitement and interest to those who enjoy political skirmishing. The affair is "not arranged" in the interest of any candidate or clique. Candidates represent every section of the county, some of the townships presenting five favorites. As a nomination is equivalent to an election the struggle promises an entertainment worth going to witness.

The convention will be composed of 193 delegates, 97 being necessary to choice. Waukegan has 61 delegates, and by making a combination with Antioch, which has 15; Warren 8; Elia 6; Wauconda 7 or Cuba 6, can control the convention and carry through any slate they may arrange. This may not be the program but Waukegan being the chief city in the county naturally wants the lion's share. The country towns, that is a number of them, will make vigorous objection to any such arrangement, and the delegates from Shields and Deerfield are expected to lead the opposition.

The officers to be named are County Judge, County Clerk, Sheriff, Superintendent of Schools and Treasurer. For the office of judge there are four known candidates and a string of dark horses. The present incumbent, D. L. Jones, has an excellent record and it seems to be the general opinion that he will be renominated.

For county clerk A. L. Hendee, who has served the county for four terms, has no active opposition. His services are so satisfactory as a public official and his standing as a man is so high that he merits, and no doubt will receive the unanimous endorsement of the convention.

For sheriff there are a number of candidates, all good men for the place, and it will require more than one ballot to choose. For treasurer the western part of the county will present one or two candidates, Deerfield township has a favorite son and the present officer, Geo. N. Gridley, asks a renomination. Mr. Gridley will have but slim support if surface indications are to be relied upon. It is not improbable that several dark horses will be trotted out in this race.

For superintendent of schools there are several candidates and a warm skirmish for the nomination is predicted. Taken as a whole the convention promises to be entertaining from start to finish.

The Review Not a Yellow Journal.

The following query has been sent to this office. While it is not necessary to again define the attitude of The Review, regarding certain matters termed by some "news," we shall, for the benefit of our readers, state what we consider the duty of the editor of a country weekly and why sensational news should have no place in the columns of The Review:

To the Editor:—
 There are numerous bits of news in circulation about the village that you don't seem to "catch on to." There are so many different versions of each story that its mighty hard to tell which is right. Couldn't the newspaper put the public on the right track? Aint that part of the paper's business?

No, it's not the business of a reputable newspaper. The mission of a newspaper is to keep the character of its column pure, fresh and healthy. An editor should think twice before he prints. There are numerous items going the rounds "that we don't catch on to," because we have other and better business to attend to. Criminal news should be told. Public policy and general welfare of the community demand that evildoers be exposed, but there is a right way and wrong way of presenting the facts to the public; no detail should be reported which shames sensitive virtue. We admit that it is the stories of sin, vice and scandal that makes some papers sell; we admit that a great number of people who claim to be Christians and brag of their refinement and high ideals, relish such trash and rejoice in the downfall of a brother or sister, but that is no reason why their appetites should be satisfied. We believe that it is the duty of the local paper to try and make the picture of local happenings as attractive as possible, coloring the unattractive and adorning the beautiful. We believe the golden rule should be followed in the conduct of a newspaper and are willing to throw the mantle of charity over the faults of any erring one—to do unto others as we would have others do unto us. The Review is a family newspaper and not the mouthpiece of a set of scandal-mongers.
