The Woman's Relief Corps gave an ice cream social on J. H. Schirding's lawn last Tuesday night, and an excellent quality of ice cream and cake was served. Although a cool evening, the ladies managed to sell their cream and put something into the treasury.

We'll be gosh darned if we haint gettin' to be old-fashioned country folk again. We saw some Chicago gals a walkin' on our streets 't'other day without a shoe nor stocking on their feet, and we'll be comswaddled if that story about Chicago feet haint jest about right. They were the biggest 18-yearling feet ever seen in this here burg. It takes these city gals to show us country people things.

Mary F. Johnston.

Mary F. Johnston, daughter of John and Lillis Patten, was born at Sanborn Bridge, N. H., Aug. 19, 1847. Died July 19, 1903, aged 55 years and 11 months.

In the year 1852 the family, consisting of one son and four daughters, all of the latter now dead, came west and located on a farm at Plum Grove, near Palatine, moving to the village of Palatine five years later. Mrs. Johnston passed her early days here, and was married to John Johnston of Cincinnati June 30, 1875. Her husband died May 6, 1886, at Kansas City, Mo. For the past six years Mrs. Johnston has resided at the home of Mrs. J. Bissell and assisted her brother in his business in the bank. She had suffered at times for several years, and was taken to the hospital a few weeks ago, where the best of medical skill and care were given her, but she passed away last Sunday. The funeral services were held at the home of H. C. Patten last Tuesday, Rev. D. J. Holmes of the Methodist church officiating. The remains were laid to rest in the family lot in Hillside cemetery.

An Old-Time Swindle.

War is being waged by the city sealer of Chicago against fruit dealers who use baskets that have false bottoms or in which the contents are bolstered up by paper packing. Also against the pink-netting covering that aids so much in making un-ripened fruit look attractive.

This system of robbery is by no means new, nor is it confined to the Chicago dealers. Dealers in small towns are not averse to doing the same kind of business. The latest scheme is to place the peach, pear or plum in a stiff paper cornucopia, the rosy side up, and thereby hoodwink the purchaser.

It would seem that a patron once defrauded would not bite again, but observation proves that the more you humbug the American people the better they like it.

Suicide at Algonquin.

As the result of constant quarreling with her husband Mrs. Julius Voight of Algonquin, committed suicide yesterday. She called her eight children together, kissed them all goodby and then swallowed a teaspoonful of strychnine, with the parting words, "Life is a burden."

Catholic Parish for Wauconda.

Archbishop Quigley has appointed pastors for worshippers formerly grouped in several mission congregations. Two new parishes have been created and priests ordained and assigned as pastors. One of these is the Church of the Transfiguration at Wauconda, formerly an out mission of St. Patrick's church of Chicago, which will be attended to by the Rev. Stephen Woulfe, who has been assistant at St. Malachy's church, Western avenue and Walnut street, Chicago.

Selected a Quiet Place.

A sensible young lady of Kansas made the following request of her friend: "Do not lay me down by the rippling brookside, lest the babbling lovers wake me from my dreams, nor in the beautiful cemeteries in the valleys lest sightseers cooing over epitaphs distract me; but let me sleep under the counter of the merchant and business man who never advertises. There is the peace that passeth all understanding, and deep is the sleep in which neither the buoyant footfall of youth nor the weary shuffle of old age will ever intrude."

Postmaster in Trouble.

Charged with having altered his accounts so that he would get more commission from the government, Edward J. Graham, postmaster at Windmere, Ill., was arrested July 16th. Postoffice Inspector Dement said he found discrepancies in the books which indicated that the postmaster had padded his cancellation accounts at intervals in the six months prior to June 30.

Mr. Graham waived examination when taken before United States Commissioner Foote at Chicago, and was held to the federal grand jury.

The Philosophy of Mistakes.

Dead men never make mistakes. He who never makes a mistake never makes anything.

Wise men make mistakes; fools continue to make mistakes.

A thought of one's own mistakes will soften criticism of others' mistakes.

Get wise when you make a mistake; the only crime in making a mistake is making the same one twice.

The man who learns life's lessons without making mistakes is getting his tuition at reduced rates.

The trouble with the man who never makes mistakes, says an exchange, is that he doesn't know a mistake when he makes one.

A CONTENTED VILLAGE

Dunbarton, Merrimack County, New Hampshire, Nearly Isolated.

Has no Railroad, Lawyer, Telegraph or Newspaper.

There are many quaint spots in the New England States—villages and hamlets almost hidden from the sight of the busy world, still whose people are happy and contented.

Frank Meade, a friend and former co-worker of C. H. Morrison of this office, is touring the states of New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine this summer in the interests of a Chicago publishing house, and in a personal letter tells much that is of interest about that section of earth and the people who live there. We extract a few paragraphs.

"To transplant a man who has been engaged for years in writing 'boom stories' for the hustling, bustling villages of the progressive west, into the sleepy hamlets of original Yankeeedom is a transition appreciated by him who has never enjoyed contentment. Here there is no worry as to the present and every inhabitant has 'laid up treasures above,' and is satisfied with the outlook for the future life.

"You are familiar with the history of the New England states and the people who are characterized as 'down east Yankees,' but the histories and such dramas as 'Alvin Joslin,' 'Way Down East,' 'Old Homestead' and others while illustrating the life and customs of New England, don't tell one half. You must get amongst 'em and hobnob with a David Harum, a typical Josh Whitcomb or a character as impersonated in Hoyt's 'Temperance Town' if you would view New England life.

"I used to think that authors and playwrights had greatly exaggerated the characters they produced as typical of this part of the union. But the same prototypes are here.

"How the people can bury themselves in a secluded spot, as many do, and be happy and content is a puzzle to me who has lived on the excitement furnished by western cities for so many years. Just to illustrate.

"I was at Concord, N. H., last week and business called me into the country adjacent. Nine miles from the state capital I discovered the village of Dunbarton, one of the oddest rural settlements I ever visited, and one of the oldest settlements in the state. It dates back to 1700 and there are residents there now who have passed the century mark by several years. There I was shown dwellings constructed before the war of the revolution still in a good state of preservation. There I found old men and women who had never set foot outside the little hamlet. I was told that a few years prior to the revolutionary war the place boasted of 500 inhabitants and its promoters proclaimed it as a rival to Concord. Now it has a population of 520, so its growth has been as steady as the habits of its people.

"There is no means of Dunbartonians communicating with the outside world except by stage, although it is only a few miles from Concord. It has no telegraph line though a telephone line is in operation. I was told that no undertaker or physician or lawyer made a home there; that their services were seldom necessary. At one time the place boasted of a tonsorial artist but he starved to death as did the reckless individual who started a newspaper. The village has no modern improvements and not a secret society except the Sons of Temperance. Not a saloon or 'blind pig;' not a billiard table or soda fountain. It is unnecessary to say that politically the place is republican almost solid.

"Dunbarton is only one of those sleepy, ancient and contented villages which remain to remind us of the days when King George oppressed the colonies."

Booming an Ex-Governor.

The Bloomington Pantagraph has discovered a candidate for governor who, it declares, "will unite all factions of the republican party. That man is Ex-governor Joseph Fifer.

The Pantagraph prints a lengthy editorial under the heading "Ex-Governor Fifer—Why isn't he the solution of the present Republican problem," and among many other things says:

"Why wouldn't his nomination for governor at this time, more than any other man, tend to bring about greater harmony in the party?"

"It is insisted by good thinkers in the party that this move would bring about the old time condition of concord, and furthermore they contend that unless this can be accomplished by the naming of the right man at this time there is grave fear that the success of our party in the state may be endangered. It is insisted that if the people were given an opportunity to express their actual preference, without the interference or manipulation of political combinations, the illustrious son of McLean county would be the emphatic choice of a very great majority.

"The naming of Joseph W. Fifer does not require a certificate of fitness, nor a bond for good behavior, He has been tried and the people know just what to expect."

Mr. Fifer may be the "solution of the present republican problem," as the Pantagraph says but the present administration proposes, it says, "to occupy the state house four years more or turn the control over to the enemy of the party." If the people will rise in their might the "problem" can be solved with any good candidate.

AN IMPORTANT MATTER.

The Question of Drainage Brought Before the Village Board.

The village board of trustees held an adjourned session Monday evening, and one matter of importance was brought up and referred to the committee on drainage.

For some time past complaints have been common as to the condition of the creek into which several drains from the village empties. Nothing so far has been done to remedy the nuisance, but it is now up to the board to take action.

The committee to whom the matter was referred will endeavor to have the C. & N. W. and E., J. & E. railway companies make some provision to take care of the sewerage that flows across the right of way of said roads at the junction west of the village. Should the companies mentioned neglect to give the matter attention the authorities must do something. The health of the village demands that the creek into which the drains empty be dredged and an outlet made. At present the water in the little stream is stagnant, causing remonstrances from the owners of property west of here.

The question of drainage is one that demands immediate attention. It is not a matter of dollars and cents, but a matter of public welfare.

A. W. Meyer petitioned the board to vacate the alley which is located south of the C. & N. W. railway tracks adjoining his property, the tract which the Bowman Dairy Company talk of purchasing. The matter was referred to the committee on streets.

Rev. James F. Clancy.

Many of our people will regret to read of the death of Rev. James F. Clancy, at one time pastor of St. Ann's Catholic church in this village. Father Clancy died at St. Joseph hospital, Chicago, Saturday, July 18, and the funeral was held at Immaculate Conception church Monday morning, conducted by deceased's brother, Father Patrick Clancy, of Chicago and very Rev. M. J. Fitzsimmons, rector of the Holy Name Cathedral, assisted by a number of priests of Chicago diocese.

Father Clancy was for a number of years pastor of St. Mary's church at Woodstock, and served this parish faithfully and well. He was highly esteemed by all classes, and an earnest worker in the Catholic faith.

Must Pay Tax Where They Vote.

The supreme court of Illinois has recently decided that retired farmers and others must assess their personal property in the townships in which they vote. The question was raised by the practice of a number of farmers residing in the cities in the northern part of this state, who kept one or more horses and other domestic animals, and because the rate of taxation was higher in the city would have the property listed for the town where their farm was located. If a farmer does this, he must hold his citizenship on the farm and go to the town where it is located to vote. This takes from him the rights of a citizen of the municipality where he resides and also his school privileges.

POPE LEO XIII IS DEAD

Head of the Roman Catholic Church Expired at the Vatican July 20—End of a Long Career Filled With Brilliant Achievements.

Pope Leo XIII is dead. The last flicker of life expired at four minutes past 4 o'clock on the afternoon of July 20, and the pontiff now lies at rest.

Cardinal Oreglia, senior member of the sacred college, is for the time being, the pope, and is in absolute command in the vatican.

The period of over two weeks that Pope Leo passed in the shadow of death was no less wonderful than his life. His splendid battle against disease was watched the world over with sympathetic admiration, and ended only after a series of tremendous efforts to conquer the weakness of his aged frame by the marvelous will power of his mind. The pleuro-pneumonia with which his holiness had been suffering was scarcely so responsible for his death as that inevitable decay of tissue which ensues upon 93 years of life. The tested steel which had bent so often before human ills was bound to break at last.

The emaciated and lifeless frame which held so brave a spirit lay on Boniface VIII. He was a member of an old and illustrious family of Siena.

His youth was a series of academical triumphs. Perhaps he might have remained a scholar and nothing more, but in the third decade of his life he fell under the influence—one would rather say rose to the influence—of the famous Cardinal Odescalchi, a man who in another age might have played the great part of Ignatius Loyola. He was ordained priest on December 23, 1837, being already a lay prelate in the household of Gregory XVI. He was appointed one of the domestic chaplains to Pope Gregory on March 16, 1837.

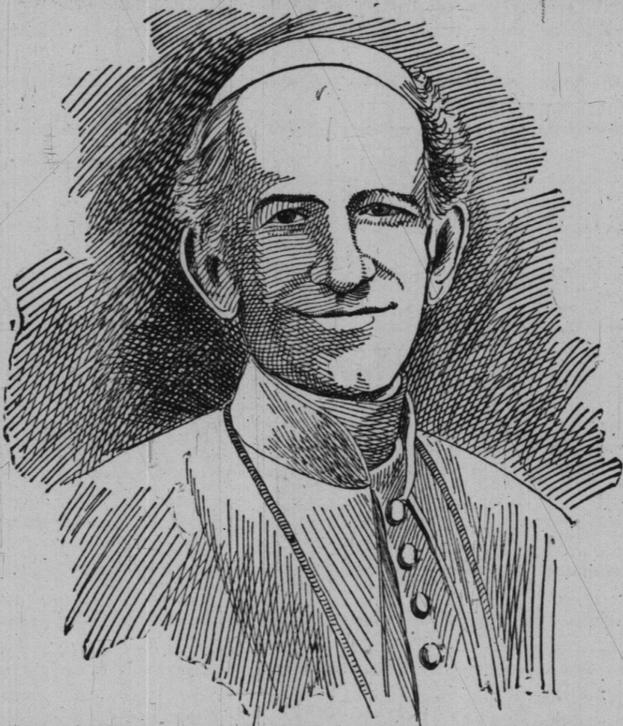

In 1838 he was sent to govern the delegation (province) of Benevento. From Benevento Pecci was transferred to the important province of Perugia, where he conducted himself with similar boldness and integrity. He was then nominated to be apostolic delegate at Spoleto, but never entered on that charge, for he was dispatched to Belgium in 1843 to act as nuncio to Brussels. At the same time he was created archbishop of Damlatia in partibus infidelium. On and in putting the holy see into friendly relations with republican France showed his skillfulness and rare diplomatic sense. As prince of peace he was called upon to settle the most difficult problems. Under his guidance the bitter Kulturkampf that raged in Germany since the year 1870 was ended.

Plus IX had left the Vatican at war with almost every foreign power. Leo XIII set to work to restore amicable relations with them. Besides ending the "Kulturkampf" in Germany and securing repeal of all objectionable features in the Falk law, he made his church a power in Lutheran Prussia as well as in southern Germany and gained such a footing that Emperor William, who several times visited him at the Vatican, had to appeal to the holy see whenever he needed in the reichstag the votes of the powerful Catholic party.

In April, 1883, Leo XIII issued a decree against the Parnellite "plan of campaign" and against boycotting the cardinals of the supreme congregation of the inquisition having decided adversely to such means of warfare.

BORN MARCH 2, 1810

bed in the vatican beside which almost all the world has prayed. The red damask coverlet rested lightly over the body, the cardinal's scarlet cape was about the shoulders, while on his head had been placed the papal hood of velvet, bordered with ermine. A white silk handkerchief was bound about his chin, and in the hands which had blessed so many thousands had been placed a crucifix. He was watched by uniformed officers of the noble guard and rough-clad Franciscan penitentiaries, who keep a ceaseless vigil until the burial ceremonies.

The sacred college of cardinals assembled Tuesday for the ceremony of officially pronouncing Pope Leo dead. After this sad function had been performed, the body was taken to the small throneroom adjoining the death chamber, where it was embalmed. The funeral ceremonies will extend over nine days, the remains being removed to the Cathedral of St. Peter's, where they will lie in state. The ultimate resting place of the dead pontiff will be in the magnificent basilica of St. John the Lateran.

LONG ACTIVE LIFE ENDS.

Wonderful Career of Late Occupant of the Papal Throne. The Pope was stricken with his fatal illness on July 2. Report of it was denied at first, but two days later it was admitted by the Vatican physicians with an announcement that he had pneumonia. Since then physicians have fought with death every hour of every day. Leo (Gioachino Pecci) ascended the throne of St. Peter at the age of 68. He was born on March 2, 1810, at Carpineto, in the diocese of Campagna, Italy, already famous as the birthplace of four Popes—Innocent III, Gregory IX, Alexander IV, and

Dec. 10, 1853, Pecci was created cardinal. On July 8, 1877, he succeeded Cardinal de Angelis as camerlengo, or high chamberlain of the Roman church. In this position he displayed the same firmness and activity that had characterized his lifelong connection with the church.

Pope Pius IV. died on Feb. 7, 1878. Pecci, in his capacity as camerlengo, acted as head of the church in temporal matters, made the arrangements for the obsequies of Pope Pius, received the Catholic ambassadors and superintended the preparations for the conclave. Sixty-two cardinals attended the conclave which was held Feb. 18, 1878. The sacred college was divided into two parties. One, called the "zealots," was led by Cardinal Billo, and the second, the "moderates," by Cardinal Pecci. There were three ballots. On the third ballot Cardinal Pecci received 44 votes, two more than the necessary majority.

After 1888 Leo XIII appeared to have abandoned hope of achieving much by a conciliatory attitude toward the Quirinal. There was no marked reaction from the former policy, but only a cessation of effort. Many of the good results of the former policy remain and the death of Leo XIII leaves the Vatican and the Quirinal nearer than they have been at any time since the Castle of San Angelo was captured by the troops of the first Victor Emmanuel.

Leo XIII. gained for the Catholic church a proud position in the world, not only as prince of the church, but as prince of peace. Europe acknowledged that for many decades no such far-seeing head as Leo XIII had worn the triple crown, and that, excepting Prince Bismarck, no statesman in Europe had shown such skill in the most delicate diplomatic negotiations as the late pope. His successes in his negotiations with the German chancellor and the remarkable foresight shown in his dealings with Spain

The promulgation of this edict called forth a strong protest from Ireland. In July, 1888, he issued his famous encyclical on "Liberty." In 1889 he issued his encyclical against socialism and on the labor question. In 1880 he pleaded for church unity, and in 1891 he gave forth his famous encyclical on labor.

In January, 1895, the pope's long expected encyclical to the church in this country was made public. Mgr. Satolli was appointed apostolic delegate to America in January, 1893, which position he held until his election as cardinal, when he was succeeded by Archbishop Martinelli, and his encyclical the full scope of his work was defined. In this document his holiness also expressed disapproval of labor riots, and further discussed the relations of Catholics to secret societies and of journalists to the bishops.

In February, 1899, the pope started the entire Roman Catholic world in his open letter to Archbishop Ireland, then in Rome in response to a papal summons, wherein the holy father expressed disapproval of what the French and Italian clergy had termed "Americanism" among the faithful in the United States. A translation of "The Life of Father Hecker," founder of the Paulist order in New York, had given occasion to the charge that a portion of the American hierarchy leaned too much toward a liberal policy in church discipline and to innovations in religious rule that seemed to threaten the integrity of Roman Catholic doctrine. The friends of the Paulists insisted that the French translations had done serious injustice to the views really held by Father Hecker and his biographer, as well as by those members of the Roman Catholic hierarchy who had approved of them. They claimed that there was nothing in the pope's letter which really condemned their teachings, but only the French misunderstanding of those teachings.

BY HIS OWN WORDS.

The young minister had got his first charge, and when he conducted the services for the first time in his church before the large and critical congregation he acquitted himself very well and his sermon was evidently well liked. Still, underneath his smooth and glossy new coat his heart was beating with a painful nervousness, and when the sermon was over and he began to read the usual notices he was so hurried despite his outward calm that he overlooked the notice of the mothers' meeting.

He was about to announce the last hymn when the old deacon, who liked the young man very much, came down the aisle and whispered to him not to forget the notice. "You must please the women, you know," said the wise old man.

The young minister blushed and read the notice, and then turned to the hymn, the first line of which he read aloud, as was the custom of the church. And then he blushed harder than ever, and the congregation could not forbear to smile. The line ran: "Lord, what a thoughtless wretch am I."

He Feels Good.

Caddo, Ky., July 20th.—"I believe I could climb a mountain without drawing a long breath" is the way William Ball of this place describes how he is feeling.

As Mr. Ball has been on the sick list for a long time, this declaration from him comes as quite a surprise.

When asked to explain how he had become so strong in such a short time, he says:

"I did have Kidney Trouble very bad, in fact I had to get up four or five times every night to urinate. I had shortness of breath which distressed me terribly. I was badly used up, and was really of no account for anything."

"I used three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and that's what has made me well. I can sleep all night without having to get up. I feel splendid and as I said before, I believe I could climb a mountain without drawing a long breath. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it all."

Oldest West Point Graduate.

The oldest graduate of West Point is Col. John Beardsley, now living in Athens, N. Y. He was born in Fairfield, N. Y., in 1816, and graduated from West Point in the class of 1841. He was appointed lieutenant in the Eighth regiment of infantry, served in the Seminole war in Florida, afterward in the war with Mexico, and was wounded in the battle of Molino del Rey, and compelled to resign his commission on account of inflammation of his eyes, which threatened loss of sight. When the civil war broke out he was appointed colonel of the Ninth New York volunteer cavalry and served as such.

The Face of the Ruler.

In England a subject if he wishes to have a portrait of his majesty must buy one. In France every peasant and artisan is compelled to look upon that of the president each time he votes at an election or marries a wife or registers a birth in the mairie. The first act of the Minister of the Interior after the election of a new president is to request him to have his portrait taken, that it may be reproduced and exhibited in the 40,000 communes of France and Algeria.

CHAPTER XV.

The Fate of Lord Cluny Neville.

On tides of glory England was borne the next three years, to a national honor and strength which had never before been dreamed of. Never in her whole history had the government been at once so thorough and so penetrated with a desire for honesty and capacity. For the first time, the sense of social duty to the state took the place of the old spirit of loyalty to the sovereign. For the first time and only time in the history of Europe, morality and religion were the qualifications insisted on by a court.

In the meantime Spain was helping Charles with money which was spent in plots to assassinate the Protector. The effect of this was several petitions and addresses offered in Parliament begging Cromwell to assume the ancient office of King, if only for the settlement of the nation. He was quite strong enough to have taken it, and there was nothing unmanly either in his desire for the crown or in his refusal of it. One thing he knew well, that the title of King would take all meaning out of the Puritan revolution, and he could not so break with his own past, with his own spiritual life, and with the godly men who had so faithfully followed and so fully trusted him.

Why should he fret himself about a mere word? All real power was in his hands; the army and the navy, the churches and the universities, the reform and administration of the law, and government of Scotland and of Ireland. Abroad, the war with all its details, the alliance with Sweden, with France, with the Protestant princes of Germany, the Protestant Protectorate extending as far as Transylvania, the "planting" of the West Indies, the settlement of the American Colonies, and their defense against their rivals, the French—all these subjects were Cromwell's daily cares.

"To be a king is not in my commission," he said to Doctor Verity. "It squares not with my call or my conscience. I will not fadge with the question again; no, not for an hour."

These three years were full of glory and romance, and the poorest family in England lived through an epic of such national grandeur as few generations have witnessed. Yet, amid it all, the simple domestic lives of men and women went calmly on, and birth, marriage, and death made rich or barren their homes. Jane Swaffham had long been able to think of Cluny—not as lying in a bloody grave, but as one of the Sons of God among the Hosts of Heaven. And this consolation accepted, she had begun to study Latin and mathematics with Doctor Verity and to give her love and her service to all.

Matilda's life during this interval had been cramped and saddened by the inheritance from her previous years. Really loving Cymlin, she could not disentangle the many threads binding her to the old unfortunate passion, for, having become wealthy, the Stuarts would not resign their claim upon her. Thus she was compelled, often against her will, to be aware of plots for the assassination of Cromwell—plots which shocked her moral sense, and which generally seemed to her intelligence exceedingly foolish and useless.

She loved Cymlin, but she feared to marry him. She feared the reproaches of Rupert, who, though he made no effort to consummate their long engagement was furiously indignant if she spoke of ending it. Then, also, she had fears connected with Cymlin. When very young he had begun to save money in order to make himself a possible suitor for Matilda's hand. In the Irish campaign he had been exceedingly fortunate; he had bought and sold estates, and exchanged prisoners for specie, and in other ways so manipulated his chances that in every case they had left behind a golden residuum. Jane had told Matilda two years previously that Cymlin was richer than his father, and she might have said more than this and been within the truth.

But in this rapid accumulation of wealth, Cymlin had developed the love of wealth. Matilda knew that if she would carry out her intention of making over de Wick house and land to Stephen, it must be done before she married Cymlin. Yet if she surrendered it to Stephen under present circumstances, everything would go, in some way or other, to the needy, beggarly Stuart Court.

She was fretfully thinking over this dilemma in its relation to a new plot against Cromwell's life, when Jane Swaffham visited her one morning in February of 1658. Jane's smiling serenity aggravated her restless temper. "Does nothing on earth ever give you an unhappy thought, Jane?" she asked. "You look as if you dwelt in Paradise."

"I only have to tell you there is another plot."

"I have nothing to do with it."

"Some one, you know may be in danger."

"Stephen is at Cologne. If you are thinking of Stephen, thank you. I will write and tell him to keep good hope in his heart, that Jane Swaffham remembers him."

"Dear Matilda, do not make mock of my kindness. The Protector's patience is worn out with this foolish animosity. He is generous and merciful to no purpose. I myself think it is high time he ceased to warn, and begin to punish."

"My dear sweet Jane, the Cromwells are in their kingdom now; I do not pretend to keep foot with them—and I have troubles of my own; pray God they be not too many for me!"

It was evident Matilda was not in an amiable mood, and Jane having said the few words that brought her to Jersey House that morning, left her friend. She went away with a troubled look, and Matilda watched the change and smiled to herself at it. "I am quite content to have her made a little unhappy," she thought. "On my honor! Jane looks younger and prettier than when Neville was alive and worrying her. Lovers die and husbands die, and 'tis a common calamity, and better people than Jane have endured it. I will go now to my aunt's parlor." She found there an acquaintance whom had known in Paris, the Countess Gervais.

"I have but now sent a messenger for you, Matilda," said Lady Jevity. "The Countess desired greatly to see you." Then the conversation became reminiscent, and the new plot was not named, and Matilda began to be bored. Suddenly, however, her interest was raised to the highest pitch, for the Countess, touching a bracelet which Lady Jevity wore, said:

"I must tell you a strange thing. I was lately at a dinner where the niece of his Eminence, Cardinal Mazarin, sat at my side. And she wore a necklace and brooch and one bracelet precisely like the bracelet you are now wearing. I cannot help noticing the circumstance, because the jewelry is so exceedingly singular and beautiful."

"Yes," replied Lady Jevity. "And what you say is also very curious, for I once possessed a necklace, brooch and two bracelets like the one I am now wearing. All the pieces were lost excepting this bracelet."

"But how?—let me inquire; where were they lost?"

"Somewhere near Paris. I had entrusted them to a friend who has never since been heard of."

"But the bracelet you are wearing?—this is so singular—you will please pardon—"

"This bracelet," said Lady Jevity, "was more fortunate. Some of the gems were loose and I sent it to my jeweler for repair, just before we left for Paris. He was to forward it to me if he found a safe messenger; luckily he kept it until I returned to London."

"But this is most strange—most strange—"

"Most strange and most suspicious," said Matilda indignantly. "I should say it was evidence that Lord Neville was murdered, and that his Eminence bought jewelry for Hortense Mancini in some irregular way. If I were Lady Jevity, I would insist on knowing from whom."

"Oh, you do make one great mistake, I do assure you! Mademoiselle Mancini is impeccable. You must rest content that the jewels came into her possession in the most correct manner."

Barely listening to these words, Matilda curtsied and abruptly left the room. All now seemed plain to her intelligence. Rupert had lied to her. He had slain and robbed Neville, and the jewels had been sold to Mazarin.

A sudden passion of pity for the handsome young lord came over her. "It was too mean, too savagely cruel for anything!" she almost sobbed. "Men who can do such things are not fit to be loved by women. They are brutes. I will write to Rupert at once. I must know the truth of this matter. If such a crime has been committed, there is no king or prince or priest on earth to absolve it, and I shall wash my hands forever of the Stuarts."

She did not wait for any second or more prudent thoughts. She wrote Rupert that hour a letter, every word of which was flame and tears. When it was finished, she sent a man with it on the instant to catch the Dover mail packet, and all this was accomplished before she had any opportunity to talk over the affair with her uncle. When she did so, he regretted her precipitancy, and refused to move in the matter at all. "It would be the height of imprudence," he said. "The young man is dead and gone, and we cannot bring him back, though England went to war with France on that quarrel. The Protector is ill, worn out with sorrow and anxiety, and if one of his old attacks should seize him at this time, it would have the mastery. And when Cromwell dies, there is no question of what will happen. The nation will give Charles the Second a trial. Then Matilda, when Charles comes back, Prince Rupert comes with him. We may need the friendship of Prince Rupert to save ourselves. No one can tell how this reputedly good-natured Charles will act, when his hands are able to serve his will. I will not then make an enemy of so powerful a man as Prince Rupert is like to be."

It was rarely Sir Thomas spoke with such decision, and Matilda was much impressed by his words. They made her hesitate still more about her marriage with Cymlin.

During the first hours of her discovery, Matilda had wondered she ought to tell Jane what proof of Cluny's death had come to them; for in her heart she scoffed at the idea of Cluny returning to Paris to sell the jewels. But Jane did not visit her for some time, and she was daily expecting an answer from Prince Rupert. This letter might be of great importance, one way or another, and she resolved to wait for it. It came more rapidly than she had anticipated, and its contents temporarily fanned to a feeble flame her dying illusions concerning her first lover. In this letter Rupert "on his honor" reiterated his first statement. He declared that he left Neville in health and safety, having at the last moment urged upon him his own swift Barb, which offer Neville refused. He said he should seek mademoiselle's presence until he saw her wearing the jewels, and then make question concerning them; and if not satisfied, go at once to her Uncle Mazarin. He was sure it was now only a few weeks ere the truth would be discovered. These promises were blended with his usual protestations of undying devotion, and Matilda was pleased, though she was not satisfied. For to Rupert's letter there was a postscript, and in that postscript one word which sent the blood to her heart, cold with terror—

"P. S. It may be the Bastille, and not the grave, which holds the Neville secret."

JOKE WAS ON DEPEW.

Venerable Senator Mistook Criticism for Eulogy.

At a dinner given not long ago to a crowd of congenial railroad men Senator Chauncey M. Depew was, as usual, the star speaker. In the course of his random remarks he told a story wherein a certain manufacturer, left practically alone in his works through a lockout, was represented as pointing to the big office clock over his desk and saying to his friend:

"There are the only two hands in my office that never strike."

"Whereupon," said the Senator, "the clock struck 2."

After the dinner one of Senator Depew's friends came up and congratulated him:

"Your speech was great," he said. "That story about the clock is a daisy."

The Senator beamed. "I think it is pretty good," he said modestly.

About five minutes later another friend came up who was not so eulogistic.

"Chauncey," he said, "I think that story about the clock better every time I hear it. I think to-night was the fiftieth time."

"Why President Newall says that story is a daisy," expostulated Mr. Depew.

The other laughed. "You ought to study botany, Chauncey, and you would learn that a daisy is a hardy annual."

And thereupon the Senator subsided.—New York Times.

PROFITS FROM WATER POWER.

Chicago Sanitary District Expects to Receive Over $1,000,000 Annually.

Water power that ought to bring the city or the sanitary district of Chicago revenue in a few years of $1,000,000 to $1,500,000, or save it that much annually, will be developed as the result of action taken by the sanitary board. The engineering committee voted unanimously to advertise for bids on the extension of the channel for a couple of miles below Lockport. This work will take two or three years, and will cost close to $3,000,000, but when it is completed and the Calumet and Evanston districts joined to the main channel, sending their immense discharges of water through the canal, the board will be equipped with about 45,000 horsepower, which will be worth at the present market rates anywhere from $25 to $35 a horsepower per year.

The package was found concealed in a refrigerator in the rear part of the company's office, stuffed into a glass fruit jar. Seventy dollars was missing from the package, the sum found being $930. All efforts of the detectives to trace it were without avail, and the mystery is who placed it there? It was sent from a Chicago bank to be delivered to the national bank of Fairland, Ill.

A mail pouch thrown from the Big Four train at Shelbyville fell under the wheels of the train and was cut to pieces. The mail was scattered for a long distance, but it was supposed it had all been found. A letter was picked up near Tower Hill, ten miles west of Shelbyville and found by Postmaster H. P. Fraught to be one of the letters that was in the pouch that was destroyed. The letter had not been opened and was not badly defaced. It had evidently been drawn the entire distance of ten miles by the suction of the train.

Tobacco Chewing Contest.

A large number of young men and boys of East St. Louis engaged in a tobacco chewing contest covering two days. The tobacco used, it is said, was stolen. The police claim that the lads abstracted a large amount of damaged tobacco from a terminal railway car that had stood in a part of the yards which was inundated during the flood, and distributed it among their friends. Some one then suggested a chewing contest, and going down to the place where the tobacco was hidden they indulged in a chewing bee.

The Steel Corporation Presidency.

The appointment of an assistant, W. E. Corey, to President Charles M. Schwab of the United States Steel Corporation is taken as a text for many newspaper sermons on modern finance and financiers, because it is generally believed that Mr. Schwab, for well understood reasons, has been removed from control of the corporation.

The New York Evening Post thinks that "the predominant feeling of right minds, in the presence of Mr. Charles M. Schwab's final breakdown, after receiving many rude buffets of fortune, is one of pity. He seems a victim. His generation and the system of great finance upon which it was his lot to fall have proved too much for him. The fine natural abilities with which he was set out, the physical vigor, the mental energy, the technical training, the mastery of men—today they all appear but as so much splendid promise wrecked. The vast and remorseless machinery of financial speculation has drawn him in and left him bruised and bleeding. But he has been unconsciously a powerful moral teacher. He has revealed to the observant the true nature of that world of 'high finance' into which he so rashly ventured, with all its desperate chances and wild audacity and gambler's passion, so destructive, as we see, to physical and moral life alike. He has shown us what comes of thinking in hundred millions and living in a mad revelry of luxury. The get-rich-quick method of Wall street appears, in the light of Mr. Schwab's misfortunes, no better morally, and not even any more successful in the long run, than fleeing schemes on the Bowery. And he has done not a little to remind us that the old fashioned moralities and the well tried rules of business are still supreme. Financial follies surely come home to roost. New syndicates cannot enact new laws of morality. The gambler remains a gambler still though his hazard millions."

Interference With Telegraphy.

As might have been expected, Neville Maskelyne's frank admission that it was he and his associates who endeavored the other day to cut off the wireless messages sent from Poldhu, Cornwall, England, to Professor Fleming, who was lecturing on the subject at the Royal Institution in London, has caused a commotion in the British telegraphic and scientific world. Professor Fleming denies, with heat, that he was using a syntonic apparatus, and adds triumphantly that this disposes utterly of Mr. Maskelyne's pretense that he had disproved the secrecy of the Marconi system by intercepting a message with an untuned apparatus.

J. Henniker Heaton, the well known British postal and telegraphic reformer, joins in the fray with a suggestion that willful interference of this sort is either a civil or a criminal offense and asks whether it is true that Mr. Maskelyne's experiment was prompted by a cable company. He then makes the following highly interesting statement: "One of Mr. Marconi's friends is, to my knowledge, prepared to wager £1,000 that he is able to prevent a cable message from being sent by land or sea in any direction without touching the wires. Of course the cable companies have, in the high sense of honor of their rival, a sufficient safeguard."

It is a pity that Mr. Heaton was not a little more explicit regarding this remarkable power, which might have such almost inconceivable consequences in time of war or desperate speculation.

Organized labor in Saginaw, Mich., has taken a commendable course in assuming responsibility for a debt which could not otherwise have been collected. During a strike some time ago a co-operative laundry was started by the unions. The venture proved a failure, and after all the property was sold a debt of $4,000 remained. This has now been assumed by the Central Labor union, which was in no way, legally responsible for it.

The announcement that the big coal companies are now producing more coal than ever before may not be particularly timely information in the midst of a July hot wave, but it is a good fact to file away for future reference next winter, when the word fuel will have a more kindly sound than it now possesses.

The case of a New York butcher who was choked to death while eating one of his own steaks will impress many beef consumers as a just retribution.

Judging from some recent performances, Reliance in the cup defender seems to be well placed.

King Cotton is proving a rather erratic and arbitrary monarch.

The completion of the Pacific cable to Manila is gratifying and supplies a means of quick communication long needed. In the meantime we are not hearing as much about transoceanic wireless telegraphy as formerly.

The barbers of New York have organized a league for the promotion of social intercourse. It is generally supposed that barbers are social enough without the necessity of organization.

Sir Thomas has not been so lacking in discretion as to drop hints about the kind of tea he would prefer when he is being entertained.

Having lost his job, poor Mr. Schwab will have to live on his income from $30,000,000 until he can find something else to do.

Communications from the north pole hunting expeditions would make timely and reasonable reading just now.

With snowstorms reported from some of the mountain states and sun-strikes from several other quarters, it would seem that the United States has climate and temperature in sufficient variety to suit the most fastidious.

A Pittsburg doctor has received a fee of $34,000 for treating a man who died. It is idle to speculate as to the amount he might have received had the patient lived.

A Dakota judge has ruled that polygamy is legal on the Indian reservation, though his finding is not likely to precipitate a rush to the frontier.

It may be observed that the man who is grumbling about the hot July is the same fellow who was growling about the cold June.

A Setback For Scientific Forestry.

People interested in scientific forestry will regret to learn of the suspension of the Cornell College of Forestry. This is a serious setback for a movement in practical education from which very much in the way of good results was expected. Instead of the blow being administered by ignorant outsiders it seems to have been given by the scientific foresters themselves.

According to all accounts, the suspension of the institution was due to the inability of the heads of the college to use good judgment in construing the purpose of the grants of $165,000 worth (30,000 acres) of forest and $50,000 in money. Since this was done on account of complaints of denudation of forests by lumbermen, the plain purpose was to aid and demonstrate the preservation of forests. Preservation does not mean denudation. But the college took the ground that the purpose was to teach the pupils how to utilize forest products and proceeded to give the instruction which they could have obtained in any lumber camp by denuding 1,500 acres of land in three years and replanting, according to the legislative report, only 275. The instruction that the state intended to secure was how to preserve the forest by removing only the fully matured timber, leaving the forest as a whole intact. This the college appears to have wholly failed to do, and it is fairly chargeable with the failure to continue the appropriation. In view of the efforts being made throughout the country in the direction of forest preservation and the urgent necessity for such efforts the failure of this experiment in New York is to be regretted.

The president of the board of lady managers of the St. Louis fair is reported as being of the pure blond type, divinely tall, of perfect self possession, admirable judgment, exquisite taste and having the front name of Apolline, which, we are told, is the feminine for Apollo, the friend of the muses, lover of music and prototype of all that is beautiful and refined in Greek myth and legend. This would seem to indicate that the picturesque and effusive press agent is beginning to get in his fine work.

The inventors who undertook to supply the post office department with all the modern improvements do not appear to have been particularly strong on cash register and bell punch devices.

THE CEDARS OF LEBANON.

Only a Few of These Historic Trees Now Remain.

There are only about 400 cedars of Lebanon now remaining high up on the rocky slopes. Hadrian sculptured his imperial anathema against all who should cut these sacred trees; the Maronite peasants almost worship them and call them the "cedars of the Lord," and a recent governor of the Lebanon has surrounded them by a great wall so that the young shoots may not be injured by roving animals. Yet, century by century, their number grows less.

But if the cedars are few in number these few are of royal blood. They are not the largest of trees, though some of the trunks measure over forty feet around. Their beauty lies in the wide spreading limbs, which often cover a circle 200 or 300 feet in circumference. Some are tall and symmetrical, with beautiful horizontal branches; others are gnarled and knotted, with inviting seats in the great forks and charming beds on the thick foliage of the swinging boughs.

The wood has a sweet odor, is very hard and seldom decays. The vitality of the cedar is remarkable. A dead tree is never seen, except where lightning or the ax has been at work. Often a great bough of one tree has grown into a neighbor, and the two are so bound together that it is impossible to say which is the parent trunk. Perhaps the unusual strength and vitality of the cedars are due to their slow growth. When a little sprout hardly waist high is said to be ten or fifteen or twenty years old one cannot help asking, What must be the age of the great patriarchs of the grove? It is hard to tell exactly. By the aid of a microscope I have counted more than 700 rings on a bough only thirty inches in diameter. Those who have studied the matter more deeply think that some of these trees must be more than a thousand years old. Indeed, there is nothing wildly improbable in the thought that perhaps the Guardian, for instance, may have been a young tree when Hiram began cutting for the temple at Jerusalem.—Lewis Gaston Leary in Scribner's.

ONIONS AND LEMONS.

Said to Be a Protection in Cases of Contagious Disease.

When a mere lad I had often heard it said that the eating of onions and lemons was a protection against contagious diseases, and when about eighteen years of age I had an opportunity to test them for myself. I had spent the winter in the city of New Orleans, where, in the spring, yellow fever of a virulent type made its appearance, causing an urgent demand for nurses, and, having faith in what I had heard of the protective power of onions and lemons, I concluded to take what my friends called a ghastly risk and made application at the Common Street hospital for a position as nurse, was accepted and entered at once upon a line of duty, in commencing which I began the use of raw onions and lemons, alternating weekly with lemons, always taking them just before going to bed.

I took no other remedy, although medicine was provided every morning for all attaches. At the expiration of the tenth week I was no longer needed and left in as vigorous health as when I entered the hospital.

On taking my departure I was reminded by the head physician that his medicine had probably preserved my health. Nevertheless a number of nurses and attaches had died of the fever, despite his vaunted medical ability. Before leaving the institution I acquainted the doctor with the fact that I had not used his medicine, but had relied solely upon my onion-lemon treatment, when he said it was a wonder that it had not killed me and if it had that I had deserved it.

On another occasion I had a similar experience with smallpox cases in a northern city, finding the onion and lemon a perfect protection to myself and many of my associates.—Medical Talk.

THE BOY JOHN WESLEY.

No Evidence of Any Precociousness in His Religious Development.

Of the nineteen children born to Samuel and Susanna Wesley only ten survived the period of infancy, and of these only three were sons. John was thirteen years younger than Samuel and six years older than Charles. Of his early boyhood only one incident is recorded: On a February night in 1709 the rectory was burned. The family, hurrying out in terror, left the boy John sleeping in his attic chamber, and he was taken out through a window only an instant before the blazing roof fell in upon his bed. Wesley always retained a vivid recollection of the scene, and more than a half century later, when, thinking himself near death, he composed his epitaph, he describes himself as "a brand plucked from the burning."

His mother deemed his rescue a providential indication that her son was preserved for some great work and resolved, as she says, "to be more particularly careful of the soul of this child that Thou hast so mercifully provided for." There is, however, no evidence of anything precocious in the religious development of the boy, but only a certain staid, overdeliberateness which he got from his mother, but which to the more mercurial temperament of the father seemed in a lad not yet in his teens half amusing and half vexatious. "Sweetheart," said the rector to his wife, "I profess I think our boy Jack wouldn't attend to the most pressing necessities of nature unless he could give a reason for it."—C. T. Winchester in Century.

Readiness in Excuse.

General Alexander McDowell McCook had a story illustrative of readiness in excuse which he used to tell occasionally. Some raw troops were drawn up for their first battle. They were on marshy ground, under fire, and ankle deep in slush. One of the soldiers was noticed to be trembling excessively, and his fear might communicate itself to his comrades. An officer approached him.

"Here, you, what are you trembling for?" demanded the officer. "Stop it, or you'll demoralize the company. You are in no more danger than any one else. Don't be afraid."

"I-I-I am not-t-t a-a-afraid," chattered the soldier. "I-I-I had the ague last year, and—standing still in this m-m-mud so long has b-b-brought it on aga-again. W-w-wouldn't it-t be a g-g-good idea to r-r-run a lit-tittle and get warmed up?"

long articles, two book reviews and a contribution to a weekly illustrated paper. In addition to this he devoted four hours every day to what may be called pure literature. He turned out books at the rate of three a year or even more. In 1890, for instance, there appeared from his pen the "Red Fairy Tale Book," "Life, Letters and Diaries of Sir Stafford Northcote," "How to Fall in Literature" and "Old Friends." For weeks together his work would average 25,000 words a week.

DEATHBED OF THE POPE

Passing of the Aged Pontiff Marked by Profound Sorrow—His Last Moments Comparatively Peaceful and Painless—Franciscans Watch Body.

Pope Leo's last moments were comparatively peaceful and painless and were preceded by a period of insensibility. When it became known that the pope's journey through the valley of death was almost finished, Cardinal Vannutelli hurried again to his bedside, and was followed shortly afterward by what is called in vatican phraseology the "papal secret family" and the "noble family," besides the "personal family," including the late pope's nephews, Comte Ludovico, Riccardo and Camillo, and also all the cardinals at the vatican, who afterward retired to the adjoining library after they had been allowed to kiss the pontiff's hand and pass along, presenting another of those pictures which will live in the memory of all those participating in it.

The aged pontiff was lying prone and unconscious, propped up to assist him in breathing, one hand laid on the red silk coverlet, the heavy pontifical ring being in danger of falling from the shrunken finger, while the other hand clutched his rosary and crucifix. Though he was entirely unconscious, gleams of intelligence seemed to flicker across the worn face, and the shadow of a smile fell over the pallid lips when the nephews passed and reverently knelt and kissed the pope's hand. No word was spoken. The only sound which broke the silence of the death room was the rattle of the arms of the noble guard, who were stationed at every door of the pontiff's private apartments, it being their privilege and right under the circumstances to take possession of the apartments and guard the body of the pope.

It was a most solemn moment. The head of the pontiff, with its white skull cap, no whiter than the fringe of silvery hair rising above the crimson coverlet, his hand raised in the familiar gesture of benediction, the kneeling assemblage being too earnestly absorbed in deep affliction, veneration and weeping, to even make a movement.

The doctors again examined the dying holy father, and this time found that he was at the extreme limit of his powers of respiration. His eyes began to become dull and clouded, and Leo XIII entered into the real agony of death, which was recognized by all present kneeling. The last conscious act of the pontiff was to turn his eyes toward the great crucifix on the wall, after which he suffered from a paroxysm of choking, during which he passed away.

Then the silence of the awe-stricken assemblage was broken by the sonorous, solemn voice of Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli, the grand penitentiary, intoning the requiem aeternam (rest eternal). This was the signal for an outburst of tears and the sound of weeping which could no longer be repressed, all the kneeling prelates and others kissing the dead hand—that hand which had dispensed so many benefits, charities and benedictions.

The occurrences in the death chamber immediately following the Pope's demise were of impressive solemnity. Couriers had been dispatched to summon those who are delegated to perform the first religious offices toward the dead Pope, and soon the chanting of the Franciscan monks was heard as, two by two, in coarse brown habits and with sandaled feet, they proceeded to the room in which Leo lay dead. From time immemorial the Franciscans have been penitentiaries of St. Peter's. Following them came the noble guard to watch over the pontiff's remains, the brilliancy of their uniforms contrasting strikingly with the somber attire of the quaintly garbed monks and the solemn dignity of the chamber itself. The only sound heard was the measured chanting of the psalms of penitence by a group of monks kneeling beside the couch of death. Two noble guards took up positions at the foot of the couch and stood by, rigid and silent as statues, with swords drawn and reversed, pointing to the floor.

The death chamber presented much the same appearance as it did at the time of the final illness of the Pope. It is situated on the third floor of the vatican, the apartments fronting the splendid piazza of St. Peter's and the window of the room commanding a view of the tall obelisk and playing fountains, with Rome stretching off beyond the Tiber. Across the middle of the room hang heavy draperies, partly concealing the bed on which lies the silent form of the dead pontiff. By the side of the low bed burned a number of candles, and from above looked down the picture of the Madonna, with the infant Christ in her arms. Leo's desk was closed, but some of the books on religious topics which he kept remained on it.

A white veil was thrown over the dead man's face while awaiting the solemn entrance of the Cardinal Camerlengo, who was to officially pronounce the pontiff actually dead. The grown-up details of the embalming were not performed until after the lapse of twenty-four hours. Then the body was robed in full pontifical vestments for the imposing funeral ceremonies.

Great interest is now centered in the work of the holy conclave which is to select the successor to Leo XIII. Speculations, prophecies and predictions come from every direction in favor of the various candidates. The comparatively long illness of Leo had the effect of narrowing the chances of some who entered the contest with what was thought to be the brightest prospects, while it brought into prominence others who at first were hardly considered. The result is that all are now on about the same level. It is said that there has never been a conclave in which there were so many candidates who had a fair chance of winning.

It is generally believed that the conclave will meet Aug. 3. The most prominent candidates for the succession are Cardinals Gotti, Oreglia, Agliardi, Serafino Vannutelli, Capececiatro, Sarto, Rampolla, Dipietro, stampa, Ferrari, Satolli and Richelmi.

The situation may lead to a struggle of much longer duration than that of 1873, when Leo was elected. That conclave lasted scarcely three days. The contest now will be prolonged, if after the early ballots, the different parties whose exact strength can only then be established persist in remaining faithful to their favorites instead of joining forces with those of candidates having better chances.

It is believed that the foreign cardinals will ultimately give the casting votes, as living far away from Rome, where different factions form and flourish, they will be more impartial, especially as it is admitted by all that the new pope will be chosen from among the Italian candidates. For this latter reason there cannot be national rivalry among the foreigners.

The talk to the effect that certain foreign powers may exercise the right of veto in the conclave is unfounded. What the powers desire is not that the new pope should be friendly to any particular power, but that he should conduct the affairs of papacy in a peaceful, equitable, religious manner without stirring up international strife.

It is supposed that the rumor that Austria might attempt to exercise the right of exclusion against Cardinal Rampolla was started by the friends of the latter in order to have him appear as a persecuted martyr.

The death of the pope brings about a widespread change in all the administrative departments of the church and considerably influences questions of church policy. The change within the vatican affects practically all the officials from the highest to the lowest. Cardinal Rampolla retires from the post of secretary of state. Other high officials are similarly affected, the master of the chamber, the under-secretary of state, the vicar of Rome, the vice chancellor, the grand penitentiary, the librarian of the vatican and a host of lesser officials. These will continue to exercise their functions until the new pope is elected, when he will designate his own secretary of state and other officials.

Thus there is a complete transformation of apostolic authority, the death of the pope meaning the nominal death of all the officials under him. The prefect and entire machinery of the propaganda, however, are unaffected.

The chief international questions which may be affected by the death of the pope are those connected with the suppression of religious orders in France, the change of the clergy in the new Spanish-American possessions, the selection of the successor of the late Cardinal Vaughan and attendant questions connected with the administration of the church in England. Emperor William's visit to the pope created a new bond of sympathy between Germany and the vatican.

Among vatican officials the Philippine question, involving transfers from the Spanish to the American hierarchy and the elimination of the friars, is regarded as one of the most important. The present Philippine policy had the hearty approval of Leo XIII and there is no reason to believe that it will be changed.

HAIL ENTAILS IMMENSE LOSS

Damage to Crops in Rock County, Minn., Amounts to $1,000,000.

STORM SWEEPS PART OF IOWA

Wind, Hail and Rain Destroy Crops and Level Buildings and Trees—Church, Courthouse and Store Are Wrecked.

Luverne, Minn., dispatch: A disastrous hailstorm passed over the eastern portion of Rock county, destroying fully one-third of the entire crop in the county and entailing a loss approximately of $1,000,000. The storm, both in destructiveness and in area, was the worst and most extensive known in the northwest.

The storm is reported to have started at Watertown, S. D., over 100 miles north of this city, and to have extended to Sheldon, Iowa, forty-five miles southeast of here. It reached its most destructive state in this county, where 122 sections of grain are reported totally destroyed.

Storm's Area.
The area of the storm is reported to have been thirty miles wide at this point, extending to Worthington, but the worst destruction is between this city and Adrian, east of here fifteen miles, and between Edgerton, eighteen miles northeast of this city, and Ellsworth, eighteen miles southeast. In this area of 540 square miles entire crops, with the exception of a few pieces missed through the freak of the storm, are reported to be fairly beaten into the ground. In most places not a spear is left standing.

Corn stalks are cut close to the ground, while whole groves of trees are stripped as bare of leaves as in midwinter. Conservative estimates place the loss to this year's crop in this county alone at over $1,000,000. This does not take into account loss of seed or damage to trees, orchards, and buildings.

Iowa Crops Suffer.
Council Bluffs, Iowa, special: Probably the worst wind, hail and rain storm of the season swept over a part of southwestern Iowa, destroying all crops in its path and leveling many buildings and trees. A number of injuries have been reported, but no fatalities, and no injuries that it is thought will prove fatal. Telegraph and telephone wires are down in all directions, and it is almost impossible to gain any information as to the severity of the storm in the country districts.

The greatest damage is reported from Atlantic, where the courthouse, Methodist church and a large brick store building in course of construction were wrecked.

Fred Iepson had a leg broken by being blown from a load of hay.

L. W. Wheatley was seriously injured in a runaway caused by his team taking fright at the storm.

At Audubon the hailstorm was probably the most severe, and it is reported that crops of all kinds are totally destroyed.

Harlan reports many farm buildings demolished southeast of here, and that corn and small grain have been pounded into the ground and cannot possibly recover.

Michigan Farm Hand Seriously Injured for Weeding Field Cheaply.

Owosso, Mich., dispatch: A lynching was narrowly averted on the farm of C. E. Hersey, west of this city. Archibald A. Evans, employed as a sugar-beet weeder, with his brother, agreed to weed a piece of field for 3 cents per row, the schedule being 12 cents. A gang of union weeders set upon Evans and, tying him with rope, they dragged him across the field and through a barbed wire fence and pounded him unmercifully with their hoes, severely injuring him. They were about to hang him when the farmer and some of the neighbors came to Evans' assistance.

Dr. Charles Wood, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, once delivered a lecture on Sunday evening on "Spurgeon." Said he: "I spent a solid month in preparing that lecture in order to make it as thorough as possible and had it announced several weeks in advance. After it was over and I was feeling pretty well satisfied with the results of my endeavors, an old lady in my congregation came up to shake hands. 'Dr. Wood,' she said, 'I think I know why you delivered that lecture this evening.'"

"Why?" said he, his face beaming with gratification at the reference to it.

"Well, I suppose it was because you didn't have time to prepare a sermon."

A Profitable Crop.

General Passenger Agent George Morton of the "Katy," St. Louis, received the following letter from one of the company's land and immigration agents at Rock Island, Texas:

"I send you by express a box of cigars manufactured from tobacco grown at Hallettsville, Texas, on Post Oak sandy land, by one W. B. Hawkins. Mr. Hawkins raised 800 pounds per acre. It takes 15 pounds to make 1,000 cigars selling at $30 per thousand. The cost of manufacture and sale is about $13.00 per thousand, leaving net profit per one thousand cigars (or 15 pounds of tobacco) of $17.00. There is in this (Altair) county thousands of acres of the same kind of land which can be purchased at $4.00 to $6.00 per acre."

Work and Rest.

To live happily in this world it is not enough to know how to work; a man must also know how to rest. The man who knows only how to work will soon wear out. If he doesn't wear out immediately his work will suffer in some way. No man can do his best work unless he alternates it with a little play or a little rest. A man who can't drop his work from his mind had better take a few weeks off to study the rest question. His nerves are not what they should be.

stances to take possession of the apartments and guard the body of the pope.

The final scene in the death chamber was profoundly impressive. The pope's death having been expected since noon, his deathbed was surrounded by practically all the members of the sacred college now in Rome and the whole papal court, while the pontiff's nephews remained in the papal library until they received word from the doctors which announced that his last expiring breath was approaching. Then they moved silently within the death chamber, some standing, some kneeling, all awaiting the awful moment of dissolution.

In the ante-chamber had assembled the high ecclesiastics, members of the diplomatic corps and representatives of the papal aristocracy, awaiting the announcement that the final moment had come.

Profound silence reigned in the pope's bedroom, only broken by the doctors rising to render their expiring patient more comfortable, by the sobs of the ever-faithful valet, Pio Centra, or the murmured prayers of Mgr. Piferi, the papal confessor, himself 84 years of age, who had to be assisted to the bedside.

Softly he recited the prayers for the dying, the pontiff at one moment appearing to follow them as though conscious of what was transpiring, but he could not speak. Then the dying pope murmured something to himself in which those bending over him heard the words "father" and "mother."

Dr. Lapponi, who almost constantly had his fingers on the pope's pulse, felt it grow gradually weaker and weaker, and at the same time the pontiff's extremities began to get cold, his lips became blue, his eyes sank more deeply into the head, his breathing became even more difficult, and there were strange rattlings in his throat.

Free Medical Advice to Women.

All Letters

Are Strictly Confidential

Every sick and ailing woman,
Every young girl who suffers monthly,
Every woman who is approaching menopause,
Every woman who feels that life is a burden,
Every woman who has tried all other means to regain health without success,
Every woman who is going through that critical time—the change of life—is invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., in regard to her trouble, and the most expert advice telling exactly how to obtain a CURE will be sent absolutely free of cost.

The one thing that qualifies a person to give advice on any subject is experience—experience creates knowledge.
No other person has so wide an experience with female ills nor such a record of success as Mrs. Pinkham has had.
Over a hundred thousand cases come before her each year. Some personally, others by mail. And this has been going on for twenty years, day after day, and day after day.
Twenty years of constant success—think of the knowledge thus gained! Surely women are wise in seeking advice from a woman with such an experience, especially when it is free.

Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, wrote to Mrs. Pinkham when she was in great trouble. Her letter shows the result. There are actually thousands of such letters in Mrs. Pinkham's possession.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been under doctors' treatment for female troubles for some time, but without any relief. They now tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, I cannot wear my clothes with any comfort. Womb is dreadfully swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time.
The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor, given in your little book, accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice."—Mrs. E. F. HAYES, 253 Dudley St. (Boston), Roxbury, Mass.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wrote to you describing my symptoms, and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully for several months, and to-day I am a well woman.
The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, together with your advice, carefully followed, entirely expelled the tumor, and strengthened the whole system. I can walk miles now.
Your Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors, or any female trouble, to write you for advice, and give it a faithful trial."—Mrs. E. F. HAYES, 253 Dudley St. (Boston), Roxbury, Mass.

Mrs. Hayes will gladly answer any and all letters that may be addressed to her asking about her illness, and how Mrs. Pinkham helped her.

President Loubet's visit to London recalls the Irish people's claim to regard him as one of themselves. Loubet, they hold, is merely a Gallicized form of Loubet, a name which is quite common in the south of Ireland, and that the president's ancestors hailed from Ireland they entertain not the slightest doubt.

Song Pleased Sir Thomas.
An amusing feature of the reception given by the Larchmont Yacht club to Sir Thomas Lipton was the singing of a song specially written for the occasion by Clay M. Greene. The song was "Tommy Lipton" and was a parody on Kipling's "Tommy Atkins." Sir Thomas enjoyed the clever verses immensely.

Insist on Getting It.
Some grocers say they don't keep Defiance Starch. This is because they have a stock on hand of other brands containing only 12 oz. in a package, which they won't be able to sell first, because Defiance contains 16 oz. for the same money.
Do you want 16 oz. instead of 12 oz. for same money? Then buy Defiance Starch. Requires no cooking.

MOB KILLS THREE IN WYOMING JAIL

Two Murder Prisoners and Deputy Are Victims of Bullets.

RANGE FEUD BECOMES SERIOUS

Trouble Between Sheepmen and Cattle Raisers Plunges Portion of the State Into Condition of Lawlessness—Sheriff Asks for Militia.

Red Lodge, Mont., special: Three lives were sacrificed to mob violence at Basin, Wyo. Two prisoners, being held for murder, and a deputy sheriff, were shot to death.

A state of lawlessness prevails in northern Wyoming, and all semblance of order seems to have been abolished as the result of a range feud. A sheep herder has been killed and a call has been made for militia. Many of the settlers are arming, and a desperate outbreak is feared.

Jim Gorman, who killed his brother about a year ago and ran off with his brother's wife, and a man named Walters, who killed a widow named Hoover at the Hot Springs two years ago, because she refused to marry him, were the victims at Basin. C. E. Pierce, a deputy sheriff, was killed during the attack on the jail.

Appeals to Governor.
From President Moffett of the Montana and Wyoming Telephone company, who is now making a tour of inspection, comes the news of the lynching and of an appeal for help from Sheriff Fenton of Big Horn county, who has arrested a number of prominent cattle men near Thermopolis, and has appealed to the governor of Wyoming for assistance of the militia in getting his prisoners to Basin.

It was reported to Sheriff Fenton last Wednesday morning that a mob was coming up to Basin from Hiattsville and Tonslip for the purpose of lynching Gorman and Walters. As a measure of precaution, the sheriff took these men and a horse thief out of the jail and secreted them in a gulley near town under guard of Deputy Sheriffs Felix Alston and C. E. Pierce.

Prisoner Escapes.
Gorman managed to slip his handcuffs and make his escape. He swam the Big Horn river, an unprecedented feat, and made for the mountains. A posse of seven men quickly organized and Gorman was recaptured early Saturday morning about fifty miles from Basin.

Early Sunday morning a mob of about fifty unmasked men rode up the east bank of the Big Horn and compelled the ferryman to carry them across the river. They made no demonstration until they entered Basin, when five shots were fired as a warning.

The mob proceeded at once to the county jail and fired a volley into the jail. Deputy Pierce and Special Deputy Meade were guarding the prisoners at the time.

Mob in Action.
One bullet grazed Meade's shoulder and entered Pierce's heart. Members of the mob then tore up the telephone poles and battered down the jail doors. They first came to Walters, who was crouched in his cell piteously begging for mercy. No needless torture was resorted to. Walters was shot instantly.

The mob next found Gorman, whose body was pierced by five bullets and was left presumably dead. He lingered, however, until Sunday forenoon.

A still more alarming state of affairs is reported from the vicinity of Thermopolis. About six weeks ago, as a result of the range feud that has been so bitterly waged, a sheep man, Ben Minnick, was killed by cattle-men. The sheriff, it is asserted, has captured the murderers, who are all prominent cattlemen, and whose names have been withheld owing to threats made against him.

Trouble Threatens.
Sheriff Fenton is unable to get his prisoners to Basin. It is said the same mob that lynched Gorman and Walters are sympathizers, and have declared that Sheriff Fenton will never get out of the locality alive with his prisoners. Sheriff Fenton has wired the governor of Wyoming for permission to use the state militia at Lander, and also has sent a telephone message to Basin and other towns asking for volunteers to assist him in upholding the law.

Everywhere hardy Westerners are responding to the call, arming themselves and hastening toward Thermopolis. It is probable the militia will be ordered to the scene, and a bloody battle may be fought. The country about Thermopolis is a wild and lawless one.

WEDDING DRESS IS HER SHROUD
Funeral Splendor Takes Place of Bells in Indiana Town.

Greenfield, Ind., dispatch: Alice Smith, aged 20 years, who was seriously burned at her home, northwest of Gem, is dead. She was heating water in an iron kettle in the yard, when her apron caught fire and she was enveloped in flames. She was about to be married to Ephraim Jeffries. The funeral took place at the Amity church and the remains were buried in the wedding dress.

Tender Recollections That Stirred the Rich Man's Heart.

The old millionaire entered his study, and after carefully bolting the door behind him, sat down at his desk and began to rummage in the spacious bottom drawer, says the St. Louis Globe Democrat. A look of intense anxiety overspread his seamed and rugged visage, as he failed to find the object of his search, but presently this gave way to a smile when further search rewarded his endeavors. He gave a sigh of relief and settled back in his chair to examine the package of old letters he held in his hands. With trembling fingers he untied the faded knot of blue ribbon that bound them, and slowly began to read. They were love letters, his own love letters, written in the days of his young manhood when success had first smiled upon him. As he read, the countenance of the old man softened, and the present was forgotten. He was alone with the past, the dear, dead past. But was it dead? No, for the magic of those burning words seemed to ignite again in the old man's heart the flame that had glowed there long ago. For see—a tear gathers in his sunken eye and slowly rolls down his wrinkled cheek. "Dear little Amy," he whispers. "Dear little woman! how foolishly fond of you I was in those days. You were, indeed, the dearest woman I ever met. Your breath of promise still cost me a cool $25,000!"

To Study Kentucky Feudists.
Dr. J. D. Forrest, professor of sociology and political science in Butler college, has started with his wife and their friend, Mrs. C. A. Allen of Indianapolis, for a horseback vacation trip through the mountains of Kentucky. They intend to penetrate the wildest parts of the blue grass state, where the Kentucky mountaineer is to be seen at his worst. Prof. Forrest will make a close study of conditions and persons as he finds them.

PE-RU-NA IS OF ESPECIAL BENEFIT TO WOMEN

Says Dr. M. C. Gee, of San Francisco.

A CONSTANTLY increasing number of physicians prescribe Peruna in their regular practice.
It has proven its merits so thoroughly that even the doctors have overcome their prejudice against so called patent medicines and recommend it to their patients.
"I Advise Women to Use Pe-ru-na," Says Dr. Gee.

Dr. M. C. Gee is one of the physicians who endorse Peruna. In a letter written from 513 Jones street, San Francisco, Cal., he says:
"There is a general objection on the part of the practicing physician to advocate patent medicines, but when any one medicine cures hundreds of people, it demonstrates its own value and does not need the endorsement of the profession."

"Peruna has performed so many wonderful cures in San Francisco that I am convinced that it is a valuable remedy. I have frequently advised its use for women, as I find it insures regular and painless menstruation, cures leucorrhoea and ovarian troubles, and builds up the entire system. I also consider it one of the finest catarrh remedies I know of. I heartily endorse your medicine."—M. C. Gee, M. D.

Mrs. E. T. Gaddis, Marion, N. C., is one of Dr. Hartman's grateful patients. She consulted him by letter, followed his directions, and is now able to say the following:
"Before I commented to take Peruna I could not do any hard work without suffering great pain. I took Peruna, and can say with pleasure that it has done more for me than any other medicine I have ever taken. Now I am as well as ever; I do all my own work and it never hurts me at all. I think Peruna is a great medicine for woman-kind."—Mrs. E. T. Gaddis.

Women are especially liable to pelvic catarrh, female weakness as it is commonly called.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.
Address Dr. Hartman, President of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Peruna occupies a unique position in medical science. It is the only internal systemic catarrh remedy known to the medical profession to-day. Catarrh, as every one will admit, is the cause of one-half the diseases which afflict mankind. Catarrh and catarrhal diseases afflict one-half of the people of the United States.

It is reported that the American Malleable Iron Company, controlling the plant at Chicago Highlands, has reorganized and the big foundry may soon resume operations. This will be good tidings to many employes who have tired of a vacation.

The Barrington Busters and the Lake Zurich Zulus will bowl a match game to-night at Walther's. The last match between the clubs was played at Lake Zurich and was won by the Zulus. The Busters are confident they can regain their lost laurels to-night.

The farmers in the south and southwestern portions of Barrington township have the advantage of mail delivery, and are much pleased. The Chicago Telephone Company is erecting a line through that section, and about every resident will have a phone.

There is nothing that will more rapidly and thoroughly build up the material interests of the state and maintain its greatness than the construction of good roads. They cheapen the cost of transportation and enhance the profits obtained from every line of industry. We do not believe that any greater blessing can come to the state than from a thorough awakening of our people to the importance of good roads and their taking action in this direction.

S. Kirby has exchanged his family roadster for a high-bred, high-headed animal. Mr. Kirby's new equine is a trained one—not trained to do ring exhibitions, but to travel a straight road when his trainer leads. John Donlea is coaching the animal to go as the driver may direct.

Several of our people joined the excursion to Devil's Lake from points on this division of the Northwestern yesterday. The excursion was in charge of Mr. Tinkham, who has been at the head of the C. & N. W. excursion business for thirty years. What he does not know about the excursion business is a mystery to the best of them.

This section escaped the terrific hail and wind storm which swept over the northwest side of Chicago Tuesday night. The storm lasted only fifteen minutes, but in that time lives were lost, bodies crushed and property worth thousands of dollars laid waste. An account of the hurricane may be found on another page of this issue.

The Knickerbocker Ice Company, so far as competition is concerned, now controls the local ice business in Chicago. It has just purchased the plant, equipment and numerous ice houses of the Consumers' Ice Company from Chaucey J. Blair, and his associates for a consideration in the neighborhood of $800,000. The purchase includes the big storage house at Lake Zurich, the stock of ice, side tracks and lease of 160 acres of land.

According to the books of the assessors of Cook county the total full valuation for the twenty-nine towns included in the county is $135,875,695, showing a gain over last year's figures of $6,911,349, or an increase of a fraction over 5 per cent. In 1902 the board of review reduced the valuations of the country towns from $128,964,355 to $124,799,900.

Says it is Good Water.

The superintendent of water works, Will Hager, is in receipt of many complaints as to the condition of the water supply. That in some sections of the village the water is very bad, is not disputed, but where the trouble lies is what puzzles Mr. Hager and the committee on water. At the well the supply seems good, while at some hydrants it is bad. The mains have been well flushed, and 'tis said the standpipe is in a clean condition. Chemist Bisbee of Chicago has analyzed samples of water from the well and reports to Chairman Gieske of the committee on water: "I find the sample of water you left here for inspection to be entirely fit for use. It is exceptionally good as a table water."

Only One Chance.

Whither are we drifting? Some time ago a wise medical man discovered that it is unhealthy for two people to occupy the same bed; later another discovered that it was unsafe to ride on a car with other people, to attend church or public meetings where others congregate; then a convention of doctors decided that a kiss was to tempt death in all manner of hideous diseases. Now comes a French scientist who discovers that the practice of handshaking is a prolific source of spreading disease.

This is a bad state of affairs. If discoverers keep up it will soon be unhealthy to be buried in the same cemetery with other people.

The only place where a person can feel absolutely free from disease is at weekly prayer meetings. Nobody attends them.

Epworth League.

The Epworth League business meeting will be held at the home of Frank Dohmeyer next Tuesday evening, July 28. All members and others are invited to attend.

A PLEASANT TRIP.

The Local Scribe Visits Cities in Illinois Valley and Finds Them Booming.

One of the most beautiful sections of country in our great state is that taken up by the counties of DuPage, DeKalb, LaSalle, Bureau, Kane and Putnam. The pleasure seeker, or the invalid in search of health-giving surroundings need seek no further.

The country, from the Cook county line to the hustling, progressive city of Spring Valley, one hundred miles down the valley of the Illinois river, is a panorama of enchanting scenery, highly cultivated farms, great manufacturing industries and attractive homes. The section is very closely settled, and a perfect network of railway lines—steam and electric—which are taxed to their utmost capacity to care for the patrons who are attracted to the numerous points of interest.

Our objective point was Spring Valley, a city of 8,000 population, on the east bank of the Illinois river, seven miles below LaSalle, and noted for its inexhaustible mines of soft coal, its hospitable, enterprising business men and as the home of John Mitchell, the great labor leader, who struck terror to the souls and finances of the anthracite coal barons of Pennsylvania last winter.

Spring Valley, although a mining point, is surrounded by a most excellent farming country and is in the Illinois corn belt. It is comparatively a new city, but can boast of all modern improvements, such as water works, electric lights, paved streets, concrete sidewalks, etc., and a bright, newsy, independent newspaper—The Gazette—conducted by Fred T. Hoffman, for a number of years connected with this paper, and Mr. Mahoney, both progressive printers and hustling publishers, who have the solid support of the business men.

The city has excellent transportation facilities—the Rock Island, C. & N. W. steam lines, the Illinois Valley Traction, electric, connecting LaSalle, Peru, Ladd and other towns, and steamboat service on the Illinois river to Peoria and points southwest.

We alighted in the city during a carnival and street fair—a big show in every sense of the word—and was introduced to the police, given a tag and the freedom of the city. The memory of that short visit will never fade. We have visited many places during our experience as a newspaper attaché, but must admit that the boys who delve down in the coal mines which honeycomb the foundation of Spring Valley, and the business men of that city are as hospitable a class as inhabit the earth, and the city contains more pretty girls and married women and more thirst parlor than any place of its size in the union.

LaSalle is one of the most important cities in the valley and one of the oldest in the state. It is enjoying a steady growth and rich in advantages. The great canal, Illinois river and numerous lines of railway give the manufacturer and mines the best of shipping facilities. Its broad streets, substantial business houses and handsome residences are attractions which the visitor cannot overlook.

Peru is closely allied to LaSalle, and might be termed its hustling suburb.

There is a vast difference between the people of the section we visited and those who inhabit the north tier of counties. Here the people are slow to advance any public enterprise or improvement, and hold onto their money with the grip of a beef trust, while there advantage is taken of every opportunity to improve the country and attract population. Capital in Spring Valley, LaSalle and other cities is not afraid to venture. Therefore the rapid progress.

An anxious inquirer now wants to know, "What about the elbow sleeve?" It's a fad, like many other fashions. Young girls look pretty and cute in elbow sleeves, but women of mature age and society blossoms with arms about the size of a fishing rod look better with full sleeves. The fashion editor of this family journal does not believe in abbreviated habiliments for the female sex. It used to be the style to wear waists buttoned up the front or back with sixteen buttons and gloves with one or two buttons. Now the style is reversed. The society woman (and she has many im-tators) wears a waist with one button and gloves with sixteen to twenty. With all due regard for the opinion of a "Devotee of the Train Skirt and X-Ray Waist," we believe a woman appears more presentable fully gowned than in undress. Fads of fashion may be correct in the drawing rooms of aristocracy, but they are out of place in a country village, exciting unfavorable comment.

THE REVIEW CHIP BASKET.

Hewen by Hackney.

Eve complained that she had nothing to wear, and her daughters have been working the same old plaint ever since.

A woman's mission on earth is to convince some man that he ought to get married.

Girls, if you don't want to get a husband who will growl at your cooking, select a man who can afford to hire a cook.

Fortune sometimes taps at a man's door while he is around at the corner saloon telling what he would do if he had the price.

Those stories that the trusts will oppose the president for re-election could not have been more ingenious had they originated with Mr. Roosevelt's press agent.

Some men in this village keep the Sabbath because they have formed the habit of keeping everything that comes easy and doesn't cost anything.

Don't get the idea into your head that a woman is more economical than a man just because her waist is smaller.

As a rule women are more liberal than men. The wife who has a mind of her own is continually giving her husband pieces of it.

An esteemed contemporary now treating its readers to a series of cookery receipts has a perfect right to try to give effective pictures of the various dishes, but when it prints an old cut of the corona of the sun for a picture of a banana pie it is getting time for a long-suffering public to file a protest.

No doubt Hanna and Roosevelt clubs are being started by men who want to get in on the ground floor as original Roosevelt or original Hanna man should lightning strike one or the other. The people as a whole refuse to get worked up on the subject for a year.

From reports of the meetings being held at DesPlaines camp grounds it is evident that there is an absence of brotherly love among the Methodists and Holiness people. The Methodists occupy their spacious grounds famous in the history of camp meetings and the attendance is large. Millionaire Farson of Oak Park leased Northwestern Park, adjoining the camp grounds, and assembled there his band of seceders, who have cut up all sorts of capers in their mode of worship. The Methodists say the Farson band (once Methodists) are "religious rebels," while the Farsonites say the Methodists are "possessed of the devil." How pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

German Syrup.

We want to impress on our readers that Boschee's German Syrup is positively the only preparation on the market to-day that does relieve and cure consumption. It contains the specifics, such as pure tar, extracts of gums, etc., which have been so highly endorsed for the cure of coughs, colds and consumption by the great medical congresses. The consumptive, whether his disease is in the throat or lungs, must have rest at night, and be free from the spasm of dry and racking cough in the morning. The diseased parts want rest, healing and soothing treatment, and the patient needs fresh air, good food, etc. German Syrup will give free and easy expectoration in the morning with speedy permanent relief. Small bottles, 25 cents; regular size, containing nearly four times as much, 75 cents. H. T. Abbott, druggist, Barrington.

"Bud" Boble, the noted driver and trainer, says: "I have used Cole's Veterinary Carbolic for cuts, scratches, sores and speed cracks, and it is a valuable remedy." It will do all that is claimed for it and no stable should be without it. 50 and $1.00 cans. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Paris green for sale by Lamey & Co.
