OSLER TO HOMOEOPATHS.

Chloroform Poison Man Wants Them to Leave Field With Other Doctors. Dr. William Osler, formerly of Johns Hopkins University, recently made his farewell address to the medical profession of Maryland before leaving for his post as regius professor in the University of Oxford, says a Baltimore special to the New York World. The title of Dr. Osler's address was "Unity, Peace and Concord." In part Dr. Osler said:

"I leave you today in charity. I have tried to harm no man, though I may have shot an arrow here and there which struck some one in the distance. If so I now ask his pardon."

"I have striven with no man, for I have a deep conviction of the harmfulness of strife and its utter uselessness. To you all, to my brethren here, to you who labor in a great field in the counties doing a great work for small returns and to you who engage in the special branches of the profession, I leave to you the greatest of all things, charity."

"It is now time that the homoeopaths were coming into the fold. It is now long past the time when a difference in struggle should separate men with the same hope. The homoeopaths are awake, but they must realize the anomaly of their position. The original quarrel is ours, but they should not allow themselves to be separated by a schism which is inconsistent with their practice today. And the rest in the robe of association, they bring ours in this country than elsewhere in the world."

"Like the church, the physician has three enemies—namely, ignorance, which is the sin; avarice, which is the devil, and vice, which is the devil. This willful and helpless ignorance of the people must be fought by the weapon of the tongue."

"The most dangerous foe is apathy. Thirty-five per cent of deaths in a community are due to apathy, which goes to counterbalance the advance of medicine in the last century. What advantage is there in knowledge when the comforts of life are not enjoyed? What advantage has the little red school-bus when in many of the most important relations of life we have failed to make use of our knowledge? Against vice we have to wage incessant warfare, advising the young against the evils of impurity."

An Automobile Fire Department.

The municipal authorities of Vienna have determined to abandon the use of horses to draw their fire apparatus and to equip their service entirely on an automobile basis. The Vienna fire department is considered the best equipped of continental Europe, and within ten years it has replaced all obsolete apparatus with the most modern and useful devices. The first step taken was the ordering of fifty-three motor chemical engines and wagons to replace those previously drawn by horses, which are most useful for dealing with small fires. When this has been accomplished the horse drawn steam fire engines and the extension ladders will be changed or replaced in some way not yet determined. It is claimed that increased efficiency will follow the innovation, while there will be a saving of some $15,000 per annum in the cost of maintaining the stations for the three sets of apparatus have been ordered. The outlay will be about $177,000.

Japan's Work in Korea.

The London Times Peking correspondent, visiting Korea, telegraphs from Seoul that the country is undergoing a wonderful transformation. "The reforms that the Japanese have already effected," the correspondent says, "are unmitigated blessings to the people, but are causing dismay to the emperor and his court. The emperor is cruelly disillusioned, but still hopes for the ultimate success of Russian power. The conduct of the Japanese has been exemplary. Never before have the Koreans been so well governed. Civilian Japanese are pouring into the country, and it is estimated that they number 90,000. Already there is a practically uninterrupted chain of Japanese settlements from Pusan to the Yalu. Railway extension and other improvements have made remarkable progress. Most of the foreign advisers have left the country and been succeeded by Japanese."

A Musical Wireless System.

The wireless telegraph system invented by Father Joseph Murgas was tested between Wheelersburg, Pa., and Barrington, Pa., recently, and the first message, "Success to the inventor," was successfully sent and received, says a Wheelersburg dispatch to the New York Tribune. Father Murgas says the test was most satisfactory, and that when a few minor adjustments are made he will give a more formal demonstration. The improvement over other systems is that instead of the Morse dot and dash code being used every letter of the alphabet, as well as the code words, is expressed by a single musical note electrically protected sound waves conveying it from the sending to the receiving station. This system, it is claimed, will send messages many times faster than any other.

Burbank's Starling Creation.

Two creations of the California horticultural wizard, Luther Burbank, which have not been announced, but which are under way, will when ready and in perfection excite considerable attention, says a Santa Rosa (Cal.) dispatch to the San Francisco Examiner. One of them will be a chestnut tree that will bear nuts eighteen months from the time the seed is planted. The other will be a tomato plant produced that will bear at eight weeks old and when the plants are only six inches high. These and other plants, trees and trees of different plants, flowers and fruits that are occupying Mr. Burbank's ceaseless attention.

THREE STUDENT CLASSES.

Either Puritans, Bohemians or Philistines says Chicago Professor. Dean W. D. McClintock, professor of English at the Chicago university, has classified college students for the benevolent purposes of the Chicago University, says a Chicago special dispatch to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The dean told the students they were either Puritans, Bohemians or Philistines of a combination of two.

"In my years of experience as a teacher I have come to the conclusion that all students can be put into three classes. There are three dominant types of girls and youths from seven to twenty years of age. They live either in Puritania, Bohemia or Philistia. The inhabitants of Puritania are fastidious in their dress, they love their work for what they get out of it, with no thought of a future reward. They have a high code of morals and live good, honest, conscientious lives. "The Bohemians are lovers of music and art. They are equally happy with the Puritans. They are pleasure seekers, but more flexible than the other class. They feel little responsibility for all but the moment of the morrow off on to the shoulders of an indefinite 'they.'"

"The Philistines are not totally clean. They are dirty, they are in a lower plane of living, morally and mentally. We are all built on this plane, but some of us are able to rise above it. They are great book lovers and absorb great quantities of knowledge, but are not cultured. They seek to accumulate wealth, and are looking for popularity or anything else that brings reward of a certain kind."

"The most dangerous foe is apathy. Thirty-five per cent of deaths in a community are due to apathy, which goes to counterbalance the advance of medicine in the last century. What advantage is there in knowledge when the comforts of life are not enjoyed? What advantage has the little red school-bus when in many of the most important relations of life we have failed to make use of our knowledge? Against vice we have to wage incessant warfare, advising the young against the evils of impurity."

TOLLING OF BIGGEST BELL.

Scheme to Honor Memorial of Veterans Halted at Arlington. Colonel Frank Hume of Washington, who was an officer in the Confederate army, is striving to interest the Grand Army of the Republic in a scheme for the manufacture of a bell which will be the largest in the world to be hung in the National cemetery at Arlington and tolled during the funeral rites of soldiers buried there, says a Washington special to the New York Times. Colonel Hume has been active in this work and has addressed several of the Washington posts in favor of the project, which only to be regarded with favor by Grand Army men. The idea is to procure from the government the brass guns that will be required in the manufacture of the bell, a sufficient number of which are held at the Watervliet (N. Y.) arsenal.

In an address delivered recently before one of the Washington Grand Army posts Colonel Hume said he had been in correspondence with Mr. Menzies of the bell foundry located at Troy, N. Y., one mile from Watervliet, who was a Federal soldier during the civil war and who is believed to be the project was feasible and could be carried out at a relatively small expense. Mr. Menzies wrote Colonel Hume that "the bell should be deep toned and placed in a sound-proof chamber if possible. Told only at the interment of a dead soldier, the sound of its tolling would be heard by all present."

Get SCOTT'S Emulsion

When you go to a drug store and ask for Scott's Emulsion you know what you want; the man knows you ought to have it. Don't be surprised, though, if you are offered something else. Wines, cordials, extracts, etc., of cod liver oil are plentiful, but don't imagine you are getting cod liver oil when you take them. Every year for thirty years we've been increasing the sales of Scott's Emulsion. Why? Because it has always been better than any substitute for it.

Send for free sample. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists 403-411 First Street, New York City, and SIOUX. All druggists.

Japanese Railway Etiquette.

When a native lady enters a Japanese railway carriage she slips her feet from her high shoes, steps upon the seat and then sits demurely with her feet doubled beneath her, says the Chicago Tribune. A moment later she lights a cigarette or her little pipe, which holds just tobacco enough to produce two good whiffs of smoke. All Japanese people sit with their feet upon the seat of the car and not as Europeans do. When the ticket collector, attired in blue uniform, enters the carriage he removes his cap and bows to her politely. He repeats the bow as he comes to each passenger to collect the tickets from them.

Carried Dinner Pall to His Wedding.

Because he could not find time from his work for a more elaborate ceremony, Murley Dealy of Terre Haute, Ind., recently brought his dinner bucket with him when he escorted Miss Arle M. Tate, his bride to be, who was in her first year at the college. The bride and groom were accompanied by a group of her admirers across the bridge from Terre Haute to an Ohio street in Terre Haute to be married, says a Terre Haute dispatch to the Indianapolis Sentinel. When the bride was tied the groom accompanied the bride to the east end of the bridge and went whistling to his work while the crowd proudly marched back to Taylorville with the wife in charge.

Best Home For Women.

One of the most unique institutions in the world is to be established near Denver. The National Business Women's League, of which Miss Louise Lee Hardin of Denver is president, plans the erection of a woman's rest home at Denver. More than 200,000 will be put into the enterprise, whose principal object is to relieve the relations between business women of the country and to afford an opportunity for working women of the country to spend their vacations in Colorado at moderate expense. Pensioned members of the National league will also be maintained at Denver.
