John V. Streed Is Found Dying at Cambridge From Wound in Head. MYSTERY ENVELOPS THE CASE. Revolver, With One Chamber Empty, Is Found Beneath the Body, While the Attorney's Pistol Was in a Drawer in His Room.

Cambridge, Ill., dispatch: John V. Streed of Cambridge, vice president of the state organization of the Swedish-American Republican league and one of the widest known attorneys of Henry county, is dead as the result of a bullet wound inflicted in the back of his head. The coroner's jury is wrestling with the question whether he was murdered or committed suicide.

Under the body when it was moved there was found a revolver, thirty-two caliber and chambered. Five of the chambers were loaded, but the sixth was empty. It is supposed that the bullet from this sixth chamber was the one which entered Mr. Streed's head.

The attorney's own revolver was found in a drawer in his room. In the pool of blood in which the head lay was found a handkerchief, giving rise to the belief that the dying man had taken it from his pocket after he had been wounded.

Lamps Were Burning. Mr. Streed had his law offices above the postoffice on East street and had living rooms on the opposite side of the hall above the Chronicle office. It was to these rooms that he proceeded when he left the livery stable at 11 o'clock Monday night after returning from a drive to Alpena, twenty miles west. He is married, but his wife is now residing at the rail home of her parents. He had no children.

When the body was found it was fully dressed and it appeared that the clothes had not been removed after he left the stable. Tuesday morning after the body had been discovered and men went to Mr. Streed's rooms they found two lamps burning, one in the front and the other in the back room.

Case Is Puzzling. On the table in one of the rooms were numerous papers and it seemed that Mr. Streed had been reading the letters previous to his departure. There is difficulty in reconciling people here to a theory of either murder or suicide. Mr. Streed had no enemies so far as known, hence there appears no motive for murder, yet the direction of the bullet wound in the head makes some people certain that the gun was not fired by his own hand.

Mr. Streed's business affairs were in good condition and his domestic relations were happy. His practice was increasing and he apparently had no reason for taking his own life. The whole affair is shrouded in great mystery.

DEATH SEEMED NEAR. How a Chicago Woman Found Help When Hope Was Fast Fading Away. Mrs. E. T. Gould, 914 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are all that saved me from death of Bright's Disease. I was so weak, that I knew I had eye trouble, backache, aches and pains, and when lying about or when bending over, was languid and often in a dizziness and had sick headaches and bearing-down pains. The kidney secretions were too copious and frequent, and very bad in appearance. It was in 1903 that Doan's Kidney Pills helped me so quickly and cured me of these troubles and I've been well ever since."

A Barbarous Punishment. Gen. Dragomiroff, the aged adviser of the czar, rose from the ranks, and through war and according to the regulations for the common soldier. One day, while driving about St. Petersburg in his carriage, he noticed a soldier with longer hair than the regulations called for. He had the horses stopped, alighted, and taking of his hat, ordered the soldier to seize him by the hair. The soldier hesitated. He feared to lay violent hands on his general; besides, the hair was clipped too close to afford a hold for the hands.

The general surveyed the soldier sternly for a few moments; then, twining his fingers in the latter's locks, he literally wiped up the street with him, the victim not daring to resist. Finally, having impressed the lesson thoroughly, he re-entered his carriage and drove on, ordering the soldier to follow. At the first barber's shop they came to he alighted and had every vestige of hair shaved from the soldier's head, then turned him loose as a horrible example to his fellows.

THOUSANDS OF LIVES SAVED BY "MOTHER'S MEDICINE CHEST" AND PATENT PRESCRIPTIONS. Commenting on attacks made by certain eastern publications on some of the best known and most valuable of the world's medicinal preparations, the Committee on Legislation of the Proprietary Association says: "All through the country districts, in every class of families, you will find in the farm houses the old family remedies, sometimes called 'patent medicines,' many of which have been in use in the same household for generations. Among such people the old-fashioned proprietary medicine, always at hand with full printed instructions for use, is one of the necessities of life."
