The HOLSMAN Automobile

PERFECT IN CONSTRUCTION, CHEAP IN PRICE and COST OF OPERATING

When you see the HOLSMAN machine it will make you its friend at once for these reasons:

1. Solid tires, admitting of no punctures.
2. Air cooled. No water to contend with, or broken jackets which occur in frosty weather.
3. No live axles.
4. No transmission gears.
5. No drive gears.
6. No speed gears. In fact, not any gears to contend with. No clutches. The machine rides as easy as the best made carriage and is controlled by two simple hand levers. Is started, guided, stopped, speeded, reversed and fully controlled by these two simple levers.

Should you have a breakdown, repairs are quickly secured. However, the chances of a breakdown are slim in a Holzman.

A Juvenile Superstition.

There is a stone in the high wall that surrounds Girard college that has for years been the object of a juvenile tradition, says the Philadelphia Record. It is situated on the Ridge street front and is halfway between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets and five feet from the pavement. The stone is one of the regular stones of the wall, but it has the peculiarity of being perfectly round in shape and a peculiar reddish brown in color. There is not a boy who lives in that section who does not regard it as the lucky stone and call it such. According to the boyish superstition, every lad who passes it should spit on it and make a wish, which will come true, and should he ignore the stone in passing and not spit is sure to come. Curious persons, hearing of the superstition, have passed in the vicinity and watched a boy after boy spit on the stone as he passed.

The Glass Eye Corp.

The glass eye corp comes from Thuringia. As Newfoundlanders are fishermen or as Cubans are tobacco growers, so the typical Thuringian is a maker of glass eyes. Almost every Thuringian house is a little eye factory. Four men sit at a table, each with a gas jet before him, and the eyes are blown from plates and pressed into shape by hand. The colors are traced in with small needles, and, as no set rule is observed in the coloring, no two eyes are exactly alike. Sometimes a one eyed man or woman—come, maybe, from a great distance—sits before one of these Thuringian tables, posing for a glass orb, and the artisan, with his gas jet, his glass and his needle, looks up at the sitter and then down at his work, and altogether the scene suggests a portrait painter at work in his studio.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Wise Mirth.

There is a saying of Chamfort which many serious minded people, under the pressure of care and work, would do well to lay to heart. "The most thoroughly wasted of all days is that on which one has not laughed." It has often been said that only they who take life with profound seriousness can be really humorous, for they alone perceive those fundamental contrasts which make humor possible. It is true Emerson hated to laugh, but his radiant smile was better than laughter. Carlyle, on the contrary, was given to earth shaking laughter—a kind of Berkeley laughter, not without undertones of pathos running through it. Lincoln's love of stories, both in the hearing and the telling, was a safety valve for one whose tremendous burdens fell on a temperament deeply tinged with sadness.—London Outlook.

True Snobbishness.

Unfold depths of snobbishness among freewheeling Americans seem to be revealed by a recent incident that is worthy of a place in literature. A wealthy and cultured family of good ancestry, but who did not happen to figure as social leaders in a certain city, received invitations for a wedding among people whom they knew very well, but whose social aspirations were rather more pronounced than their own. The gift selected for the bride was a beautiful clock. It was bought at one of the best shops, and the cards of the givers were left to be sent with the clock at a certain date. Time passed, the wedding came off, but no acknowledgment reached the people who sent the clock. The clerk remembered shipping it with the cards, but nothing further was known until a mutual friend of the two families was moved to make inquiries of the bride's mother. This lady seemed to be a little vague about it, but it eventually transpired that the ambitious young bride had removed the cards of the donors and had substituted that of a conspicuous society leader with whom she happened to have the nearest calling acquaintance.—Harper's Bazar.
