Badly Mixed Up.

Abraham Brown, of Winterton, N. Y., had a very remarkable experience; he says: "Doctors got badly mixed up over me; one said heart disease; two called it kidney trouble; the fourth, blood poison and the fifth, stomach and liver trouble; but none of them helped me; so my wife advised trying Electric Blisters, which are restoring me to perfect health. One bottle did me more good than all the five doctors prescribed." Guaranteed for blood poison, weakness and all stomach, liver and kidney complaints by Barrington Pharmacy, 60c.

Miss Cudahy has finished reading "Seraph, the Little Violinist" to her pupils. She will now read "The Minnie Boys of Lexington" which the children have purchased with nickels and pennies dropped in the box on the teacher's desk.

The third regular meeting for this school year of the Cook County Teachers' Association will be held in the Association building auditorium, Saturday, December 14th. Prof. E. Sparks of Pennsylvania state college will on "Robert Morris, the unknown patriot."

A Real Wonderland.

South Dakota, with its rich silver mine, bonanza farms, wide ranges and strange natural formations, is a veritable wonderland. At Mound City, in the home of Mrs. E. D. Clapp, a wonderful case of healing has lately occurred. Her son seemed near death with lung and throat trouble.

"Exhausting coughs" occurred every five minutes," writes Mrs. Clapp, "when I began giving Dr. King's New Discovery, the great medicine, that saved his life and completely cured him." Guaranteed for coughs and colds, throat and lung troubles, by Barrington Pharmacy, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Lucky For Her.

Little Gerlie was on a visit to her three maiden aunts, the sisters of her mother. Each of them held distinct and original views as to how children should be brought up. Aunt Maria thought little girls should be seen and not heard, Aunt Elizabeth they should be neither heard nor seen, and Aunt Jane was certain that little girls should not be at all. These views they expressed freely to Gerlie as they sat one evening in the drawing room with their niece. The conversation, being one sided, however, began to flag, and Gerlie sat meditatively gazing into space.

"Of what are you thinking?" Aunt Maria asked her sharply.

"I was just thinking what a lucky thing it was that father married the sister he did," said the little girl.

"Why was it that Gerlie was sent home next morning?" London T. H. Bitt.

The Speed Mania.

Just as there are some persons upon whom even one glass of wine exercises an exciting and stimulating effect, so there are human beings upon whom speed at all high produce a craving for rapid motion. The best drivers, both amateur and professional, that I have known in an experience extending over ten years have either never given way to speed mania or have cured themselves of it.—Car Magazine.

His Taste.

"What business is papa in, mamma?"

"Why, he's a tea sampler. He samples the different kinds of tea."

"Mamma?"

"Yes, my boy."

"But you know what I want to be when I grow up?"

"No. What, my boy?"

"A pie sampler."—Yonkers Statesman.

"Seeing Glass" or Looking Glass.

The following is an extract from the will of a Lincolnshire farmer, dated Aug. 1, 1798:

"Item I also give to my wife the bed she now lies on, one oval table, one Tea table, one Round table, three round backed chairs, one spindle chair, my chaise (sic) and Tea table. Silver spoons, one Baril (sic) warming pan and a Seeing Glass and Tongs."—London Notes and Queries.

The opinion, which was once quite prevalent, that originally all mankind had one and the same speech is now largely held by competent authorities. Language is a growth, and the various tongues have reached their present status through countless ages of development.

Address to servant who comes down very late in the morning—"Doesn't that alarm clock I gave you wake you up in the morning, Jane?"

Jane—"Oh, no, ma'am, not now, thank you." It worried me a good deal at first, ma'am, but I've got used to it.—London Telegraph.

It is said to be a rather curious circumstance that some of the most important inventions have been made by lunatics.

"Pop, how is gas made?"

"Well, as the gas companies simply make light of the consumer's complaints."—Exchange.

It Would Improve It.

A clergyman speaking on charity held that charity which was not graceful and clean was bound to fail, bringing in the door more instead of gratitude.

"Thus," he once said in a Sunday school address, "a rich landlord while making the rounds of his tenants' cottages following each and a little girl whose beauty much impressed him.

"In the shabby front room of the cottage the landlord talked for awhile with the little girl, and as he rose to go an unwonted feeling of kindness warned his heart.

"Let me see," he said, fishing in his pockets—let me see if I haven't something to give to this dear little girl."

"Oh, standing and chucking, he went through pocket after pocket. Finally in his hip pocket he found a peppermint drop, a white peppermint drop. He dusted the dirt and lint from it and extended it gratefully to the little girl.

"Here we are," he cried, "I thought we had something. Here is a nice peppermint drop for you. And now, be careful, what will you do with it?"

"Wash it," said the little girl gravely."

Beginnings of Baseball.

The history of the American game dates from the first National Association of Baseball in New York in 1858. The first series of important match games was played between picked teams of Brooklyn and New York, at Flushing, in the same year. Nearly 2,000 persons—a large crowd for those days—paid their 20 cents a head to see the contest. The rules of baseball were very crude in those days. The pitcher's position was before home on a twelve foot line forty-five feet from the home base, behind which he could take any number of slips he wished. All he was required to do was to pitch the ball as best as possible over the home base. There was no penalty for wild pitching or for refusing to strike at fair balls. I once saw a pitcher deliver sixty balls to a single batsman in one inning before there was a strike. Not until 1870 were there any paraphernalia for defense. Old time catchers' hands were a sight with their cracked joints and bruised palms.—Harry Chadwick in Outing.

French Bull.

The number of phrases of the class called "bull" to be found in polite works are not all the product of the Irish brain.

A novel that was crowned by the French academy as possessing of unusual merit contained a sentence of which the following is a translation: "It was a bull, the man who lay in ambush listened to their conversation, but suddenly a dense, dark cloud passed in front of the moon and prevented him from hearing more."

Another phrase written in downright seriousness by a master of French criticism, runs something like this:

"It was one of those insects in which one of the legs is literally buried in the heart of the other."—Minneapolis Journal.

Their Little Surprise.

They were elopers, and the stern parent was supposed to be in pursuit. But he wasn't. On the contrary, a telegram awaited them at the next town. "Is it forgiveness?" asked the delighted youth as he handed it to the angelic one. She read it through and burst into tears. Then she started young took it and read it aloud. "Your mother and I offer congratulations. Your happy action meets with our approval. We can now carry out a plan that we have long contemplated and which was largely only because we had you with us. In other words, we are about to break up housekeeping and go into a flat"—Arbuzant.

Helpless!

A city man had a friend in from a north country, farm on a business meet for the other day, and they lunched together at a restaurant. The Cork man ate his meal entirely with his knife. When he was near the end he discovered that he had no fork.

"Look here," he said to the city man, "that waiter didn't give me a fork."

"Well, you don't need one," replied the city man seriously.

"The devil I don't!" came from the farmer. "What am I going to stir my coffee with?"—London Opinion.

A Graceful Withdrawal.

"Do you know who that old man is talking to our hostess?" asked Mrs. Runderer of the lady sitting beside her.

"That," answered the woman coldly, "is my son."

"Oh!" gasped Mrs. Runderer in confusion, "he's a good deal older than you are, is he not?"—Lippincott's.

Concentration.

The Servant profession, there is a thief in the dining room. The astronomer (deep in calculation)—Tell him pin too deep to see him!—Translated For Transatlantic Tales From II Motte per Blaire.

Not Improbable.

"I understand in France a fine is imposed when a train is late."

"Do you believe they fine the train?"

"As to that I can't say. I know they always dock the boats."—St. Louis Republic.

Why He Was Happy.

Briggs-Hudson seems to be happy. Briggs—Yes; he has little money, but he possesses a philosophical temperament and simple tastes. Briggs—Lose. He is independently poor.—Jahob.

It is not your duty to so live that you will be satisfied with yourself, but to so live that your wife will be satisfied with you.—Houston Post.
