I would rather plant a single acorn that will make an oak of a century and a forest of a thousand years, than sow a thousand morning glories that give joy for a day and gone tomorrow. For the same reason I would rather plant one living truth in the heart of a child that will multiply through the ages, than scatter a thousand brilliant conceits before a great audience that will flash like sparks for an instant, and like sparks disappear forever.

A TEACHER.

We first make our habits, then our habits make us.—Dryden.

Tell Their Fortunes

The Rebecca Lodge made merry last Friday evening after their regular meeting with a reception to members and friends. L. H. Bennett assumed the role of fortune teller and dressed in an astrologer's gown of red with astronomical designs for decorations. He made a prophet whose predictions were faithfully believed and as quite a number of the forty present were called forth by Mrs. W. Wilmer, chairman of the entertaining committee, to have his past, present and future revealed the audience was delighted with Mr. Bennett's wonderful imagination. However he was an unusual fake for his memory and visions didn't have to be assisted by "silver". A luncheon of ice-cream and cake was served.
