Two Menials From a Great Case.
Henry K. Thaw had a fair trial. But his money didn't give him a one-sided trial, as it was often predicted would be the case. He was saved from the electric chair by the very argument that the prosecuting attorney himself injected into the trial the first time. He said that it would be a wrong to prosecute an insane man for murder. Thaw's money couldn't win a stronger case, when the state's attorney believed was on the side of justice. There will always be two opinions as to where criminal responsibility ends and where it begins, and the weight of testimony in this case seemed to show that the impulse that led to the killing was of insane origin. And more riches should not rob a man of the benefit of a doubt.

Another lesson from the case is that men of position and influence in great cities do not as a rule take under their wings attractive and talented young women simply to encourage their merit. Talented young women are as thick as blackberries in this country. The mother who fondly imagines that her daughter is one among a thousand and that all the attentions of a man to her are in the nature of appreciation of talent which deserves to be encouraged is probably spelling mishap for her. If she trusts these fair appearances. Human nature has not changed since the courts of kings were dens of rampant corruption. The higher up the scale is the more insidious it becomes for the innocent one. More decency is trusted to encourage than that decency is only a suit of sheep's clothing with a ravenous wolf inside. So it is well to beware of the patron of art culture when the object of his interest is an attractive young woman without safeguards at every turn.

A writer in the Congressionalist has a striking paper on the degeneracy and worse which prevails in American back country roads. The particularly significant thing about the article is that the subject is treated as though it pertained to something comparatively new in our civilization. It is not new. The evil is as old as the hills, and it is everywhere and perhaps at its worst in our oldest settlements. It is an appalling picture which the writer presents for a land of churches, schools and libraries, and "patronizing missionary effort." The misleading description, "degeneracy, immorality, heathenism and sudden ignorance," covers the whole ground without going into the dark details.

Such descriptions fit conditions over which moralists wailed fifty and twenty-five and ten years ago. Signs of the nature described may be found within ten miles of our largest and wealthiest and most charitable cities, and they increase as the distance widens to fifty and a hundred miles from the sounds of cathedral bells. It is a startling thought that the nation became excited over questions of the face outside, pernis in milk, the fluctuating attendance at church and the importation of Asiatic heathenism and shuts its eyes to the race decay, the soil degeneracy, the festering moral ulcer affecting millions of our countrymen who are next door neighbors in so far as contiguity of habitations makes people neighbors. And the worst of it all is that into these hotbeds of human waste and sin and crime there is an annual re-enforcement poured by the steerage from the country and city slums of the old world.

A common experience in New York the last few months has been that an anxious bank depositor would read in his evening paper something like this: "President of the bank declares that his institution has weathered the storm and is in perfect condition to meet all demands upon it." At the bank next morning he bumps against the shoves of the clerks, simply "Closed," locked on the door.

Portugal has about as many inhabitants as Illinois. It costs the little kingdom nearly half a million dollars each year to support royalty. The debt of Portugal is almost as great as that of this country, which has sixteen times its population and more than a hundred times its wealth and resources.

"A soldier is no better than the boots," said Wellington. In this day and generation he would no longer declare that a navy is no better than its surgeons.

London's July pagant as planned will present in spectacle the Roman, Danish and Norman conquests. Is it friendly to omit the American invasion?

The whole country will be alert for what may happen at the next national convention of the Prohibition party.

LAKE ZURICH

Mrs. Otto Frank and sisters, Till and Lydia Hokemeyer, visited at their home in Gilmer Sunday.

Mrs. Mabel Kimball has returned home from Camp Wisconsin where she has been visiting the past two weeks.

Will Eichman of Arlington Heights visited at his home Sunday, he also attended the dance Saturday evening.

Miss Mary Patten of Lake Bluff has been visiting friend relatives here the past week.

The dance Saturday evening was well attended about ninety tickets being sold. The music was enjoyed by all. Mr. Dicknase will give a leap year dance the 24th of this month.

Harry Marquette returned from Janesville, Wisconsin, Tuesday morning. He has been home with an attack of grippe.

William Reese and Miss H. Holmes of Barrington called at the Ernst home Sunday.

Lawrence's Flag.

Considerable levity has marked the discussion in some quarters of the flag of the United States frigate Chesapeake, which Captain Lawrence defended with his life in 1813 by fighting against great odds the British frigate Shannon off Boston. The deflection was the historic ship deck of modern times. Anglo-savagery of that fight, the view of which will make men and women and boys and girls read the deeds of Lawrence and his crew. Is a national pride, regardless of its history unenviable.

But this Lawrence flag is more than that. It is a rare souvenir of the development of Old Glory itself. It was given such a flag that Francis Scott Key saw the "thirteen stripes and thirteen stars in the morning's dim light" that led to his beautiful conception of our national flag song. This flag had fifteen stripes and fifteen stars. The thirteen stripes and thirteen stars, as originally designed to represent the thirteen colonies forming the Union when the flag was adopted. In 1818 the thirteen stripe regulation was again adopted, and so the Lawrence flag is a model which obtained only from 1794 to 1818. This covered the war of 1812 with its memories of Fort Mifflin, Old Ironsides and Jackson's cotton bales at New Orleans, as well as the peaceful raising of the stars and stripes over the French tricolor when the Louisiana Purchase was ceded to this country in 1803. Surely this is a relic to awaken patriotic interest and veneration.

There is some funny fighting in the French campaign against the tribesmen of Morocco. The world reads of the heroism of the soldiers of France—mostly Arabs from Algeria—in many brushings of the Moors, and then the dispatches wind up by telling of half a dozen men wounded. It carries one back to the days of the Cuban revolution.

A New York preacher wants the women in his congregation to remove their headwear because "it is mighty hard to talk through a lot of hats." Quite right. One at a time is enough for any one.

The person who is inquiring, "What becomes of the old shoes?" should be patient a little longer. They are still trying to find out what sausage is composed of.

The volunteer fire department held a social supper at the Union hotel Saturday night.

Mrs. House entertained quite a number of friends Tuesday in celebration of her birthday. Mrs. W. P. Shering also gave a birthday party last Friday.

Mrs. Nathan P. Keyes, an old resident of Palatine township who is related to many Palatine people, died in Chicago Friday at her daughter's home, aged eighty-one years. Interment was here on Tuesday.

H. Quindell is doing nicely after his severe fall of last week.

Mrs. Henry Schindler is improving after a serious illness.

A new club has been organized in town. William Langhous is president and Albert Dabius, secretary. They have rooms in the Schering building.

Report current that one of our stove-keepers recently sold some hard-boiled eggs for fresh ones. Can Barrington hens beat that?

QUENTIN'S CORNERS
Mrs. Bertha Lawson and son, Vernon, of Palatine are spending a few days at her parents here.

Daniel Strum has purchased the old home farm of his father. It is a good move for a son to take up a father's work when the latter retires.

We are sorry to report that Fred Fullin is still sick with a severe inflammation of the lungs.

Fred Feederle and wife were here Sunday calling on friends and relatives.

Mrs. H. H. Pahlman is under the doctor's care at present. She is one of the pioneers in this vicinity and is reported to be over ninety years old.

Fred Grever is also sick with a bad case of grippe.

Albert Hoelt has gone to North Dakota to inspect land that he owns there.

Died, at the age of seventy-five years, last Wednesday night, Mrs. William Erving, Sr., after a lingering illness of five years or more of heart trouble. She came from Germany in the early fifties and located on a farm here. Interment was at Fairview cemetery by the side of her husband. She leaves three sons, William, Louis and Gottlieb and one daughter, Mrs. Chris Freundt.

Our cheese factory will in a few days turn out a new product never made here before, called "Prime Oat." The factory is paying the farmers a good price for their milk and all seem well pleased with the treatment received.

Keeping Open House.
Everybody is welcome when we feel good; and we feel that way only when our digestive organs are working. Dr. King's New Life Pills regulate the action of stomach, liver and bowels so perfectly one can't help feeling good when he uses these pills. At Barrington Pharmacy.

She Knows.
"No," she said, "you don't really love me."
"Yes, I swear I do," he protested.
"I love you with all my soul. I would ask you to be my wife tomorrow if I were properly situated."
"But his wife was useless. She had studied human nature and knew that when a man is really in love he doesn't stop to consider whether he can afford to marry or not."
"No matter how intensely a wife may hate when her husband is talking for his sleep, she very seldom learns anything of real importance. And the result would usually be about the same if she should listen to everything he says while he is awake."—Somerville Journal.

Neighborhood Favorite.
Mrs. E. B. Charles, of Harbor, Main, making of Electric Bitters, says: "It is a neighborhood favorite here with us." It deserves to be a favorite everywhere. It gives quick relief in dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney derangement, indigestion, nervousness, weakness and general debility. Its action on the blood, as a thorough purifier makes it especially useful as a spring medicine. This grand alternative tonic is sold under guarantee at Barrington Pharmacy, Ill.
