A Monarch's Last Stand.

Political news from Lisbon having been censored since the revolutionary outbreak last May, the world has been left considerably in the dark as to the true situation in Portugal. Enough has been learned, however, to lead outsiders to the conclusion that the stability of the administration, possibly the life of the dynasty, was at stake. There were rumors of the proposed abdication of the king and of the probable elevation of the crown prince to succeed his father on the throne as a ruler who would be more acceptable to the critics than the reigning king had been of late. For some reason the opposition seems finally to have distrusted the son as well as the father, and both met the same doom.

King Carlos is the second monarch to be summarily disposed of within the last five years. Whatever the impulsive impulses that nerved the assassins of King Carlos, he seems to have fallen in a nobler cause than did the king of Serbia, who, together with his queen, was literally butchered at midnight in his palace in 1903. King Alexander's offense was siding with a queen who had gained the hatred, even the scorn, of his subjects. He may be said to have invited his fate by refusing absolutely to respect the rights and feelings of the Serbian nation. King Carlos died a martyr to reform. He was the point of view of the throne. Perhaps he had done his share in making reform necessary. He went about the business of "cleaning up" heroically and he doubt broke with some of his old partners in crime, to use no stronger term. It was said that long before the depositions of the infamous Tweed ring in New York city reached a point where the public was aroused to righteous wrath one of the partners in graft tried to call a halt. He warned the greedy cabal that the limit had been reached and that stealing must stop. His voice was not heeded, and the end was calamity for the ring.

Assuming that King Carlos was among the chief officers in the deposing of Portugal's treasury, and he was the chief if while king he knew what was going on and was too complacent or too uxorious or too cowardly to stop it, he took a hard and when he attempted to stem the tide and turn his back upon old crimes. Love turned to hate breeds the fiercest of hatreds. The king's enemies knew his weaknesses from nearby views. For him to have been the first to denounce the champion reform was an Arnold Winkelried act. He drew all the spears of the foe to his own breast. For him to fall was to paralyze the hopes of his dynasty; for him to fail was to give reform a staggering blow. It is difficult to demonstrate the difference between a reform party and a reform monarch. In a party leaders fall, but the principle moves on. "The king is dead," "Long live the king!" applies to the person, not to the most ideal centering around the throne. As a free people, we Americans may be thankful that we have a sovereign with a heart invulnerable to daggers and bullets. Every man is sovereign, and, with respect to the moral impulse moving the government, every voter is a king.

To Improve National Forest Ranges. The government has planned a series of scientific reseeding experiments on several of the national forest ranges next spring and summer to determine under what conditions and in what manner those portions of the range which have been seriously damaged by overgrazing may be restored to their former productivity. Experiments will first be made on five or six acre tracts. Both native and wild grasses will be tried, but it is believed that the plan of encouraging native grasses will meet with greater success than the introduction of cultivated species, at least in the Rocky mountain region.

A great deal of the range land is overgrazed and does not carry as much stock as formerly. The method of handling stock, particularly sheep, is perhaps more responsible for this condition than any other cause. But all causes of deterioration and all means for improving the forage crop need to be studied, that the range may be brought into its best condition.

The announcement of a fresh novel by William Dean Howells does not set the world agog, but it surely is possible that an author who has written so many good fictions can still spring a surprise upon the reading public.

The usual skepticism regarding "stage money" will be shaken by the fact that the closing of a bank in the theatrical district has tied up actors' deposits ranging from $70 to $40,000.

One good way to locate an unsafe investment is to find out whether Mr. Twain, who is "often taken in," has been permitted to get in on the ground floor.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The Lauran Literary Society, consisting of the high school teachers and thirty-one high school girls, held its regular meeting at the school house Monday evening, February 17th. After singing songs, reading minutes of meetings, and the roll call, to which each member responded with a memory gem, a short business meeting was held, a report from the constitution committee was heard and plans for the next meeting, March 2nd, were made. Each member had prepared a valentine for another member and when this part of the program was reached, Miss EPIS suggested that they go to the library to distribute valentines. At the library they were greeted by Miss Bray who had charge of the valentines in a ponderous heart-shaped receptacle. Each valentine had upon it a home made rhyme, which was read aloud. Interesting stories were told, after which the teachers served dainty and palatable refreshments. The library was beautifully adorned with appropriate decorations and on the table was a beautiful bouquet of white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Fulton were guests of the club. The large Lauran hall was won by Stella Harman for making the finest creation from a paper napkin. Miss Viola Lines, speaking for the girls of the society, sincerely thanked the teachers for the interest shown in its welfare.

Earl Powers made the school a short visit Tuesday morning, and Elmer Gleske was with us a part of Wednesday. We always enjoy these visits from the pupils that have gone out from the school.

Coming Actions.

Wm. Stephen's auction, which was to have been last Tuesday, has been postponed until Monday, February 24th at ten o'clock. He will sell twenty-six head of live stock and his entire farming outfit.

Having sold farm I will offer for sale in the public square in the village of Barrington, Tuesday, February 25, commencing at 9 o'clock a. m. Three horses, good workers; consisting of 1 pair geldings weighing 2000 lbs.; good black gelding 1800 lbs.; good Champion grain binder; McCormick corn tender; 2 spring tooth cultivators; new Hoosier seeder; Oliver gang plow; good corn planter; 4 walking plows; 3 sets drags; hay rack; hay rack; 4 wide tire farm wagon; milk wagon; pulverizer; 2 sets farm harness; 4 racks straw; 12 tons slough hay in barn. Terms of sale: All sums of $10 and under, cash. All sums over that amount, 6 months time will be given on good bankable notes at 7 per cent interest.

P. A. HAWLEY

Wm. Peters will be the auctioneer at these sales.

Advertise all the Time.

The country newspapers have been fighting mail order houses hard for years for the benefit of the home merchant, and some of the merchants appreciate this and some of them do not. If the mail order houses would practice advertising by "spurs" in certain seasons of the year, like some of the country merchants, they would soon go out of business. While the local or home merchant keeps his business "under a bushel" so to speak, one of their local paper on account of hot, dry or wet weather, or bad roads, they are giving the mail order houses the advantage of them before the people, for these houses never stop advertising for any kind of weather or dull times.

Met With Mrs. Weichelt. Mrs. Arthur Weichelt opened her lovely home to the Thursday club and invited guests this week. Mrs. Elizabeth Peck had charge of a "Washington" program and interesting papers were read by Mrs. Colten, Mrs. Hawley and Mrs. Otis. In a contest which followed Mrs. Brockway proved able to name the most flags correctly and received a dainty calendar. The dining room, where the ladies were seated at one long table, was beautifully red, white and blue decorations and patriotic pictures. Mrs. Weichelt is an ideal hostess and the club always enjoys a visit at her home.

Basket Social. A basket social will be given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. for the benefit of the base ball team at the Village hall, Saturday evening, February 22nd, at 8 o'clock. A short program will be given which will be found very interesting. The ladies of the vicinity are asked to furnish baskets which will be sold at auction to the highest bidder. Admission free.

Miss Nettie Gelster, of Elgin, a professional whistler and a friend of the H. J. Jageschule family, will be present to entertain.

The ladies of the Dorcas society of the Baptist church have a few fine made rugs for sale. Any one wishing to see them can get them at the church Tuesday afternoon.

The Jumping Off Place.
"Consumption had me in its grasp and I had almost reached the jumping off place when I was advised to try Dr. King's New Discovery; and I want to say right now, it saved my life. Improvement began with the first bottle, and after taking a dozen bottles I was a well and happy man again," says George Moore, of Grimesland, North Carolina. As a remedy for coughs and colds and leader of weak, sore lungs and for preventing pneumonia New Discovery is suggested. 50c and $1.00 at Barrington Pharmacy. Trial bottle free.

Will Invite You to Dinner.
The town of Cuba presents the name of the general proprietor of The Commercial Hotel of Barrington for collector of taxes, to be elected at the election in April. Mr. Lines will make the town a good neighbor and, of course, when the boys go in to pay taxes, he'll invite them to dinner so they'll get even with him for the favor, and he will get rich out of the commission on their taxes.—Wauconda Leader.
