7,000 HOMELESS IN FLOOD

KAW RIVER OVERFLOWS NEAR NORTH TOPEKA, KAN.

Private Homes Are Opened to Those Driven Out by Rising Waters—Stream Will Soon Be Normal.

Topeka, Kan.—About 7,000 persons have been driven from their homes in North Topeka by the flood in the Kaw river. The major portion found shelter in Topeka proper, where the auditorium, school buildings and private homes have been opened to them. No loss of life is reported, but there has been much property loss. The crest of the flood reached Topeka Tuesday, when the government river gauge showed a register of 27.3 feet. Saturday there was a registration of 27 feet, indicating a fall of three inches. This is five feet below the highest mark of the disastrous 1903 flood.

The government weather bureau says the river will continue to fall unless another rise comes from above Manhattan. No rains fell in the territory above here, but showers are predicted.

In North Topeka the water was running at an average depth over the town of three feet. Around Garfield park, the northern end, the water is four to five feet deep, with considerable current. At Grand Central, the business center, a depth of three feet prevails and at Laurent, four blocks north of the river bridge, the water is two feet deep with considerable current. In "Little Russia," the east suburb, five feet of back water prevails.

The farmers up the Kaw valley have suffered great loss, as the water has been from bluff to bluff at Rossville and Silver Lake, a width of two miles. A rise of three feet in the Solomon river at Salina during the night is reported and a slight fall at Marston and Silver Lake. AGAIN DECLINED WITH THANKS.

Wrote Contributor "Up Against" the Misanthrope Editor.

The editor looked up as the caller came forward, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Sir," said the latter, "you objected to the meter of the spring poem I submitted to you the other day. Because of this I have for the present dropped poetry and turned my attention to the writing of the essayist. Here, sir, is a paper on 'Woman and Her Defects,' which I trust you will read to your liking."

The editor stared hard at the title of the essay.

"'Woman and Her Defects,'" he repeated. "Are you a married man, sir?"

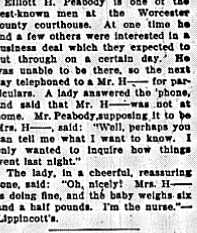

"No," replied the caller, "I am not married."

The editor laughed harshly.

"You should choose subjects," he said, "with which you have had an opportunity to become familiar."

And he handed back the essay on "Woman and Her Defects."
