Head Blood in Fiction. Harper's Weekly recently scolded a reactionary note against the present day demands among American readers for novels of action.

How fate plays pranks with mortals is again demonstrated by the experience of Miss Peck, who made a record by climbing 25,000 feet to a mountain top in Peru a few months ago.

St. Louis' claim for distinction as "the best place in the world for aeroplanes to sail away from" could well have been endorsed by the population boomers before publication.

The "whisk" of the green hat is declared to be the variety of mankind. But often a warry "peters out" into a yelp.

It is easy to let the other fellow do the worrying after you once get the happy-go-lucky pace.

Anyway no trust will ever "control" Roosevelt either as editor or senator.

With net earnings making a letter showing that a year ago, when the railroads of the country were swamped with freight, and with the brightest outlook for business just ahead, the common carriers have no sound reason to court trouble with shippers, consumers and the government by putting up rates. The plea of poverty won't go, for the roads will soon be faring well with the old rates in force.

It seems that neither General Gordon, Roosevelt nor any other American could take that word "frazzle," for it was current in England before Columbus ever discovered himself. At least this is the claim of the Westminster Gazette.

The country now has "Congress on its hands," but hopes it will soon be reversed and that the other fellow's hands will make a good job of it.

That sudden and mysterious "taking off" of the empress dowager and the imprisoned emperor of China has enough of the color of "deep damnation" in it to induce outsiders against the palace clique.

Short Session of Congress. Important legislation is seldom expected from congress in a short session.

In view of its origin and scope the country life investigation will doubtless arouse discussion and lead to action.

It is to be hoped that the country life commission will not send in a report of "All's well" until it has taken at least one squint along the back road fringes of the interior.

If promoters of "just as good as money" articles would get busy on all commodities they might put a stop to clamor for a tariff to fence out stuff "made in Germany."

Cuba's new president, who can speak Spanish, but not English, will find that he must think in English and act the part or Uncle Sam will make him "speak Spanish" too.

That foolish casualty list of over 300 in 1908 goes to prove that head-on collisions pan out in gridiron events just the same as they do on the rail.

The Man Who Thought He Was In Love.

By LULU JOHNSON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The worst of it all was that Alice was happy. "That" Buckle told himself, "was the cup of the clinax."

By all precedent that very thing should have happened. Instead of which Alice presently became engaged to Harry Post, and the expression of gloom which had become habitual to Ted's face deepened to a scowl.

He did not go near his office, but late in the afternoon his mother informed

Slowly he followed the path along the fields, where he was least likely to be observed.

Now the foliage was dead and withered, flung to the ground as his own heart had been, and the plant stretched their naked arms to the gusting winds in dumb supplication.

Ted slipped the harvest time, but now the weeds were like, dead. The chill of winter was in the air and in the dull November clouds.

"Ted rose slowly to his feet, and as he did so he glanced about and made a third. He felt that he could not stand by any more the loving glances which the two would exchange.

"That's what I wanted to do," reminded Ted, "but you wouldn't have it. Has Harry liked you?" "Merely don't want you to marry me" was the hurried reply.

He interrupted. "That's just the trouble, Ted. You are having a lovely time with your heartache, and you don't want to give it up yet, but I can't be really happy with Harry because with the thought of your accusing eye following me."

"Then forget it," advised Ted ineffectually. "That's what I want you to do," explained Alice. "You never were really in love with me. I know it, and you know it. That is why we were always quarreling. We used to get along beautifully before we became engaged, when you realized the mistake you had made because you became ill married."

"All on my side" asked Ted. "I suppose that I was just as mean," admitted Alice. "but it was because we both realized that we had made a mistake. I want you to forget all about it. Marry Beth Agnes or Letty Fredericks or Nancy Bellman."

"What's the matter with Audrey Dunbar?" demanded Ted. "She is the only eligible you left out." "You wouldn't like her?" protested Alice hastily. "I should hate to see you married to her. You would never get along with her."

Ted carried the tag to Alice's home, and it was late that on the way they should pass the disconsolate Miss Dunbar and that Ted should be unusually festive, while Alice was barely civil.

He did not know that Alice could be so pretty, and he was glad when he could leave the burden on her porch, and hurry away before her little speech of thanks was half completed.

Just to show Alice what he thought of her conduct, he escorted Audrey to the wedding and smiled sarcastically when she caught the bridal bouquet, an unflattering sign that she was to be the next bride.

There were three weeks of the honeymoon, and Harry was giving the news to the new Mrs. Post after his first trip downtown.

"So mother was telling me," was the reply. "I expected it, but not so soon."

"I didn't suppose that you would relish such a quick desertion," said Harry, with a laugh. But Alice only smiled.

"Our whole family has enjoyed good health since we began using Dr. King's New Life Pills, three years ago," says L. A. Bartlett, of Rural Route 1, Guilford, Maine.

Safe aerial navigation was possible yet the telephone toll lines would be the fastest, most satisfying means of communication between distant points. Chicago Telephone Company.

A Dangerous Operation is the removal of the appendix by a surgeon. No one who takes Dr. King's New Life Pills is ever subjected to this frightful ordeal.

This is Worth Reading. Leo F. Zilinski, of 68 Gibson Street, Boston, New York, says: "I cured the most annoying cold sore I ever had with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. I applied this salve once a day for two days, when all traces of the sore was gone." Heals all sores. Sold under guarantee at Barrington Pharmacy, 26.
