The Big Stick is Never Supine.
Europe caught at the outbreak in Haiti as an excuse to prod the United States into some more "white man's burden" ventures. This country was urged to remain the negroes of Haiti and their black neighbors generally that they must use their independence rightly or submit to the control of stranger and wiser men. The Europeans know very well what would happen if the big stick were to tuck under that job. South Americans know it too.

The truth is that the shadow of the big stick already falls upon Haiti and certain other republics in the east including Cuba and Santo Domingo. There has been no bloodshed, no terrorizing south of us to speak of since we put an end to Weylerism. We do not want to actually control the negro in South America. It would prove a thankless job for this country and spell ruination for their race prospects, which are considerable. Those people should either be let alone or wiped out and are better off free with the big stick as an exemplary neighbor than they would be under its mastery, for it wouldn't be used gingerly if called in. The negroes now live in wholesome fear of it, with respect for what it stands for, and that is enough.

Hawaii is in danger of being orientalized, and the authorities are bidding for American settlers to come over and help stem the rising tide of Asiatics. The Japanese lead in immigration. Honolulu's population has doubled under American rule, yet there are only 7,000 whites among its 45,000 inhabitants, and the natives are said to be dying out. With her expanding industries Hawaii is an inviting field for the alert and energetic Japs, and they rush in without waiting to be asked.

It might seem freakish for the government of Prince Edward Island to exercise the power recently given it to shut out all automobiles, but it would be a perfectly sane act to put up bars against "joy rides," speed mad drivers and owners and all that. The first community to carry that craze to a finish of the "devil wagon" fight will do humanity a service.

The earlier Christmas shopping is done the more time left for filling the holes it puts in the purse against the day of real merriment.

The annexation which little nations south of us long for is the getting next to our fat pocketbook.

Short Local Items

The village license on dogs becomes due January 1st.

The meat markets of this village are displaying a fine line of meats this week, comparing favorably with any of the city markets. The stores are appropriately decorated for Christmas week and have enjoyed a large patronage.

The H. W. Hahn family will give a little folks party at their home west of town on Christmas afternoon. They will bring out a number of children from the city and several of the Barrington young people have been invited to join them.

We just learned that Thomas Reynolds, who resides on a farm near Elgin and was formerly of this village, recently lost two of his fingers in a corn shredder, shelling one more to the long list of corn shredder victims. Mr. Reynolds desires to again locate here and is looking for a residence.

The attendance at the Woman's club meeting at Mrs. Hannah Powers last Thursday was twenty-five and the afternoon of particular interest and instruction, owing to the presence of Mrs. O. F. Mattison who gave a drawing paper, throwing a new light of understanding on poems of this ambiguous poet. Miss Gladys Lines of Maywood sang some seasonal songs and Miss Violet Elitch gave piano numbers. The next meeting will be December 31st at Mrs. Ida Bennett's where Mrs. John Schwemm, Mrs. M. A. Bennett and Miss Jennie Fletcher will give a recital, vocal and elocutionary, "Little Maids in Song and Verse."

Bread Lands For Bread Liners.

England is overrun with an army of unemployed, and the British government has conceived a scheme which ought to forestall any large recruitment to its ranks by refugees from Ireland. The idea is to increase the sum formerly appropriated for Irish land purchase to relieve idleness and poverty in the bogs from $500,000,000 to $900,000,000. The additional sum will be put into grazing lands, to be allotted to peasants for tillage. The region to be benefited has long been overworked because the bulk of the land was devoted to grazing cattle instead of feeding Irishmen.

In this country various plans have been suggested for getting the unemployed out of the cities upon the land. It might be cheaper in the end to follow Great Britain's example than to relieve the poor in cities by charity contributions. Many of the unemployed here are country bred and have been gradually lured into towns and cities in search of a living because the rise in the price of land and the increase in the cost of working it made farming prohibitive for the man without capital. Great Britain's plan is to help the idle who are asking how to fill the soil for their bread. If any number of our native unemployed are to solve the problem for one social problem that confronts the nation is obvious. Free bread lands will reduce an army of "out of work's" quicker than free bread lines.

With American army officers forced to do the fifty mile walk stunts and naval officers to "say nothing but saw wood," Field Marshal and Grand High Admiral William of Hohenzollern ought to find the fatherland good enough for him, even under the restraints of the lid.

Many current fings at the size of women's hats are base imitations, but twelve inches of rim and feather sticking out of a carriage window would go as proof in any court.

That man who cut out the pipe after smoking ninety-five years probably felt that he must either quit or live to be very old.

To the question, "Shall the people rule?" some women are answering, "Aye, ay, when we are included."

Sometimes eyes are tough cases, but you could almost see their price grow of late.

The suffragists got the start of the jungle folks in trailing Roosevelt up a tree.

"Yes," said Mrs. Ilsema Oeffel, "my niece's very good natured and teacher hearted, at any rate."

"You don't say so?" replied Mrs. McCall.

"Yes, indeed. While I was doing her work today she told me not to work too hard."—Philadelphia Press.

"In your paper this morning, sir, you called me a 'bun actor.' I want an explanation." "I shall be happy to explain. That word 'actor' was inserted by the proofreader, who thought I omitted it accidentally. I shall take care that it doesn't happen again."—Chicago Tribune.

You may call every creature under heaven fool and rogue and your auditor will join with you heartily. But to him the slightest of his own defects or follies are the draws his rapier. You and he are the judges of the world, but not its deities.—Walter Savage Landor.

The halles of the Methodist Aid society presented Miss Carrie Kingsley with a hot glass vase Wednesday evening in appreciation of her services as church organist.
