M. F. LANEY, PUBLISHER. SENATOR FOR PROHIBS.

A. C. Manley of Harvard to be the Winning Candidate.

At a meeting of the Prohibition Senatorial Committee for the 8th district held at Marengo, August 31, A. C. Manley of Harvard was nominated for state senator to fill the vacancy caused by the withdrawal of A. B. Lucas of Crystal Lake.

The prohibitionists claim they have a chance to elect their candidate for senator. Mr. Lucas was unable to devise the necessary time to the campaign so that Mr. Manley was nominated. The senatorial committee organized by the election of Henry Shepard of Gurnee as chairman and A. B. Lucas as secretary. C. W. Earl of Belvidere is the other member.

The prohibitionists say that the election of their candidate for representative, Joseph E. Anderson of Lake Forest, is assured and that now it is only a question of majority.

Village Attorney is Tennis Champion. Howard P. Castle and Frank Castle of Elgin, holders of the Kane county tennis championship in doubles, successfully defended their title Saturday afternoon, when they defeated Smith and Priehard of Aurora, winners of the doubles in the sixth annual Kane county tennis tournament. The scores were 6-3, 6-1, 3-2 and 6-4. The Castles have held the championship five out of the last six years.

Howard P. Castle is member of the firm of Castle, Williams, Long and Castle, attorneys at Chicago, and is village attorney of this place.

Tuesday, August 25, a special election of the town of Elia was held at Lake Zurich for the purpose of voting on the proposition for payment in cash of the district labor and property road tax, the vote on which was seventy-two for and thirty-four against. Also for the purpose of voting on the proposition to build bridges and to borrow money therefor, which proposition was carried by a vote of seventy-three for and thirty-two against.

The township of Elia shows its up-to-date status in adopting the method of paying the road tax in cash. This plan is now followed by nearly all of the townships in Lake county. High School Opens Next Week. Superintendent P. A. Smith and his staff of teachers are ready to assume their school duties next Tuesday. To Keep Salt Dry. "To prevent salt in saltcellars from becoming damp and lumpy, when filling them put in ten to twelve pieces of blotting paper," says a Woman's Home Companion for September. "This will not come through the holes in the cover of the saltcellars, but will break the lumps of salt and gather the moisture; thus the salt is always dry and free."

Toys for the Farmer Boys. Secretary Wilson of the agricultural department, president's cabinet, used these words in a recent address to farmer boys: "My boy, these are the toys for you to get real chummy with: plough, fork, hoe, rake."

The New Play, "Ticy." The importance of the opening of the Chicago Opera House on Saturday night, September 5th, is made so by the combination of facts concerning the initial production of "Ticy." This comedy is from the pen of William Gillette, who is unquestionably the foremost American contributor to the dramatic stage of America. Since the death of Bronson Howard, Mr. Gillette is generally conceded to be the dean of American playwrights.

The producer of "Ticy," Frederick Thompson, has done big things since he became identified as an amusement provider. Mr. Thompson, who is not yet thirty-five years of age, conceived, and, with the aid of his late partner, Mr. Elmer Dundy, and built from his own architectural plans, the famous New York Hippodrome, the greatest playhouse in the world, seats, Thompson and Dundy also built and promoted "Luna Park," the first of the big out door amusement resorts. Mr. Thompson has entrusted the title role of the comedy to Miss Mary Ryan, who is well and favorably known in Chicago from her connection with the old Dearborn Stock and as one of the principal members has been seen in varied repertoire. Miss Ryan has, in consequence, created for herself a following who will want to see her in William Gillette's latest play "Ticy," in which she is said to be particularly well suited.

The seats and boxes for the opening performances are now being sold at the Chicago Opera House box office. A special matinee performance has been arranged for Labor Day. The prices are from 50c to $1.00. The evening performances are 75c and $1.00. The evening performance will begin at 8:15 p. m. and the matinee at 2:15. The theatre has been redecorated and completely renovated.

CAMP-MEETING CLOSES

Tabernacle is Dedicated. Interesting Facts About the Meetings.

With impressive ceremony, Bishop H. Dole, D. D. L. D., Sunday evening dedicated the new auditorium of the Barrington Park Campmeeting association. John C. Plagge, president of the board of directors, read the charge, giving the building into the hands of the Bishop for the purpose of dedicating it to Devine service and worship. All the people stood while the invocation was pronounced by the Bishop and while he read the form of dedication. "Praise God from whom all blessings flow" was twice sung and all the people shouted Amen and Amen, at the conclusion of the rite. Barrington is now in possession of a beautiful outdoor tabernacle and Barrington Park will more and more become the Mecca of the Evangelical hosts of Chicago and vicinity. Until last year the Barrington Campmeeting association was purely a local association but during the year just closed the name was changed to Barrington Park and the churches of Chicago and other points have been admitted to membership under a new constitution. The association is said to be doing enough money was subscribed Sunday evening to put money in the treasury besides liquidating pending obligations. There are about 40 cottages surrounding the tabernacle, ten or a dozen are about projected for next year. All the cottages are to be supplied with gas. It is thought necessary to build substantial additions to the dormitory and restaurant which were both completed last year. The board of directors consists of seven members: J. C. Plagge, president; J. L. Molners, secretary; F. A. Lagaschulte; A. W. Landsaver; A. H. Bowdler; Isaac Hansman and Fred Bergman.

The tabernacle was built by H. G. Auran of this place, who deserves much credit, and cost complete about $2,800. The eleven acres of ground and buildings, exclusive of cottages, are valued at about $100,000 at present. The work of the church was begun in Deere Grove in the years 1854-55 by Rev. Jacob Schaefer, grandfather of Rev. Eugene F. Fuesole, present pastor of the Salem church here. Rev. Schaefer also built the first church there, and was instrumental in the erection of first, the Zion and then the Salem church in Barrington.

The first camp-meeting was held in Deere Grove in 1882 and the meetings were transferred to Barrington in 1874, and they have been held here each year for the thirty-four years since.

A. boys succeeded in getting three scores this time, so that it was not quite as bad as before, at least. Dr. Shearer, who was catching for the home team, had the misfortune to break a bone of the third finger of the left hand, in the third inning, when he attempted to put the ball on a man.

The game next Saturday will be with Carpentersville. Labor day they play The Western News of Chicago.

Struck By Playmate.

The child was hit on the back of the head by another child a week ago Sunday night when playing in front of E. F. Schaefer's store, the weapon used being a beer bottle. A large bruise and burst skin resulted. Infection from the bottle scattered poisonous matter into the glands of the head, neck and chest, unconsciousness and convulsions following. Early this week the eyes became swollen and until today the boy has been practically blind. One eye is now partly open and his general condition a little better. Robert is a bright, fine boy and all sympathetic in this accident.

CROWD IS LARGE

Lake County Fair is Now Being Held.

ATTENDANCE IS A RECORD-BREAKER

Races are Good. Many People From Here Attend.

The fifty-fifth annual Lake county fair opened Wednesday at Libertyville with an estimated attendance of 10,000 people. The main feature was the racing. It took thirteen heats to finish the three races. The 300 trot and 220 pace each took five hard contested heats, and kept the crowd on the ragged edge before the winners were announced. Charles Dean of Palatine behind Eduecliel, in the trot, and M. Hayes, with his gray gelding J. W. Fitzgerald, in the pace carried off first moneys. In the trot Dictation, owned and driven by M. M. Reys of Chicago, captured the first two heats, but after that Dean came back with the daughter of Onward Silver and annexed the next three. Major Law, who was well thought of in the start and finished second in the first heat in a hot finish with Dictation, was second in the final heat, which was a corker, but the judges set him back to fourth position for breaking. John C. had a burst of speed to the first halves, but fell to fifth position, and was drawn in the final heat.

The 220 pace was another grueling contest, the horses being evenly matched, and with the exception of County Ladies, they made a pretty race. Alice C. won the first and second heats, but Hayes did the "dean act" and landed the big end of the purse.

MELBOURNE'S ARMS OPEN

ADMIRAL SPERRY FORMALLY WELCOMED TO CITY.

Official Landing Party for the American Fleet—Crews March to Church on Sunday.

Melbourne—Monday was official landing day for the American fleet and Admiral Sperry and the officers of the battleships came ashore formally, in full regalia, and were formally welcomed by the federal and city officials. Admiral Sperry expressed himself as highly appreciative of the warm welcome which he and his officers and men under him, and the kindly greeting of the Australians, both at Sydney and at Melbourne, has developed a feeling of gratification throughout the fleet.

Twenty-five hundred men of the ships were given shore leave Sunday, and 1,000 marched through Collins street to St. Patrick's cathedral, where pontifical mass was held on Sunday. The American blue jackets and marines were accompanied by 2,000 cadets and a number of bands were in the procession. The streets were thronged with spectators, who gave the men a hearty welcome. After the services in the church were ended the men were escorted to the cathedral and to the hall. Special services were held in all the Protestant churches.

Melbourne.—The streets of Melbourne late Monday night were filled with surging, food-hounded crowds numbering hundreds of thousands, all out to honor to the visiting American fleet. The crush in the principal thoroughfares was so great that many people fainted and several persons were injured.

The landing day was set apart to jollification and will ever live in the memory of the inhabitants of Victoria. The federal government tendered a banquet to the admiral and senior officers of the visiting warships at the parliament house, at which Lord Northcote, governor-general of the colony, and the prime minister, Mr. Deakin made brilliant speeches. Rear Admiral Sperry, replying in behalf of the American navy, declared that a rupture between the English-speaking nations would be not only a loss but a crime. Admiral Sperry was presented with an address by the commonwealth parliament.

NO SUNDAY DRINKS.

Atlantic City Saloons and Hotel Bars Closed.

Atlantic City, N. J.—A real blue Sunday came to Atlantic City. Many persons familiar with the history of this far-famed resort had been inclined to doubt the possibility of such a thing, but every one of the 220 saloons and hotel bars was closed. They were closed alike to bona fide guests as well as to stragglers. Just arrived within the gates.

Gov. Patten's proclamation containing his threat to send troops to the seashore resort in case of a further violation of the Sunday closing law had its effect. Saloonkeepers and hotel men reluctantly accepted the advice of the mayor and of the more conservative members of the saloon men's organization, and closed their places of business as tightly as they drew bow.

Some of the saloons, however, remained down all day. Boardwalk cafes that on Sundays past have been thronged to their utmost capacity serving liquors and food were all but deserted. A visit during the afternoon to the beach on the boardwalk to one of the most widely-known cafes facing the famous seaside thoroughfare disclosed the fact that a saloon patron was in the place. The proprietors declared that the loss of the drink privilege had carried with it a nearly equal loss in the sale of foodstuffs.

When they left their boat and reached the top of Sagamore Hill Mr. Roosevelt was on his veranda where he had been scanning them eagerly for several minutes as they approached. Two abreast, whistling "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

James E. Sullivan, the American commissioner, was first to be received by the president. He acted as master of ceremonies, presenting each one of his charges in turn. The president greeted each one by the hand, and to each he spoke a few words of mingled greeting and commendation.

John J. Hayes, the Marathon hero, had the distinction of being the first to be presented.

"I am proud of you," said the president to him as he gave him a vigorous hand-shake, "our feet were marvelous. You won a great race and I am glad of it."

"Towards the Indian, who came in with the Marathon race, pleased the president immensely. "I am glad, indeed," he said to him, "that a real original American Indian competed for America and represented the country abroad. It was a fine showing that you made."

So it was with each and every one of the team that had made the trip and when the last man had been grasped by the hand and his heart cheered by the president's words and he had passed into the dining-room and partaken of refreshments, Mr. Roosevelt followed in, and then had to listen to some cheers for himself.

Some one proposed three cheers for "the greatest president the United States ever had, Theodore Roosevelt," and everybody responded. Mr. Roosevelt, then, addressed the athletes briefly.

New Orleans.—Fire which broke out in the center of the commercial district Sunday afternoon swept over portions of three blocks, destroying a large number of wholesale groceries, manufacturing plants and small stores.

Originating at Bienville and Chartres streets, the flames worked their way north as far as Comte street, and west towards Royal, bringing about a loss of between one and two million dollars before they were finally subdued.

Several circumstances combined to give the fire a headway which proved hard to overcome. At the time the alarm was turned in, shortly before three o'clock, New Orleans firemen were in the midst of their annual picnic at a suburban park, and the engine and water supply were very low.

Several hundred men, it was fully an hour before the department was in a position to make anything like a successful fight against the fire, and then the handicap against it was added by an inadequate supply of water.

Burglar's Conscience Hurt Him. Philadelphia.—Joseph G. Mantell surrendered himself to the police here Friday, declaring that he was wanted for robbing the home of Miss Bertha Brand in City avenue, Brooklyn, on October 23 last, and also the home of William Black, fourth assistant commander in the patent office at Washington. The latter robbery was committed, he said, on November 9, 1907. "I have been tortured by my conscience and can go no rest day or night, so I want to face trial and end it all," Mantell told the detectives.

AUGUSTA LOSS BIG

MILLS AND WAREHOUSES ARE RUINED BY FLOOD.

DEAD MAY NUMBER SIXTY

Great Damage and Widespread Distress in North and South Carolina—Fayetteville Is Submerged.

Augusta, Ga.—The flood water at Augusta is receding rapidly, and the water leaves the streets it is apparent that the loss has been under estimated.

In addition to the disasters already reported, the Riverside mills, in damage to plant and loss of cotton which floated away, sustained a loss of $100,000; the Reid cotton warehouse, the finest in the south, was greatly damaged, but it will require a survey to determine the loss; the Triangular block, where the wholesale houses are located, was badly damaged. The Nelson Morris & Co. warehouse has collapsed and is being razed; the Augusta Grocery company's building was damaged to the extent of $5,000; the National Blauvelt company building was wrecked. The Central grammar school was also damaged severely.

In addition to the fires already reported, ten smaller houses were burned in different sections of the city.

Death Rate May Reach Sixty. Twenty-two bodies have been recovered and corpses are being found every hour or so. The captain of the river steamer Swan, which arrived Friday reported that he saw on the trip up the river at least 25 corpses, all negroes except one. There are reports of many drownings among negro farm hands in the lower valley. The Chronicle estimates the death list at 60.

The citizens in mass meeting and the city council and the board of health in special session have taken measures to relieve the distress. Citizens are subscribing to a fund to help the poorer people in the submerged district, for portions of the town are still under water. There is sure to be the greatest suffering, and relief must be quick to prevent starvation from swelling the death list.

South Carolina's Flood. Columbia, S. C.—The crest of the great freshet, which, starting in the Piedmont section of the state, has swept through South Carolina, leaving ruined farms and crippled railway lines in its wake, has now passed Columbia and is moving toward the lower part of the state. The railroads are making strenuous efforts to restore lines of communication and have succeeded in some measure.

Kingsville, 25 miles south of this city on the Waterbury river, is seven feet under water and every house in the town is deserted. The water at that point is still rising and will probably reach its highest point about three o'clock Saturday.

No accurate estimate of damage can be made, but it probably will run well into the millions. Fayetteville is submerged.

Fayetteville, N. C.—The Cape Fear river at Fayetteville has reached a height of 79 feet, breaking all records of former floods. The river valleys on the east side are covered for miles with a rushing torrent of muddy water. Houses and bridges are swept away for miles around, and the estimated damage to the cotton and corn crops will be beyond 55 per cent.

The greater portion of Fayetteville is covered with water backed up to the city hall from the river, which has a mud depth of half distance. Three thousand people are homeless and a proclamation was issued by the mayor at noon Friday. The city was in total darkness Friday night the power plant being submerged.

Many Die in Colorado Flood. Trinidad, Col.—Citizens of Fortson are suffering over the result of the awful flood which spread death and destruction Thursday night, and anything like accurate details are impossible owing to interruption of wire communication. Casualties are variously estimated at from 15 to 25. Fortson had about 500 population, and was built on both sides of the Cimarron, which is dry except on occasions of heavy rainfalls. A 12-foot wall of water came down the canyon while the inhabitants slept.

Gen. A. P. Stewart Dead. Biloxi, Miss.—Gen. Alexander P. Stewart, one of the last two surviving lieutenant generals of the confederate army, died at his home here Sunday. Although he was in his eighty-seventh year, he was hale and vigorous, and of old age, his death was sudden.

Like the Lees, Gen. Stewart, after the close of his military career in the states, gave himself up to the instruction of southern youth and served from 1874 to 1886 as chancellor of the University of Mississippi. In 1890 he was appointed one of the commissioners of the Chickamauga national park.

FRENCH TRAPPER MURDERED.

Rhineland, Wis.—Lying in a pool of blood with a bullet hole in the back of his head, Alexander Frasier, a French trapper, was found dead in his shack five miles west of Manitowish Sunday. He is supposed to have been murdered for his money.

OLD MAN ARRESTED AS RIOTER.

Springfield, Ill.—Edward Ferris, 60 years old, was arrested Sunday on suspicion that he was connected with the recent riot which resulted in the lynching of two negroes.

WHAT THE TRADE MARK MEANS TO THE BUYER

Few people realize the importance of the words "Trade Mark" stamped on the goods they buy. If they did it would save them many a dollar spent for worthless goods and put a lot of unscrupulous manufacturers out of the business.

When a manufacturer adopts a trade mark he assumes the entire responsibility for the merit of his product. He takes his business reputation in his hands—out in the limelight—"on the square" with the buyer of his goods, with the dealer, and with himself.

The other manufacturer—the one who holds out "inducements," offering to brand all goods purchased with each local dealer's brand—steers responsibility, and when these inferior goods "come back" it is the local dealer that must pay the penalty.

A good example of the kind of protection afforded the public by a trade mark is that offered in connection with National Lead Company's advertising of pure White Lead as the "best paint material."

That the Dutch Boy Painter trade mark is an absolute guarantee of purity in White Lead is proved to the most skeptical by the fact that National Lead Company make to send free to any address a blow-up and instructions how to test the white lead for bismuth. The testing outfit is being sent out from the New York office of the company, Woodbridge Building.

PICNIC FOR THE PUP.

His Devotion to Duty Rewarded by Strange Luxuries.

A Boston building owned by George H. Clapp was so determined to capture a woodchuck which he had chased into its den that he followed after and staid in the hole all night.

When the dog hit got his jaws about the enemy he found that he could not get out owing to the small size of the animal's hole.

Rather than lose his prey the dog retained his hold on the woodchuck over night, and was helped out by his master in the morning. The dog was nearly exhausted, and revived after feeding and drinking in a curious manner.

He consumed about two quarts of unguarded ice cream, which had been set aside for a party, and capped the climax by falling into a bucket of lemonade.—Worcester (Mass.) Telegram.

Riding the Air

A Workable Airship Certain Within Two Years

By HOMER W. HEDGE,
Former President of Aero Club of America.

ONE essential reason for the comparatively slow progress made in the development of the aeroplane is that, as with the bicycle, it is, and must be, part of the operator, and its operation has to be learned. Though the driving force be mechanical, it must be guided by human intelligence. To experiment with the workable, but primitive aeroplane of to-day, requires any amount of pluck. When it has become a realized fact, every operator will have to learn how to operate the machine individually. Birds, though built to fly, are taught by their mothers, and if they try it on their own account, invariably get a tumble.

Honor and thanks are due to the Aero club of America which took the initiative, and to such men as Gen. James A. Allen and Corland Field Bishop, who have won the faith of men of capital to the absolute certainty, and therefore money-producing possibilities of aerial navigation. The influence exerted by the Aero club of America is now being felt all over the country. Fraternal clubs are everywhere. There is even the Junior Aero club of New York, which is eliciting considerable attention, and has a successful boy flyer, with a machine of his own invention. Arrangements have been made for holding several important conferences between the leading aeronauts at the Hotel Astor, New York, during the coming late summer, fall and winter months, which cannot fail to be productive of good results.

The problem is so nearly solved that, as a close observer and student of the subject, and as an associate of the leaders of the movement, I confidently predict that within two years aerial navigation will be an accomplished fact. There will then be a thousand minds at work to every one at present, and modifications and improvements will soon bring to perfection the first successes. In war, supreme, almost to the abolishment of war! In peace, delightful beyond conception!

Inhalation of the rarefied air of the upper strata will prove to be one of the greatest of blessings to suffering humanity. A single ascension rekindles life, and were a "regular course" of air trips to be taken I firmly believe tuberculous diseases would be cured.

Think of transportation through the free, pure air; the realm of absolute liberty; no tracks, no franchises, no need of thousands of employes to add to the cost; and of the swiftness, the glorious exhilaration; and last, but by no means least, of its broadening effect on the mind. Every drifting balloonist knows what I mean. I am certain there is not one who has not been uplifted in every sense of the word, and who has not realized more fully, more surely, the immeasurable greatness of the all powerful Creator of the universe.

The moral influence which will be exerted over all mankind by aerial navigation is beyond compare. Conquest of the air is coming, is almost here, and most of us will be here to see and to enjoy it when it comes.

We May Hope for Immortality.

By PROF. JOSIAH ROTCH.

A man is a significant being, not by virtue of his body, or his feelings, or his fortunes, or his social status, but by virtue of his will. A man as an ethical being is what he purposes to be, so far as his will is as yet temporally expressed. So far as his will is not yet expressed his life belongs to the future. All else about him, besides his will, his purpose, his life plan, his ideal, his deed, his volitional expression—all else than this, I say, is mere material for manhood, mere clothing, mere environment, or mere fortune. Ignorantly as he now expresses himself, his worth lies not in the extent of his knowledge, but in the seriousness of his intent to express himself.

But if one who appears in the outer form of man shows no sign as yet of having any personal ideal, or life plan, or purpose, or individual will at all, then in such a case we indeed call the being whom we know in our human relations a person; but he so far appears as a person by courtesy. An explicit personality is one which shows itself through deeds that embody a coherent ideal—an ideal which need not be abstractedly formulated, but which must be practically active, recognizably significant, consciously in need of further temporal expression.

The righteous man is dissatisfied with his present opportunity to express his will. He needs yet further future opportunities to do his duty. The conscious sinner is dissatisfied with the will which he is at the moment trying to express. Each as a finite being engaged in a temporal process is a person by virtue of his dissatisfactions. I refer now by the word dissatisfactions not to gloomy feelings so much as eagerness for further deeds. How we feel is a matter of fortune. How active we need to be—that constitutes ourselves as now we are.

A finite personality, I insist, is a will to do something. So far as I have something to do, I am, however, dissatisfied with the past as with the present. I demand in just so far a future, a future in which, since I am now a sinner at war with myself, I shall come into unity with my own will and shall discover what it is I am seeking; a future in which, in so far as even now I know and intend my duty, I shall further express this will of mine in the countless deeds that my personal purpose requires me yet to do.

In me, then, God is discontented with his own temporal expression. This discontent I myself am. It constitutes me. This individual truth for infinity, this personal warfare with my own temporal maladjustment to my own ideal—this is my personality. I am this hatred of my own imperfection, this search for the future deed, this intent to do more than has as yet to be done.

In me the temporal being, in me now, God is in need, is hungry, is thirsty, is in prison. In me, then, God is dissatisfied. But he is God. He is absolute. Eternity is his. He must be satisfied. In eternity in the view of the whole temporal process he is satisfied. In his totality he attains, and he attains what I seek. And this, I take it, is our rational warrant for insisting that every rational person has in the endless temporal order an opportunity for an endless series of deeds. Seen, then, from the eternal point of view, my personal life must be an endless series of deeds. This is a sketch of what I take to be the doctrine of immortality.

BAFFLED BY SAND

GERMAN ENGINEERS HAVE HARD PROBLEM.

Immense Drifts Seemingly Beyond Control Overwhelm Railroad in Africa—May Force Construction of Huge Blast Tunnel.

The Germans are in a dilemma over the railroad they are building in their colony of Southwest Africa to connect Ludertza bay on the Atlantic with Bethansien, more than 100 miles inland. They are not yet ascertained how to circumvent the moving sand dunes that have covered the track many feet deep only about 15 miles from the coast.

Moving dunes are a common desert phenomenon. They are found in the Colorado desert, in the Sahara and in the Gobi wastes of Asia. The action is like the waves of the sea. The sand piles up into long high ridges, gradually topples over on the leeward side and thus the whole sand wave slowly moves along and is soon replaced by those that are following behind it.

The moving sand hills near Ludertza bay extend over an area only about five miles wide. The problem before the Germans is how to extend the track across this narrow belt and keep it in working order. These long ridges of sand are formed and moved by persistent southwest winds during part of the year, and the railroad business will be paralyzed unless some means is found of overcoming them.

Several ways have been suggested for meeting the difficulty. Months were spent in building high walls of sandbags and stone so as to break the line of advance of the sand hills in the hope that a way might be kept clear for the roadbed. The hope was in vain. The advancing hills, 30 to 60 feet in height, are not retarded for a moment by such bulky obstructions. They simply move up to the opposing wall, shower sand upon it from their tops, bury it out of sight and move over the other side to pursue their way.

It has been proposed to excavate the sand that has filled one of the narrow valleys across the sand dune belt, build an unbreakable roof over this depression and thus maintain a permanent roadway. Objections have been raised to this plan and it has not yet been tested.

Another scheme is to use the six months when there is little or no wind to fertilize the land crossed by sand dunes with manure from the native cattle kraals and plant all sorts of desert shrubs and grasses in the desert grasses in the hope to fix the sandy surface so completely that dunes cannot form on it. The success of this plan is regarded as slightly problematical and it will probably be left as a last resort if all other measures fail.

Another plan which is meeting with much favor among engineers is to construct across the belt a large steel tunnel. Trains would enter the tunnel just before they reach the dune region and emerge from the tunnel clearing all the obstructions. The sand might pile up above the tunnel as it passes, but the running of trains would not be affected.

Engineer's Tame Sparrow.
Jim is the name of a sparrow which is the pet of the engine drivers and firemen at one of the railroad centers in the north of Scotland.

He was hatched within the noisy precincts of a busy locomotive stable, but falling out of the nest before being fully fledged was placed in a cage and tenderly cared for in the railroad office. On the third day he began to fret, and in a short time was flying all over the room, and even alighting himself to be petted.

In fact, he quickly became as tame as that one day when his owner (the local railroad engineer) was writing he flew into his hand and quietly fell asleep, and when about six months old began to accompany him on his daily rounds among the engines in the yard, perched jauntily on his shoulder, or hopping contentedly by his side.

He chooses queer places for his nests, the oddest and most awkward so far being the inside breast coat pocket of his owner, whom he would follow wherever he went, stuffing the selected pocket with miscellaneous nesting material. Jim is now six years of age.—Animals' Friend.

Police Dogs a Success.
The value of the trained dogs which the Northwestern railroad company of England has recently supplied to their policemen patrolling the Hull docks was illustrated early on Saturday morning when three shopbreakers were arrested through the instrumentality of one of these animals.

A policeman saw a man running away from a refreshment room, and the runaway falling to stop when called upon by the policeman released the dog from the leash. The animal sprang on the man, threw him and held him prisoner until the constable came up. Two other men were arrested in the shop and the three later in the day were committed to the quarter sessions for trial.

The dogs are of Alford breed and have been trained, after the manner of those at Ghent.

Forcing open the safe, they found plunder worth $3,000 in postage stamps and cash. They sawed their way into the office through a stairway, the top of which rested on the ceiling, and dropped 12 feet to the floor. The way in which the safe had been opened mystified the postmaster, Charles G. Wairous, who was aroused in the morning. Dynamite had been used, but the locks had been turned as neatly as if the burglars knew the combination.

HER GOOD FORTUNE

After Years Spent in Vain Effort.

Mrs. Mary E. H. Rouse, of Cambridge, N. Y., says: "Five years ago I had a bad fall and it affected my kidneys. Severe pains in my back and hips became constant, and many twinges followed any exertion. The kidney secretions were badly disordered. I lost flesh and grew too weak to work. Though constantly using medicine I despaired of being cured until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Then relief came quickly, and in a short time I was completely cured. I am now in excellent health."

Then my mother recommended the Cuticura Remedies. I washed my children's heads with Cuticura Soap and then applied the wonderful ointment, Cuticura. I did this four or five times and I can say that they have been entirely cured. I have another baby who is so plump that the folds of skin on his neck are broken and even bleed. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and the next morning the trouble had disappeared. Mrs. Napoleon F. Moore now at Duluth St. Montreal, Que., May 21, 1907."

A Unanxious Voto.

A German-American who had recently arrived at the estate of riches attended his first banquet. The wine was particularly vile, and so several gentlemen who were seated near the German were quite satisfied to have him empty the bottle, which had been set apart for their common use. Neither the quality nor the quantity of the wine in the least disturbed the German, and, after he had drunk the last glass, he looked around jocularly and said: "Sheutenline, I had now drunk all your year wine and saw you the trouble of taking care of two did not like. I think you ought to vote me a public tank." They did.—Lippincott's.

Too Much Afraid of Dirt.

It is quite true that "cleanliness is next to godliness," but in this day of facts and scientific frills the question is whether we are not getting altogether too afraid of a little dirt. Dirt has been defined as matter in the wrong place and in the wrong system. The science of keeping it in the right place. But we are inclined to think that we are all a little bit too much up in the air. We are afraid of cleanliness; a little too afraid of coming in contact with the clean-smelling, kindly earth, and are in danger of becoming nasty-voiced.—Washington Herald.

When the Little Man Sored.

A meek-looking little man with a large nose climbed on the car. As he did so he bumped slightly into a sleepy, corpulent passenger with a self-satisfied look and two little tufts of white hair. As the car rounded a curve the box rubbed against him again and he growled: "This is no freight car. Is it?" "Nope," returned the meek little chap with the box, "and when you come right down to it, it ain't any cattle car, either, is it?"

Well Brewed Postum Always Palatable.

The flavor of Postum, when boiled according to directions, is always the same—mild, distinctive, and palatable. It contains no caffeine, no trace of caffeine, the drug in coffee, and hence may be used with benefit at all times.

"Believing that coffee was the cause of my torpid bowels, I purchased an infusory in many ways," writes an lady, "I quit and bought a package of Postum about a year ago.

"My husband and I have been so well pleased that we have continued to drink Postum ever since. We like the taste of Postum better than coffee, as it has always the same pleasant flavor, while coffee changes its taste with about every new combination or blend.

"Since using Postum I have had no more attacks of gall colic, the headaches has left my chest, and the old, common, 'evils of the head' is a thing unknown. 'There's a Reason.'

Control of the Pacific.
Rear Admiral Sperry with sixteen battleships is on his way to Manila. Rear Admiral Swinhoe with seven armored cruisers, which are almost as formidable as the big ships of Sperry's fleet, is going to follow the same route as far into the Pacific as Samoa. But few Americans believe that this unusual naval activity portends war with Japan.

Yet there is little question in the minds of students that some day there must come a struggle for the mastery of the Pacific. Around that ocean is growing a great, new civilization. Within the last century the chain of nations skirting that mighty body of water have awakened into life or have been transformed by the touch of progress. South and Central America have become free from Spain. Mexico has grown stable in its government. The western part of the United States has been developed and, starting with the gold excitement of '49, the shore of the Pacific has been changed into one of the garden spots of the earth.

Western Canada has undergone much the same transformation as that seen in the Pacific states. Even the lonely Alaska has been touched by the magic wand of progress.

On the western shore of the great ocean a life awakening has been witnessed. Through the great gateway from Russia eastern Siberia has been stirred into life, and her cities seem more like bustling American towns than they do like the orient. Poland and sleepy Korea is awakening out of a more than Rip Van Winkle slumber of 2,000 years. Manchuria is being prodded into action. China, thanks to the diplomacy of John Hay, the work of the missionaries and the guns of the allies at Peking, is on the threshold of a new day. As for Japan, her transformation since the fateful visit of Commodore Perry has been the marvel of the world. America has the Philippines and is bringing them into the procession of progress. Australasia is adopting the most advanced ideas in government and putting them into practice. In the center of all this the Pacific, in the center of all this the Pacific, in the center of all this the Pacific, is already assuming American civilization and ideas. Thus the nations skirting the Pacific and the islands in its midst all have been touched by the wand of the world spirit and are lighted by the dawn of a new day. It is as though God had decreed that a new and higher civilization is to come into being on the shores of earth's greatest ocean and that this transformation had taken place as the result of the divine command.

Rear Admiral Schley's only comment concerning the naval battle fought off Santiago was "The victory is large enough for us all." So is the Pacific. In these peace loving days the weapon of trade and enterprise, not those of war should decide the mastery of the Pacific.

This may be the era of the young man, but a number of old men are still setting a pretty fair pace for the rising generation. Von Zeppelin at seventy has hypnotized Germany into believing that he has captured her the "command of the aerial seas." An English statesman, the Earl of Wemyss, is still hard at work at ninety; Tolstoy at eighty is battling for a reformed Russia, George Meredith at the same age is writing novels and championing limited term marriages. John Burroughs at seventy-one is studying nature as enthusiastically as ever and denouncing nature fakirs, and Herr Bebel at sixty-eight is still the militant head of German socialism.

Fifty years ago the first ocean cable was laid. Now two span the Pa-

The Colleg. Woman.

The most advanced feminine reformers should be highly gratified by the progress now being made by the young college woman described by President G. Stanley Hall of Clark university. As for President Hall himself, he does not seem overjoyed when he views the modern college woman. In an article in Appleton's Magazine he says:

"Her triumph over the old limitations of her sex is so complete that a young man whom I know and who looked to his heart and hand to be one of her best and finally abandoned by the high, physical motive that would rob the large social circle which she adorned by tempting her to become a housewife."

"The independent, self-sufficing bachelor girl," free, socially charming and "sometimes positively inspiring," is the ideal product which President Hall would have of colleges offered by women, now, alas, too subject to "a denatured intellectual regimen." The critics' precedents of various colleges for women for extolling the graduate who becomes a boarding school principal or the head of a school for native girls in upper Egypt or one who, while not excluding the episode of homemaking, evolves a plan of life with an ultimate aim somewhere in the intellectual and spiritual spheres. None of the splinter presidents speaks of the promotion of health as important to college education, while Dr. Hall submits that this should be paramount. In the interest of the young woman's bodily, nervous, mental and emotional make-up. Instead the "university" professorial feeds her on the philological husks of English literature; yokes her in rhetoric to the rigidity of purity, precision and propriety; automates her Latin, German and French; demoralizes her physics and in general strangles the spirit that lives with the letter that kills.

Sometimes, he admits, the college young woman survives the denaturing process, still buoyant and unfaded. It is reassuring to learn that, after all, in Dr. Hall's opinion, "good even now predominates over evil in our girls' colleges."

International Naval Conference.

The international naval conference which will be held in London in October may prove to be the most important and productive meeting in which the world's principal powers have taken part since the famous gathering immediately after the Crimean war, which resulted in the abolition of privateering. American interest in the conference will be represented by Rear Admiral Charles H. Stockton and Professor George Grafton Wilson of Brown university. Both are eminent authorities on international and maritime law. Rear Admiral Stockton was president of the Naval War college at Newport ten years ago and was afterward attaché at the American embassy in London. Professor Wilson has filled the chair of political and social sciences at Brown university for twenty years and has been lecturer on international law at the Naval War college for the last eight years.

The delegates from each nation will go to London prepared to work up their own cases. If they have any principles which they desire incorporated into international law they will formulate them for adoption. The United States has for a long time tried to secure immunity from capture at sea of all private property not contraband of war. Thus far we have not succeeded. The American delegation at The Hague last year worked for it. It is hoped that the coming conference will frame a rule law governing such cases in the international prize court.

It may be noted that there are no more reports from Harvard university to the effect that President Eliot will abolish football and other so-called "violent pastimes." Dr. Eliot was mis-wrought up over the dangers he imagined football, hockey, etc., brought close to Harvard students until (until when?)—until he was quietly informed that tremendous profits resulted to the university from football. These annual profits suffice to support almost the entire athletic establishment of the university. Oh, marvelous change of heart on the part of the learned doctor!

Three hundred and twenty-one Massachusetts towns are to plant trees upon tracts of land at the instance of the state forester. Other states demand of timber should follow the excellent example. The movement is one fraught with vast importance to the American of the future.

Scientist, disciplinarian, fighting man and diplomat—all these the commanding officer of a fleet must be. Rear Admiral Sperry is plausibly a worthy successor of "Fighting Bob" Evans.

Why is it that so many people are trying to sell Judge Tatt a horse when he already has an elephant to ride?

effie and about fifteen cross the Atlantic. Marconi is sending wireless messages across the Atlantic every day, and Dr. Huxley believes that from the lofty Metropolitan tower in New York he will soon be able to say: "Hello! Is this the Eiffel tower, Paris?" Who can predict what wonders in telegraphy will be developed in the coming fifty years?

Captain J. R. Watt, retiring commodore of the Cunard fleet, declares that the Lusitania, which recently established a new transatlantic record of 4 days 15 hours, can cross the big pond in four days flat. If the ship doesn't hurry up and arrive, all the speed records will be monopolized by the ocean greyhounds and the thunderbolt express.

Stocks are sensitive things. James J. Hill while tinkering with his automobile scratched his hand, and when the news struck Wall street Great Northern and Northern Pacific dropped three points.

Copies of ballots were stolen and used illegally in the recent Philippine elections. Who will now declare that the Philippines are not learning to govern themselves on the American plan?

Life is real! Life is earnest! And 'y' jings, it needs to be, or the auto scorch'll bump it clear into eternal life.

Old Time Bathing.

What would mixed bathers in England think of Blackpool as it was a little over a century ago? When ladies went to bathe, a bell was rung to announce the fact, and any gentleman discovered on the parade after it had sounded was fined a bottle of wine.

When the ladies had been bathed and completed their toilet, the bell was rung a second time, and the gentlemen had their turn.—London Chronicle.

Wanted a Bargain.

Cracked eggs are sold in solitaires' cartons at a reduced price, and as Tommy Atkins is not a man of means, there is a fairly good demand for these damaged articles. One day a Scotchman walked into the cartons and asked for twopenny worth of cracked eggs.

"We've got none," said the steward. "We've got the best," "You might just crack us a few, then," "Tut-tut-tut."

Dancing.

In the earlier ages dancing was advocated as a cure for sickness. Lycurgus brought back from India and Egypt to Lacedaemonia notions of medicine-religious dancing, and that the young should be brought up gracefully and symmetrically. In Greece Socrates commented on dancing, "It is a waste of education; the mind and body, for be looked on as a health giving device."

A Financier.

"Billings must be a good deal of a financier."

"Has he succeeded in amassing millions?"

"No, but he has succeeded in mortgaging a grand piano for which he is paying in installments."

Cherful Recorders.

Cartyle, in his "French Revolution," states that Louis XVI. played draughts daily during his period of detention at the temple in Paris. It is even stated that the king during that terrible day of the "September massacres," but I am afraid the games contested would not be of much value as far as skill is concerned, for though the hand might move, the mind would be full of the gloomiest thoughts.—London Mail.

A public school teacher had noticed the strong friendship that existed between Tommy and Mary, two of her small pupils.

"Tommy was a bright enough, but not over intelligent, and the teacher saw that unless he applied himself he could not be promoted at the end of the term. 'You must study harder,' she told him, 'or else you won't pass. How would you like to stay back in this grade another year and have little Mary ahead of you?'"

"Aww," said Tommy in a blue tone, "I guess there'll be other little Marys."—Argonaut.

Reason and Circumstances.

When a noble act is done, perchance in a scene of great natural beauty; when Leonidas and his 300 warriors consume one day in dying and the sun once in the steep defile of Thermopylae; when Arnold Winkelried, in the high Alps, under the shadow of the avalanche, gathers in his side a spear of Arian spears to break the line for his comrades—are not these heroes entitled to add the beauty of the scene to the beauty of the deed?—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

BY GEO. V. HOBART.

Dear Bunch: Your letter from Berlin is here, and after picking all the "fish" and "greenhousers" out of it...

Your German letter having created an atmosphere, it's up to me to tell you about our old Elsie Shutz, who is spending a few days at Uncle Peter's home across the road.

Elsie is a sort of a privileged character in our family, having lived with Aunt Martha for over 20 years as a sort of housekeeper.

Yesterday morning, while Peaches and I were at breakfast, Elsie came in, bearing in her hand a wedding invitation which Herman had forwarded to her from Plainfield.

Elsie read the invitation: "Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Ganderkurd request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Verba, to Galahad Schmalzenberger, at the home of her parents, Plainfield, N. J., May 1st, 1917, at 10 o'clock."

"Well," said Elsie, "I know her Ganderkurd and I know her daughter Verba, and I know Galahad Schmalzenberger, but I don't know who is dot R. S. V. P. yet!"

I gently kicked Peaches on the instep under the table, and said to Elsie: "Well, that's a new one on me, ain't it? You sure it isn't R. S. V. P. or the C. R. B. of N. J.?"

For the first time in her life since she's been able to grab a sentence between her teeth and shake the pronouns out of it Elsie was amazed.

She kept looking at the invitation and saying to herself: "R. S. V. P. Vot is it? I know her honor of your presence, I know her pride's parents, but I don't know R. S. V. P. yet!"

All that day Elsie wandered through the house muttering to herself "R. S. V. P. Vot is it? Is it some secret between her pride and groom? R. S. V. P. It ain't my initials, because they begin with R. S. Vot is dot R. S. V. P. Vot is it? Vot is it?"

That evening we were all at dinner when Elsie rushed in with a cry of joy. "I got it!" she said. "I have untied the meaning of dot R. S. V. P. It means Red Silver Wedding Presents!"

"I was just about to drink a glass of water, so I changed my mind and nearly choked to death."

Peaches tried to say something, which resulted in a gurgling in her throat; the Swede servant girl rushed out in the kitchen and broke a couple of dishes, while Uncle Peter, who was dining with us, fell off his chair on the cat which had never done him any harm.

Elsie's interpretation of that wedding present is going to set Herman Shutz back several dollars, or is it not a foot high.

This same Herman is a character, by the way, Bunch. He's a horse trader by profession and a con theorist by nature.

I must tell you, Bunch, about Herman when he lived and flourished in Rochester, N. Y.

A friend of ours named Will Hodge also lived in Rochester at the time, and Will went to Herman to buy a horse.

HENRY ON THE HORSE TRADER.

"HUGH M'HUUGH."

This old sorrel was the fact that just before he would begin to balk and stop dead in his tracks the right ear would fly back and stay there.

And just before he intended to start again the left ear would fly back and join the right ear.

Then as the old sorrel went joyously on his way once more both ears would stand out straight, and all would be well.

The old sorrel always made these signals, rain or shine.

Another peculiar fact was this, that once the old sorrel's nose was pointed for home he never stopped, but went like the wind—when it isn't blowing very hard, and on July 13 the male took himself to it with the obvious intention of rearing a brood.

On that night he accompanied the engine to Summit and the next morning he was sitting tight on her nest at the watering station and apparently unafraid on the turntable which reverses the engine at the end of its run, there he has remained ever since.

The male birds fly in the oak when the engine is away, and on its return goes to the nest and feeds his mate. The theory is that the birds were driven from some partly established home early that season and that the selection of a nesting place finally was made without the customary discrimination.—New York Press.

WORK OF THE RAILROADS. They knit the North and South together After the War.

The southern railroads, more than brotherhood, knitted the north and south together after the war, according to Leslie's Weekly.

The southern railroads did the same thing for a hundred other thriving places in the southern states. The Southern Railroad went into the remote places of the south and caused towns to spring up.

The Seaboard Air Line went into a country of blighted homes and built new industries and with them new courtesies and with them new courtesies.

To a region of penury the Atlantic Coast line brought plenty—by putting the railroads where they had been before. The Southern Railroad gave the exact service necessary for the healthy development of the states through which it runs.

It not only created new industries, but itself became the chief customer for the products of the new mills.

Railroad Statistics. The total mileage of steam railroads in the United States at the end of 1907 was 228,128 miles, an increase of 5,362 miles over the previous year.

The total of the capital stock was $7,458,126,785; of bonds, $2,228,245,257. Other bond obligations were $815,411,227. The total liabilities aggregated $10,585,881,427, against $17,456,286,924 for 1906.

The volume of business continued embarrassingly large till the panic of October and for a little while after, so that the figures of 1907 give no hint of the great shrinkage which was to follow in 1908.

ROBINS NEST ON ENGINE.

Birds Select Quicker Home, But Have Stuck to It.

D. L. & W. engine No. 941 makes short trips from Gladstone to Summit, N. J., and chiefly late at night or early in the morning, so that she is laid up in a rural neighborhood in Gladstone during the day.

They appeared there in July first, about a month after mating season began, and proceeded at once with the building of their nest, working all day until the engine drew out about five o'clock to make its evening trip to Summit.

THE LAND OF GRAIN

—BY— JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

Author of "American Farmers Building a New Nation in the North," "Canada—The Land of Greater Hope," "The Invasion of Canada by American Farmers," "A Thousand Miles on Horseback Across the Dominion Provinces," Etc., Etc.

Not so very many years ago the majority of people in the United States laughed at the prediction that the day was coming when Western Canada would far outstrip this country in the raising of grain—wheat, in other words, it would become the great bread-basket of the world.

During the past three or four years the enormous production of grain in the Dominion West has thinned the ranks of those who doubted the destiny of Canada's wheat and grain regions.

The enormous grain crop of this year in the Dominion West may truly be said to be the production of a few pioneers. Only a small percentage of the unnumbered millions of acres of the Dominion West are now taken up last year.

And yet, when the grain crop of this year is compared with that of the year before, the increase is so great that it is almost staggering.

Canada. There are good scientific reasons why these regions are capable of producing more crops than our own western and central states, but best of all are the proofs of it in actual results.

Last spring it was widely advertised that the wheat crop of Alberta was a failure. In fact, this is Alberta's banner year in grain production, as it is Saskatchewan's and Manitoba's, and from figures already in it is estimated that Alberta's wheat will yield on an average of FIFTY-FIVE BUSHELS TO THE ACRE.

In many parts of the province returns will show a yield of as high as FIFTY bushels to the acre and it is freely predicted by many that when the crop is harvested it will average at least forty-five instead of thirty-five bushels to the acre will be shown.

At the time of my last journey to the Dominion West, when my purpose was largely to secure statistical matter for book use, I solicited letters from American settlers in all parts of the Dominion West, and most of these make most interesting reading. The letter was written by A. Kaltenberger, whose postoffice address is Regina, Saskatchewan.

"A few years ago," he says, "I took up a homestead for myself and also for my wife. The land section which we own is between Rouleau and Drinkwater, adjoining the Moosejaw creek, and is a low level and heavy land. Last year we put in 100 acres of wheat which went to bushels to the acre. Every bushel of it was 'No. 1.'"

That means the best wheat that can be raised on ordinary soil, 50 cents a bushel at the nearest elevators. We also threshed 9,000 bushels of first class oat of 150 acres. Eighty acres was fall plowing and YIELDED NINETY BUSHELS TO THE ACRE. We got 63 cents a bushel clear. Our grain was cut in the fall week of the month of August. We will make more money out of our crops this year than last.

For myself, I feel compelled to say that Western Canada crops cannot be checked, even by unusual conditions. An itemized account shows his year's earnings of this settler and his son by the following:

2,500 bushels of wheat at 90 cents a bushel.....$2,250
9,000 bushels of oats at 63 cents a bushel.....5,670
Total.....$7,920

It will be seen by the above that this man's oat crop was worth twice as much as his wheat crop. While the majority of western Canada wheat for all time to come be the world's greatest wheat growing regions, oats are running the former grain a close race for supremacy. The soil and climatic conditions in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are particularly favorable to the production of oats, and this grain, like the wheat, is far greater crop to the acre than in even the best grain producing states of the Union.

Ninety bushels to the acre is not an unusual yield, while homesteads frequently running this average. And this is not the only advantage of the Dominion West over those of the United States, for in weight they run between forty and fifty pounds to the bushel, while No. 1 wheat goes to sixty-two pounds to the bushel. In fact, so heavy is Canadian grain of all kinds, and especially the wheat, that throughout the west one will see great placards upon them, which read:

"This car is not to be filled to capacity with Alberta wheat." When I met the man who took the Canadian West a few years ago I found thousands of settlers living in rude shacks, tent shelters and homes of logs and clay. Today they will find these old "homes" scattered from Manitoba to the Rockies, but they are no longer used by human tenants. Modern homes have taken their place.

For it has come to be a common saying in these great grain regions that "The first year a settler is in the land he earns a living; the second he has money enough to build himself a modern home and barn; the third he is independent." And as extreme as this statement may seem to those hundreds of thousands of American farmers who strive for a meager existence, it is absolutely true. I am an American as patriotic, I believe, as most of our people—but even at that I cannot but wish that these people, whose lives are such an endless and unhappy strife, might have known the joy life is awaiting them in this last great west—the "land of greater hope," where the future is king, and where the wealth all rests in his hands. As one American farmer said to me, "It is hard to pull up stakes and move a couple of hundred miles. And so is—or at least it appears to be. But in a month it can be done. And the first year, when the new settler reaps a greater harvest than he has ever possessed before, he will rise with 200,000 others of his people in Western Canada and thank the government that has given him, free of cost, a new life, a new home, and new hopes—which has made of him, in fact, 'A man among men, a possessor of wealth among his people.'"

Thoreau's Sensible Answer. When Thoreau lay on his deathbed, a Calvinistic friend called to make inquiry regarding his soul. "Reply the said, 'I have got further soul than you need influence are what are added to its "chink winds"—steady and undeviating air-currents which sweep over the great wheat regions of Western

SPRINGFIELD RIOTS

After Two Weeks of Excitement the City is Awakening With a Headache.

IT WILL NOT SOON BE CURED
Claims Against the City for Loss of Life and Property.

Story of the Outbreak and Its Results—Governor Deneen Prompts Calling the Militia to Preserve Order.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 1.—Having had two weeks of excitement caused by rioting and attacks upon the colored people and their houses the city of Springfield is awakening with a headache. It will be lasting and there will be constant reminders that it is present. These reminders will be the tax bills to meet claims against the city for loss of life, damages to property, investigation by the grand jury and the maintenance of the national guard, 3,200 of which were on duty in the city for a short time. Already claims have been presented against the city for $23,478.84. It is estimated that there will be other claims that will bring the aggregate cost to $100,000 for loss of property and life only. The deaths as a result of the riot or its consequences are eight and the injured eighty-one. Under the riot law relatives may collect $5,000 from the city for each life lost, upon showing that death was caused by the riot.

Guard Mobilizes Quickly.
Never in the history of the state was the national guard assembled more rapidly and more effectively than when it was called to Springfield. The story of its summoning is a story of decisiveness, an illustration of industry and an evidence of the effectiveness with which Governor Deneen acts.

At 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, Aug. 14, Colonel R. J. Shand, assistant adjutant general, was sent by Governor Deneen to Sheriff Charles Werner to inquire into the situation, rumors of anticipated trouble having reached the chief executive. Sheriff Werner stated that he did not expect any difficulty in handling the riot, but in case of emergency it might be advisable to assemble one of the local companies at the arsenal. Later he changed this request to two local companies and the Gatling section, with the suggestion that one company be sent to the county jail at 8 o'clock.

At 9 o'clock to Bloomington. Later in the afternoon the colored men whom the mob were desirous of securing were transferred to Bloomington. This transfer did not prevent a crowd from gathering around the jail. Finding the place well guarded and having satisfied themselves that the crowd was not in the jail through a committee which was permitted to go through the building, the mob directed its attention to the restaurant of Harry Lopez, situated five blocks from the jail. Sheriff Werner asked that the Gatling section be sent to the restaurant. The men went within ten minutes and with orders from the sheriff not to fire.

Sheriff Always in Charge.
When the arrival of the Decatur troops Brigadier General Wells assumed charge of the troops subsequent to transferring his command to Major General Kauten. At no time, however, during the presence of the troops in the city did the actual command of the law be made the directing and responsible officer.
When the assembling of the Guard was complete it was estimated that there were 3,500 officers and men in the city. The daily pay of these aggregated $8,250 and the cost approximately $2,025, so that the cost per day was $10,275. It is estimated that it will cost between $18,000 and $20,000 for transportation of the troops to Springfield and from the capital to their homes.
The conduct of the troops while in the city was highly commendable and the guardsmen from all over the state may be proud of the action of their comrades.
Employers Must Retain Guardsmen.
The only unpleasant incident of the mobilizing of the troops was the killing of a boy at Kankakee by Private Klein of the First regiment. Having completed his tour of duty, Private Klein was returned to Kankakee for trial. He was released on bond, and his defense will be under the direction of the law officers of the state.
Private Ralph Rosen, a member of the First regiment, who returned from his trip to Springfield to find that his place had been filled by the management of the Pileue Medicine company, reported to the governor that he was discharged because he had responded to the call of his commander. He was informed by the governor that any employer who dismissed the services of any employee for this reason was subject to a fine of $500. This was called to the attention of the Medicine company by Colonel Milton J. Foreman, and it was decided that Rosen should be reinstated.

Decatur First to Arrive.
At midnight it was decided to call the First infantry from Chicago and the entire Fifth infantry with several troops of cavalry. Company H of Decatur was the first outside company to arrive. It reached the city by way of the interurban at 2:30 Saturday morning. Accompanied by Troop D, First cavalry, of Springfield, the Decatur company was marched to the scene of the burning and rioting. Sheriff Werner commanded the mob to disperse and as it failed to do so ordered the Springfield troop to fire over their heads. Colonel Shand protested, as one of the companies previously had been commanded to shoot in the air in front of the county jail. The mob paid no attention either to the Colonel Shand then insisted that the troops should have permission to fire low, but again Sheriff Werner, after ordering the mob to disperse, gave the command to the Springfield boys that they should shoot over the heads of the mob. A dozen men heard the command of Captain Wain and Colonel Shand to fire low and poured a volley of small bullets into the legs of the mob. There was a hurried scattering and the mob melted away.

The streets were filled with drunken and reeling men and boys who, fired by the lust of blood and excited by the burning buildings, were anxious to drive all colored people from the city. Threats were made that all buildings occupied by colored people would be burned the following night or the colored people driven out.

Summons More Companies.
In anticipation of more rioting it was decided to bring companies by Springfield to patrol the city thoroughly and protect the colored citizens. As there are five sections of the city in which colored people live, it was necessary to make a complete patrol. The speed with which the respective companies and regiments were mobilized by their commanders is shown by the following table which gives the arriving time of the various organizations:

Me Was Mistaken.
"Yes," said the sad eyed passenger, "I married the widow of a man who was hanged, and I thought, under the circumstances, I would be able to avoid odious comparisons in connection with the late lamented. But I was mistaken."
"She praised him just the same, eh?" rejoined the sympathetic hardware drummer.
"Well, not exactly," answered the a. p., "but we hadn't been married a p. yet."
Too Modest.
Sir W. S. Gilbert's own story of his first experience as a playwright is instructive. He took his maiden attempt to a manager, who read it carefully and offered to accept it. "Now," said he to the overjoyed dramatist, "what do you expect me to pay you for this?" The young author, not liking to be too forward, modestly suggested 30 guineas. The manager immediately wrote out a check for the desired amount and, presenting it to Gilbert, said: "Young man, let me give you a word of advice. Never sell so cheap a play for such a small amount again."
