MAIL-ORDER MENACE

Residents of a Community Should Patronize Local Merchants.

"I hardly knew the old place at first," remarked the drummer who was in a small eastern town and had dropped in to see Brown, the merchant. "My, but you folks have slicked up that place since I was last here."

"Yes; we have organized an improvement society lately, and we've been busy," replied the merchant. "We make the women folk to start the ball-rolling in a thing of that kind, and it has opened our eyes to what country, when you take an interest in the work, it means, however, isn't booming to any great extent."

"Mail-order people cutting into your trade?" asked the drummer.

"That's about the size of it," sighed Brown.

"Well, it's a shame. You merchants pay taxes and contribute to the support of the community and are active in building up the town, but instead of appreciating this fact, the residents send a great deal of their money to the big city stores."

"I wouldn't care so much if they stayed anything to speak of by it or if they got any better goods, but they don't."

"Of course they don't," agreed the drummer. "I sell goods enough to know that. Somehow people in small towns think they can buy better through the mail-order houses than they can in where they make a big mistake."

"You can't convince 'em of that," said the merchant.

"Well, it's an arguement used to say, 'The people here will be humbugged.' It stands to reason that the mail-order houses cannot spend the millions they do on advertising, give as much for the money as you fellows at home can, and people in many localities are waking up to that fact. Let me give you a few friendly suggestions when we are on this subject," continued the drummer. "You ought to make a close study of just what people around here want from the city stores. Let them tell you twice for an article if you can possibly help it. This doesn't mean that you must carry a billion dollar stock. Simply carry what you are pretty sure will be wanted—that the mail-order houses are putting out to a certain extent. And let the community know what you have in stock. When they read the out-of-town catalogues and see something they want they conclude you haven't got it, and away goes coin that should have been spent right here at home. You probably had the same article in stock, and for less money too. If you don't advertise, you might as well close up your doors."

"Yes, I advertise occasionally," said Brown.

"Occasionally won't do. It is persistent advertising that wins out for the merchant. You want to spend every dollar you can afford to in advertising in your local paper and keep right at it. The mail-order houses lay out thousands of dollars on pamphlets and circulars and catalogues, and you may be sure they are past masters in the art of making them attractive. That's how they get the trade they do. You can do the same thing in your local paper and in other ways on a smaller scale. It doesn't cost a fortune to get out a catalogue. It's of no use to go on advertising the fact that your name is Brown and that you are doing business on certain streets. That doesn't interest the general public. Give 'em prices. Tell 'em what you've got to sell. Make 'em certain that of the week always bargain day and give people some reason to come to your store. You may lose money on the vendors but you'll keep at it and you'll get big results before long. Let the residents here know that they are not only hurting you, but the town as well, by sending their money out of it."

"I'll consider your suggestions," said the merchant thoughtfully. "Guess I will advertise more and try the catalogue too."

"That's the game. Let people know how you feel about this matter. Put it to them fair and square and have the stock to back you up. The mail-order houses are draining the country of money that should be spent at home, and it is about time the residents of small towns realized it. Thousands of dollars are sent away every week for goods that could have been purchased cheaper in the local stores. The first duty of every good citizen is home protection. Funny they cannot reason it out that the more they spend in their own town the more money they are going to keep in circulation there and the more prosperous it will make the community. Manufacturers are looking for a site on which to erect a plant are not going to locate in a town where half the stores have to let alone on them. Why, if everybody traded out of town just to save a few pennies, there wouldn't be much left of it in a short time. Well, good-by, Brown. I'll attend this way soon."

Small Blaze Last Week.
Friday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock fire was discovered in the basement of the store building occupied by D. P. Lamey, corner Cook and Railroad streets.

Mr. Lamey had been burning papers in the furnace and the dust and other accumulations in and about the furnace was the origin of the fire.

An alarm was given and the fire was extinguished by the department in a few minutes.

The fire was confined to the basement. The damage was small and covered by insurance.

Merchants Find Tarantula.
Nicholas Shead, of North Chicago, and Anton Schneider, of McHenry, who conduct grocery stores in their respective towns, each report the discovery of a tarantula in a package of bananas.

The tarantula is very large and venomous spider and its bite nearly always proves fatal. Inspect your bananas carefully. It may save you from a poisonous bite.

New Bridge Near Wheeling.
Supervisors Meyer, Pickett and Lacey, who were appointed by the Chairman Geo. Quentin of Lake county to act with the commissioners of highways of Vernon township in the construction of a permanent bridge, over Indian creek, on the Milwaukee avenue road, near Wheeling, met at the site of the bridge Monday, and accepted the work. The cost is approximately $2,500.

Olson Also a Victim.
Albert J. Olson, republican nominee for the state senate from this district, was relieved of $3,000 by a lone highwayman in Yellowstone Park about ten days ago. Mr. Olson being one of the victims of the new stopped eight park coaches, made the passengers get out and line up while he took their money and valuables.

An Unfortunate Accident.
Arnold Schauble had the misfortune Friday afternoon to catch his right hand between a spoke in the wheel of his auto, and the brake band, while trying to shove the machine ahead as it was standing on the floor of his machine shop. His first finger was severed and the rest of his hand badly bruised.

We received the following this week:
"Editor of the Review:"
"Will you kindly ask through your columns if the editor of the Wauconda Leader knows what became of his fall of water?"

The north side defeated the south-side married men in an exciting game Labor Day by a score of 2 to 1. These ex-ball players are becoming pretty fast and put up a game of ball the equal of most any regular team in these parts.

The Felix Cubs will play Palatine this Sunday. The management expects a different story than last Saturday. This nine is of the semi-pro class, but after the experience gained with the Normals the home players are confident of beating this team.

ABARD BELIEFS ABOUT HUGHGAS.

In other days the hedgehog was credited with the possession of many wonderful powers. Piny and other him Aelian and others have related how it would climb apple and fig trees, shake down the fruit and afterwards fall upon and imbibe the fruit on its spines and carry them off upon its back. The belief that it was in the habit of milking cows during the night is likewise a very old one.

Courage of Lincoln.

The celebration of various Illinois towns of the fiftieth anniversary of the Lincoln-Douglas debates recalls the most remarkable oratorical contest in the nation's history.

Opposition of the Convention - If we could first know where we are, we are tending, we could then better judge what to do and how to do it.

A lecture from President Roosevelt on the square deal might help those British "sportmen" to see the error of their ways.

Uncle Sam Will Pay Damages.

The act of congress which recently went into operation granting to certain employees of the United States compensation for injuries sustained in the course of service is a measure of considerable importance in the domain of labor legislation.

The new law applies to persons employed by the government as artisans or laborers in the following services: Arsenals, navy yards, river and harbor construction, fortification construction, hazardous employment in the reclamation service.

Compensation will be paid under this act only for such injuries to an employee as occur in the course of his employment.

Compensation will be paid under this act only for such injuries to an employee as occur in the course of his employment.

The records of the application of this act will furnish valuable material for statistics of accidents.

The fact that heavy rains have fallen this summer in certain localities when the government weather experts predicted that at the worst, cloudy weather had led some to wonder whether, after all, Uncle Sam's weather is the best in the world.

New York's latest claim to fame is that she possesses a citizen who recently lubricated fifty ears of green corn with a pound of butter and ate them all at a single sitting.

A fashionable and popular resort where it is necessary to call on the militia to hold down the Sunday "lid" needs the power of moral suasion more than that of sword and bayonet.

Wages and the Cost of Living.

Recently the government bureau of labor put out a table dealing with the prices of food and the average wages paid in the principal mechanical industries of the United States in 1907.

The average wages per hour was 37.7 per cent higher in 1907 than in 1900, and the cost of living advanced one-half of 1 per cent more than the wages advanced in the same period.

Most of this affluence business is mere transient and extraneous.

It is expected that the various governments having possessions in the south Pacific will aid in the establishment of the system.

Progress in Iron and Steel. That there is a building boom in the progress toward improvement in the iron and steel industry is the opinion of the Iron Trade Review.

Old home week is a wonderful event for most people. It is a wholesome and whole hearted carnival.

Plump candidates for the presidency must have been interested in President William Watson's description of the day in which Admiral Farragut on his birthday used to test his suppleness by holding the toe of his left shoe with his right hand while he hopped over it forward and backward.

SHOP 'SURROUNDINGS.'

The appearance of many towns and cities is spoiled by unkempt surroundings of business sites, and seldom is any attempt made to improve and beautify these places. The plan is being tried in Brooklyn, N. Y., however, to interest the employees of a company in improvement work, and the story of how an esprit de corps came to replace a don't care feeling in the personnel of one of the largest single traction concerns in the country is an interesting one.
Some time ago the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company adopted a policy of beautifying as far as possible the different portions of its property. It was a pet idea of Mr. Winter, its president, that the mere fact that a structure is built for commercial purposes is no excuse for its being hideously ugly.
This was quite a reversal of old traditions, but it has already gone partly into effect. The great new Williamsburg power station is the company's most striking exposition of this new policy.
Beginning was made at the construction shop of the elevated lines at the foot of Thirty-ninth street. The yard that surrounds this shop-formerly a clutter of the litter of old locomotives and discarded coaches. These were sold when possible and given away for fire-wood in other cases.
Last spring the shop foreman was informed that the railroad would proceed to lay out the edge of the yard with grass plots and flower beds. Similar steps were taken at the other elevated shops at East New York, Fresh Pond road and at Thirty-sixth street. The same methods of decoration that proved so successful on the company's property at Brighton Beach were put into effect.
Then came the surprising part of the programme. Shopmen displayed an astonishing amount of interest in the plans for beautifying the property. They organized into bands and early on summer nights reported after hours for work on the shop grounds. Theirs was entirely a voluntary procedure. They showed an interest in the whole project. It was a new spirit showing.

How To Get Strong.
P. J. Daley, of 1247 W. Congress Street, Chicago, tells of a way to get strong: He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters, that I feel it my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints.
