No Living Bacteria in Coal

The report that living bacteria have survived in anthracite coal millions of years is discounted by the Anthracite Institute at the Pennsylvania State college, where inventors conducted tests and found bacteria where the coal was exposed to air or water, but none in solid samples not exposed to these influences.

Many Insects and Animals

A European scientist declares there are 1,000 different kinds of animals and insects in the world, with thousands of varieties of each.

Scrambled Aphorisms

At a lecture before the Rotary club of Colombo, Rotarian Curry, of the Docking club, mentioned that most of the native servants have a fairly sound working knowledge of English, but they are unable to comprehend the finer points of English idiom. A native, excusing himself for not attending to his work because his mother had died, wrote: "The hand that rocked the cradle has kicked the bucket." Another, in the course of an argument, said: "You have battered your head on both sides, and you must lie on it." Another pleaded that he was "too poor that he could not keep the cat out of the bag."—Ceylon Daily News.
