75 Per Cent of Lake County Tax Money Received

County Treasurer Predicts Balance Current Half in 60 Days

Lake county tax money is being received at the county treasurer's office at a faster rate than in the past, according to J. B. Moran, treasurer.

Approximately 75 per cent of the 1932 assessment tax money due has been collected. Mr. Moran predicted that close to 90 per cent would be collected by the end of the next 60 day period.

While figures were presented on the collections up to August 4 these do not include all of the money mailed to the treasurer and some of the big accounts that have been paid, including the tannery, Public Service company and Morris Blumberg, in payment for J. Blumberg, the Negro individual taxpayer in the county.

The money that had been cleared through the expense of the treasurer's office amounted to $1,039,815.44 at 6 o'clock Saturday night.

That figure does not include a considerable amount of checks that may reach as high as $25,000 more, the treasurer advised.

"I am working with a staff that can handle an average day in business which accounts for the fact that I cannot give definite figures as to date. If I placed a hard date on the date of being the proceeds up to the minute it would be a personal curiosity only, and I believe that this is unnecessary," Mr. Moran said.

The total amount of taxes to be collected this year amounts to $3,255,396.73.

New Films on Health to Be Shown at State Fair

The first public showing of a series of motion picture films on health and hygiene produced by the state department of public health, and for Illinois will take place at the Illinois state fair. These pictures, rated as superior in every respect, relate to the production, pasteurization and distribution of milk, the remarkably successful fight against diphtheria, and the important services rendered to the people of the state by the diagnostic laboratories. Photographed by the assistant director of the health department, these pictures which would ordinarily cost from $500 to $1000 each, were produced at a cost of less than $100 each. The two-reel picture on milk shows every step in the production and distribution of clean, wholesome milk, tracing the process from healthy herds on the farms, through the milk depots and pasteurizing plants to young children seated at the dining room table. Following the picturesque and colorful Illinois scenes the picture emphasizes at each point those special sanitary measures necessary to producing and maintaining safe, clean, wholesome milk.

William Stratton Will Head G.O.P. Ticket Next Year

Lake County Man Announces Candidacy for Office of State Treasurer

William J. Stratton, formerly secretary of state, has announced that he will head the state republican ticket next year as candidate for office of state treasurer.

Mr. Stratton was defeated for reelection to the office of secretary of state last year by a very narrow margin in the face of the democratic landslide.

In announcing his candidacy in answer to a request from the Lake county republican central committee, Mr. Stratton said in part:

"As a candidate, I pledge you and the people of Illinois that, when elected, I shall give to the administration of the office of state treasurer the same painstaking effort I gave as secretary of state. In 1928 as a candidate for secretary of state, I pledged that all public funds received by me, while under my control, would be deposited in responsible banking institutions of the state and all interest earned on such funds would be publicly accounted for and would accrue strictly to the benefit and profit of the state treasury. That pledge was faithfully carried out.

Inasmuch as the republican nominee for the office of state treasurer should be the party standard bearer throughout the state in the general election next year, I feel that I should state my position on certain questions that are now and no doubt will be paramount issues in next year's general election campaign.

"First, as a citizen and a loyal republican, I feel that all Americans should give hearty support to all public officials—national, state and local—who have been placed in power by the people.

"By this statement I do not mean that this duty requires that we all heartily accept and blindly approve the program of the democratic national and state administrations of saddling taxes upon the backs of the people of this and future generations who are not only oblivious to bear but are of such magnitude as to threaten the eventual destruction of the very sources of public revenue.

"I believe that the proper course for all governmental agencies to pursue is to cut taxes and live within income. I doubt very much that the course adopted by the democrats of increasing the public debt by lavish borrowing and spending will restore political economy to the people.

"Second, as a republican, believing in the doctrines of Abraham Lincoln, who declared war on a government of the people, by the people and for the people, I cannot approve the setting up in this country of any kind of dictatorship, whether by bureaucrats or by a so-called 'brain trust.'

"In our own state, under the false pretense of public economy, laws have been passed by the democratic legislature, whereby democratic participation in high office have been granted power to impose greater tax burdens upon the public without allowing the voters and taxpayers any chance for an effective expression of their views."

"One of the outstanding events of last year's campaign was the meeting that was recently held in the auditorium in the central building in Springfield, Ill., in the address to the members of the sheriff, state's attorney and chiefs of police for the purpose of forming an organization to blot out kidnaping in Illinois.

The meeting was attended by 600 law enforcement officers, the state, from Cook county to Cairo, and plans were formulated to stop kidnaping in Illinois. In his address to the law enforcement officers, the governor said in part:

"I propose that all the heads of law enforcing agencies in the state and now form an organization, and set up in Springfield in the bureau of criminal identification and investigation, a special branch to coordinate all activities against those extortionists. In addition, the bureau at the request of local authorities will assist in the investigation of all kidnapings that occur within the borders of our commonwealth, and in the apprehension and conviction of the abductors. The state highway police will be at the disposal of your local offices. Their assistance may be obtained by the mere forwarding of a request in the spring season, when we break up the kidnapping rackets, other organized crime will decrease. The specialists in kidnapping will be specialists in other crimes too."

UNTIL WE LEARNED BETTER

Until we learned better, we used to mix wood and steel in our car bodies and when it was the best way to make bodies—then. But the state of the art has advanced.

Of course, it is more expensive to make an all-steel body than to make a wooden frame and nail steel panels on to it. The better way involves an initial expenditure of several millions of dollars for new dies, which renders a change very costly. Cars, especially large expensive cars which are produced in small volume, cannot afford this, because the dies cost as much for one car as for a million. That alone explains why all-steel bodies are not used in all cars.

But our basic policy from the beginning is to make a good car better, regardless of cost.

For example, when we discarded wood-steel body construction, it was not because we lacked wood. We still have some thousands of acres of the best hard wood in America. Economy would urge us to use up the wood first, and then adopt the better all-steel body. But we decided that quality was more important than expense.

We weighed the reasons, for and against, before we made the change. We could use only one reason for retaining a mixed wood-and-steel body—nailing the metal on, instead of welding an all-steel body into a strong one-piece whole. That reason was, it would be cheaper—for us.

Our reasons for adopting an all-steel body were these: A wood-steel body is not much stronger structurally than its wooden frame. In all American climates, wood construction weakens with age. Every used car lot gives evidence of this. Rain seeps in between joints and the wood decays. A car may have a metal surface, and yet not be of steel construction. Under extreme shock or stress the steel body remains intact—dented perhaps, but not crushed.

Steel does not need wood for strength or protection. Wood is fine for furniture, but not for the high speed vehicles of 1933.

In the Ford body there are no joints to squeak, no seams to crack or leak.

The all-steel body is more expensive—to us, but not to you. By all odds, then, steel bodies seem preferable.

Wheels also have become all-steel. No one argues that an electrically welded one-piece steel wheel, such as the Ford wheel, needs to be "strengthened" by adding wood to it.

The one-piece all-steel body is the strongest, safest, quietest, most durable body made. That is our only reason for making them.

"I made it myself!"

Frozen desserts like this are no trick to make in an electric refrigerator. They're wonderfully inexpensive, too.

An electric refrigerator cuts other food bills down by keeping all perishables healthfully fresh for days. No spoilage, no waste. And, of course, it supplies all the ice cubes you want.

The electricity that runs an electric refrigerator costs only 7¢ a day in the average home served by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. A real bargain, don't you think?

See the model kitchen display at the exhibit of the Electrical Building in the World's Fair Exposition.
