World's Largest Cross

Shiloh, a highly intelligent in the Harting with the Stolberg palace, is little known outside Germany, but it possesses two distinctions. One is that here the largest collection of funeral sermons in the world, comprising 2000 volumes of collected sermons in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries, and on the outskirts of the city stands the world's largest cross, the "Josephshaus," at an elevation of 1,800 feet, erected more than a hundred years ago in the form of an observation tower 12 1/2 feet high.

When Windows Were Taxed In the old houses in England a reminder of the time when all windows were taxed in the form of a tax introduced in the reign of William III. In order to defray the cost of the rebuilding of silver. Many people objected to paying the tax and it was to lessen the amount which could be demanded that they caused some of their windows to be bricked in. The tax remained in existence until 1851, when it was replaced by the inhabited house duty.

Indian Mounds Found through much of the Mississippi region are believed by many to be caches of Indian treasures. This belief, Smithsonian archeologists point out, is entirely without foundation. Only a few mounds were used for burial of the dead. Excavation often reveals cherished personal objects interred with the bones of prominent Indians. But such objects have no material value and are of interest only as they throw light on the pre-Columbian culture pattern.

Many Are Killed by Tire Blowouts. The safety due to increased speed of motor cars is becoming more and more a matter of life and death. Don't be misled by claims or even guarantees of safety rating. Blowouts made of standard high pressure tires. Consider the facts: Those very tires—supposedly safe against blowouts—ARE blowing out. And records show that every day, hundreds are killed or injured in blowout accidents. What do claims or guarantees mean when real tragedies actually happen? The guarantee offers to replace the tire. But it cannot replace a life or a limb. The truth is that no tire requiring constant high air pressure can be blowout-proof. For high pressure is the one cause of ALL blowouts. The only safe, standard, reliable tire is truly blowout-proof. General Tire—only General—have the patented construction which permits running on 30 to 40 per cent less over-inflating air pressure without perceptible sagging. Why risk your life on limitations or substitute when it's so easy to have real blowout-proof tires? Get complete information about them from Pure Gum Service Station at Main & High Streets, Barrington.
