

Wild Turkeys to Be Released in Lake County This Winter

Lake county according to word from Springfield will be one of the counties selected by the department of fish and game conservation for the liberation of a very prolific type of wild turkey and the propagation of the bird in future years.

Although the number of birds to be liberated in Lake county has not been determined it has been announced that but 150 will be placed this year in the state with nearly all of them in Northern Illinois counties. It is considered likely that at least ten pairs of the fowl will be allotted to Lake county.

The brood selected for propagation is expected with protection to breed rapidly and a year or two will see the birds roosting in the trees or strutting about with great gusto in the forests and fields of the county.

The return of the wild turkey to Lake county will bring back memories of earlier days to old timers when a hunter went into the woods of the country to shoot his Thanksgiving dinner. According to hunters of this school such fowl was common in Lake county in earlier days and nirnods passed up all other fowl in their search for this bird which as far as fowl goes can be considered as big game.

According to the plans of the conservation department the first contingent of these birds will be augmented each year with a fast breeding type of bird so that within a few years they will have become numerous enough to permit an open season—Antioch News.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

Abrey Williams, FERA assistant administrator, said last week that "we have assurance" the goal for employment for 3,500,000 persons has been reached.
Included in this total are 500,000 jobs in the Civilian Conservation Corps, employment on the FWA, and on federal projects outside the WPA. The major part of the employment, however, is being provided through the $1,100,000,000 fund allocated to WPA.
Mr. Williams pointed out that some funds have been allotted for a continuation of the dole during December.

Officials in control have failed to take the proper steps to prepare for the transition.
Protests against the dropping of federal aid are already numerous, and it is a question whether the present relief act will be maintained for a full year, as was planned originally. Funds now available are expected to maintain the WPA only until spring.
With the 3,500,000 employables at work the relief drama will have its major setting in congress and the making of budget plans for next year.

The next few months will answer these questions: Will private industry absorb the unemployed sufficiently to cause a major reduction in the relief burden? Is there to be another large appropriation which funds to maintain the present relief act? Or will the dole be restored?
Unheralded, a drive behind the scenes goes forward to insure safety.
Active agent is the bureau of navigation and steamboat inspection, which had sought in vain to obtain at the last session of congress a law that would give it power to refuse licenses for sailing of passenger boats unless they satisfied standards that would minimize hazard of fire and shipwreck.

Note of procedure, without benefit of law, is privately to come remodeling by those ship-owners whose craft are found on inspection to be below standards of safety.
Driving force of the counsel lies in possible publicity should the bureau's advice be disregarded.

Expectation of the bureau: Within five years every United States passenger ship will be so constructed that it cannot burn, sink or capsize in any reasonable circumstances.

Another quarter-million men and women go back to work in October.
So reports the department of labor, showing a melting of the army of unemployed by some 600,000 in two months. Fact searches have to go back to October, 1930, to find a month in which as large a number were busy at jobs.
Additional bulletins of recovery:
From the federal reserve board: "Most substantial economic advance since the depression began:

Index of production up from 89 to 84 in a month.
From the American Federation of Labor: "An industrial boom is indicated within the next few years, unless an inflated stock market draws off funds that should go into consumption."

From the treasury's official housing coordinator, Peter Grimm: "With building going forward at more than double last year's rate, the nation is looking forward to unusual building activity during the spring and summer of 1936. New construction in 1934 failed even to replace dwellings that burned or collapsed."

Quarrel of Youth and Age
The quarrel of youth and age dates at least from the time of Noah and his sons, and probably a good deal earlier.
