

Men Confiscate Large Still Near Woodstock Monday

When a snow on a barn at the red top was confiscated by the police, it was the first time in the history of the state that a large still was confiscated. The still was operated by George J. McLaughlin, who was arrested Monday afternoon. The still was a large still and had a capacity of turning 100 gallons of alcohol per hour. It was located near Woodstock, about one mile east of Woodstock and three miles south of Woodstock, near Nippersink. The still was owned by Joseph Danota and was brought to the county by Danota, later being brought to Chicago by the federal agents. The still had been in operation for several weeks, it was reported. The still was found in the barn and was confiscated. Several hundred gallons of alcohol were found in a large quantity of equipment including a still, a boiler, a condenser, a pump and a 20-ft. column. The still was confiscated.

Barrington Hills

The pleasure of the Barrington Hills community for the Christmas season will be Christmas and giving gifts, decorations and delicacies that will be the necessary part of all Christmas. A few formal dinners in prospect but for the most part get-togethers will be of the home and visits with old friends.

The holiday night buffet-supper at the Barrington Hills Country club was a popular affair again. The guests enjoyed the good music and jolly entertainment of the evening. Louis Tilden with his band was the chief musician and Mrs. Row, together with Mrs. McCracken and the band contributed musical entertainment.

After this lovely beginning, became general. Many people joined in on old and new songs. The evening was a small gathering of friends.

The Barrington Hills Country club has another musical evening. Christmas carols will be sung.

On Monday night a group of ten people at Wayne for the party at the Wayne club. They report a jolly evening and an especially fine dinner which Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Canby were host and hostess.

The Voluntary Nurses auxiliary were rolling bandages Monday. Mrs. Robert Buckley's, had a vacation for a couple of days until the holiday rush.

Mr. Sumner Mead was business manager of the Kaffee Klatsch. The club will also vacation until the end of the year.

Mr. Frank Hecht Sr. left Tuesday for his Christmas week with his wife and daughter in New York. Mr. Hecht had a small tea party.

The young people are coming to the school for the holidays. Mr. and Mrs. Jean White, who were at Kemper Hall, expect to be with their parents in Barrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Evelyn Lawrence were home from Warrenton, Va.

Here's How to Decorate with Christmas Lights

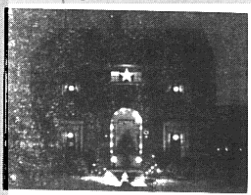

Making the home a shining example of holiday good-will by attractive Christmas lighting decorations has become "just an old American custom". Here are some practical illustrations of what can be done.

The owner of this home used cleverly placed floodlights and silhouette cutouts of Christmas figures, supplemented by beautifully trimmed evergreens at the entrance.

This picture shows how festoons of lights can be used to emphasize the important lines of the house. Indoor decorations in or near the windows add interest.

An ingenious effect is produced by the shadow of a small cutout tree cast by a lamp placed behind it. Colored lamps in the doorway lanterns and colored paper in the upper windows add to the trim, festive appearance.

Candle forms at the entrance can be made of painted tubes of tin or cardboard and a flame-colored lamp. In addition, homes like this with light toned trim are made distinctive with simple floodlighting.
