

Local Club Members Hear Naturalist in Illustrated Lecture on Conservation

That conservation means not just the taking care of animals and trees but in a broader sense the care of one's self was the keynote of a talk given by S. A. Campbell, naturalist and lecturer, who addressed members of the Barrington Woman's club at a regular meeting at the Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday afternoon.

"We dare not sacrifice things in nature for when the species line is broken it can not be replaced," Mr. Campbell said. "The example of the destruction of the passenger pigeon should be a warning to all. Their extermination is a loss to all present and future generations."

The lecture was illustrated by three motion picture films. The first portrayed the work of the sculptor Horland on Mount Rushmore in the Black Hills of South Dakota. For seven years 20 men have been working eight hours a day on enormous statues of Washington, Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt and Jefferson. Three more years will be necessary to complete the project. Mr. Campbell said that this work of beauty, character and expression of American appreciation is almost eternal for the granite rocks in which the carving is done erodes at the rate of only one inch every 100,000 years.

The last two pictures were made at the Sanctuary of Argonne National Forest, Three Lakes, Wis. The first, dedicated to international peace, was entitled, "Taking the Murder Out of the Heart of One American Boy." The picture of two dozen chipmunks and an American boy showed the development of the chipmunks from feasting to friendly relations and the development of the boy from one who loved to hunt animals to one who enjoyed seeing them alive.

The last picture represented a day at the Sanctuary of Wegmink, of which Mr. Campbell is the director. The picture showed how fascinating wild life can be in a protected area. It closed with the words of John Burroughs, "I come here to find myself. It is so easy to get lost in the world."

Plan Courses for Teachers of Religious Education

"Materials and Methods for Children's Division" is the topic of a series of lectures in a course of religious education beginning Wednesday night, Jan. 23 at the public school. There will be two lectures each Wednesday night for six consecutive weeks. The four cooperating Protestant churches of the village are sponsoring the course which is given primarily for persons planning to teach religious education. Miss Marion Kewic, religious education teacher of the local school, will be the teacher.

Last year 50 persons registered for a similar course when the topic was "Use of Story Telling in Religious Education." The lectures will begin at 7:30 p. m. but persons interested have been allowed to report a little earlier the first night to allow time to register.

Salem Evangelical Church Plans 70th Anniversary

In 1853, The first personage was built two years later for the pastor, Rev. S. Tobias. The first church, known as the Zion Evangelical church, was erected on the lot where the Methodist Episcopal church now stands. Rev. John Kient succeeded Rev. Tobias.

The congregation continued to grow until a new church was needed. It was built on the same ground and has been purchased and remodeled recently by the Methodist Episcopal congregation.

Congregation Splits
Differences of opinion divided the congregation in 1893 when the Salem Evangelical church was organized. For almost 30 years two Evangelical churches, only one block apart and expounding practically the same beliefs, existed. In 1923 the two congregations were united and continued to worship under the name of Salem Evangelical.

Numerous improvements were made from 1914 to 1918. The church was remodeled and a balcony built. A new Sunday school building was erected and a pipe organ installed.

During the period of 93 years, from the year of 1836 when the first church was organized by a group of 30 persons until the present time when the congregation numbers 500, 17 ministers and missionaries have left the local congregation. Their names and fields are: Rev. and Mrs. Theodore Schur, China; Miss Cora Hobbin, missionary nurse to China; J. Kleinsorge, Carl F. Roloff, John Elfrink, Fred Landwer, William Sorfel, Raymond Aurand, Edwin Schaefer, O. Thoren, M. Davis and I. Lageschulte, all to Illinois; Henry Lageschulte and R. H. Aurand, Iowa; William Wolthausen, Kansas; Charles Wolthausen, Minnesota.

The Man From Yonder

pressing his lips against the slaking coughs, ducked into the mill. Faster and faster the buckets came up, some big, some small, now and then one that leaked away its precious contents. Fire found hold on the edges of the hole Buller had made in the floor. Little tongues of flame ate into the dry wood and curled upward. To Buller's right a finger of fire crept up between two boards; beyond it another appeared. In a dozen places fire was coming through the floor and Buller, swaying on his feet as he coughed, turned to the next man in line.

"He said . . . he choked. "Got to have air! Move up!"

The line moved up. The man who had taken Buller's place soused a bucket of water across the floor, knocking down those tenetils that worried through from below. Then he attacked the uprising column of flame again.
