Birds Can Reverse Wing Action

The flight of humming birds is especially interesting. They are the only land birds that can reverse their wing action, and move backwards as well as forwards. Their wings move so rapidly that one can see only a blur where the wings are. These wings make over 200 vibrations, or beats, per second, which is five times as fast as an airplane propeller usually travels. Because of this, these birds can appear to stand still in mid-air, or can support themselves while they slip their beaks into a flower blossom for nectar.
