A 25-tube radio with three concert speakers and described as the finest set produced for the commercial market is being exhibited at the Acme Home Service in the Catlow theatre building this week. In this set, the Zenith Stratophone, an excess of power is provided so that all programs are received at "idling speed." The result is true artistic fidelity of tone without a trace of distortion. Tone control is achieved through the employment of three co-ordinated reproducing units which supersede the "conventional" single speaker. It is within the ability of the Stratophones owner to govern the instrumental values with the skill of an orchestra leader. He can emphasize or subdue sections of an orchestra ensemble at will. The entire radio broadcasting world is at the command of the owner of a Zenith Stratophone. It separates one channel from another with micrometric precision by means of an extra large, precision 360 degree alpha phase sensitive, split secondary transformer. The Stratophones has been brought here by Mr. Fern, proprietor, for the purpose of giving residents of the community an opportunity to hear this magnificent radio. Anyone interested in seeing and hearing the Stratophone should be sure to call on Mr. Fern and inspect the Stratophones. Adv.
