FEAR AND INTELLIGENCE

Everywhere, up and down Europe the fighting men and the fighting machines are gathering. And for what?—not because every nation is deathly afraid of every other?

It is a tragic commentary on this generation's inability to come to grips with its fundamental problems. In all these warlike countries the basic difficulty is the same—unemployment, stagnant business, the baffling complexities of a society which has learned how to multiply the production of goods, but has hardly begun to learn how to distribute them among its people.

As long as fear rules, the powers must pile up great armies, hold maneuvers on a scale only less expensive than war itself, fill the sky with grimly drooping air squadrons, and get the costly gray warships afloat on the seas.

The money, the energy and the devotion that might go to make life easier for millions of people must instead be spent to prepare for death and destruction.

Here is man, arrived at last at the point where every human being in the world could be provided food and shelter and all the comforts and luxuries of modern civilization, with a minimum of properly apportioned labor. He possesses the machinery, every factor necessary to that long visioned goal—except the intelligence to properly use them.—Leaders-Times, Kittanning, Pa.

THIS "BUY AT HOME" TALK

We realize, of course, that advocating a policy of "Buy at Home" often falls on deaf ears. The lure of distant markets has always exerted a magic that many people cannot resist.

But, whenever you find a good town, a lively, progressive community where stores are bright and attractive, where fine churches and schools are numerous, where there is pride taken in the attractiveness of homes and lawns, you will find that the people of that town are mostly "buy-at-homers." This applies as much to the business man and his family as it does to the day laborer; oftentimes it is the former who is the biggest offender against the "buy-at-home" program.

The person who buys merchandise away from home is no better than the local employer of labor who hires outsiders. Both are contributing their mite toward crippling their own community, and helping some other town.—Pioneer-Tribune, Manistique, Mich.

TRUE WEALTH

If I can live in simple comfort and owe no man, sharing intimately with loved ones life's varied experiences; if I can bring a touch of healing and a clearer outlook into the trials and problems of those with whom I mingle; if I can humbly undertake public service when the public calls me, caring neither too much nor too little for popular approval; if I can give spiritual values always the first place, and gladly sink from sight, like a bit of heaven, that others might be elevated—then will this experiment of living yield in full measure the true wealth of contentment and happiness.—Alfred Osborne.

Consistent advertising is the merchant's pledge of quality; it is visible proof that he has faith enough in his goods to back them with his name.—Stolen.

DO YOU KNOW ILLINOIS?

By EDWARD J. HUGHES, Secretary of State.

The secretary of state of Illinois is the state librarian ex-officio. The state library and archives division under his jurisdiction contains much information concerning your state. ## WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

(Courtesy The United States News)

The Liberty league's panel of 58 constitutional lawyers mobilized to fight new deal laws runs into trouble as the American Bar Association's committee on ethical practices makes inquiry regarding the alleged offer of the panel to defend free of charge any person whose "constitutional rights" are in jeopardy as the result of new laws if the person is unable to pay for counsel.

Questions raised by a complaining lawyer, Carl N. Davis, at Atlanta, Ga., are:

- Is the offer of free legal advice an unethical encouragement to litigation?
- Is the publication of premature mass opinion on constitutional questions an attempt to usurp the power of the bench, hence dictatorial, unethical and definitely illegal?

The voluntary NRA codes, even though with labor provisions, mean nothing for labor.

So asserts the Labor Advisory board of the NRA, refusing to give its assent to the tobacco trade agreements submitted to the NRA for approval of labor clauses. This comes in the face of approval of the NRA's industrial Advisory board.

Pressing similar rejection of the labor clauses of seven other proposed codes coming up for consideration, the labor group thus sets forth its attitude:

"We do not doubt the sincerity of the industry, but the agreement does not provide adequate labor protection. In its negotiation labor had no part and likewise it has no say in the enforcement, if any."

What will be the lot of the unemployed when responsibility for their support is turned over to the states by the federal government on December 1?

That is a question with 49 answers, but Relief Administrator Hopkins calls the attention of the states sharply to their impending task.

First he singles out Georgia, where, he says, unemployed are already transferred have received "a tough break," many of them not having come to court.

Then he turns to Governor Larson of Kansas, whose success in balancing the state's budget, he declares, is based on the fact that his administration has "never put up a thin dime for relief. He takes it out of the hides of the people."

A shift in point of attack is indicated on the part of those who believe the nation's economic troubles will dissolve if more money is printed.

Slogan "54-40 or Fight"

Old Boundary Argument

The slogan "54-40 or fight," adopted by the war party in the election of Polk in 1845, was first used in a speech in the senate by Senator William Allen in that year. Under the Webster-Ashburton Treaty of 1842, the Democrats in the Detroit News, the northern boundary of the United States ended at the Rocky mountains on the forty-ninth parallel and excluded Oregon. Polk and his Democrats declared for the whole of the territory on the line of 54 degrees 40 minutes. Though hostilities with Great Britain threatened, negotiations resulted in a pact, whereby the forty-ninth parallel was made the boundary line west from the Rockies to the Pacific ocean.

The old Fort Boise is mentioned in the history of the Oregon country and the life of Dr. Marcus Whitman, missionary and pioneer. In 1806 Whitman's party with their wagons crossed the continent, stopping at Fort Boise. Before reaching that post, at Fort Hall, the baggage had been reduced as much as possible and repacked, and the wagon converted into a cart. Fort Boise, two miles below the old Boise City, is mentioned as being "an inclosure that it would hardly pass for a cattle pen or mule corral." It was decided to leave the cart here, until some one could come back and take it on to the established mission in Oregon; this was done later. In 1842 Whitman traveled overland to the East and returned the following year with a large party of emigrants, again stopping at Fort Boise on the way. Whitman's party had never to do with the acquisition of the Oregon territory and the settlement of this boundary dispute.

George Washington Among Earliest Mule Breeders

The bureau of animal industry says that the earliest mule breeders in the United States were George Washington and Virginia Henry Clay of Fayette county, Kentucky, and Young & Everett of Montgomery county, Kentucky. Prior to the importations made by General Washington, a few diminutive jacks had been imported from the West Indies, but these were of no use for breeding purposes. In the year 1787 the king of Spain presented General Washington with a jack and a jennet from the royal stud at Madrid. The jack was named the Royal Gift. At about the same time Marquis de Lafayette presented General Washington with a Maltese jack, Knight of Malta. The Spanish jack was of a gray color, 16 hands high, heavy made and of a sluggish disposition. The Maltese became a firm of a stag and the ferocity of a tiger." The latter was bred to the Catalonian jennet and the offspring known as Comondos became a famous breeding jack, uniting the Catalonian and Maltese breeds. Both of these importations mentioned the Mount Vernon in the year 1793.

Alumni

Ponies, Northbrook to Tangle in Prelim Tilt at 7:30 p.

Start of Conference Scheduled Only Two Weeks Away—December 6

Northbrook high school conference will take on the 6th, 7th and 8th inst. when two intercollegiate tilt matches will be played at the 11:30 a.m.

On that evening the Bronco team will take on the Alumni in an annual affair at 7:30 p. while the Pony second team meets Northbrook an hour earlier at 6:30 p.

The Alumni, boasting most of the members of the last two years' championship squads, are bound to average three or four goals administered by the Bronco's last year's team which was coached by Coach, Ettore, Workingman, Capelli, and R. L. Nelson, Juniors.

Coach T. E. Clark has selected his Bronco squad for the tilt which includes G. Hager, V. Klöpstein, E. Anderson, R. LaPostolle, W. Niemi, H. H. Wilson, L. Casby, J. Mowatt, N. Greenough, R. Cadwallader, R. Nixon, Juniors.

Coach T. C. Hordorf has a squad of 18—a few more may be added in the interim. The team includes Ed and W. T. Tully, M. R. Bierman, C. Miner, Kincaid, W. Wolf, Juniors; Rex, Art, Castle, R. Clingman, Nelson, L. Casby, Mowatt, Greenough, and G. Kampert, Shepherd, Freshmen.

New Schedule Made Up

The conference schedule is now Friday, Dec. 6, when teams will tilt at 11:30 a.m. at the 11:30 a.m. basketball school at the home-and-home same schedules of other years that this season each team played every other team once in a year. No team can avoid having a "break" schedule make up as in previous years.

Her innovation is that the football officials for all conference games are chosen by a conference committee. This relieves home schools of the difficult job of selecting suitable officials.

The Broncho and Ponies play their first games of the season Wednesday last night (Wed. 19) late for the result to look forward.

Much Wood Used

Few persons realize the quantity of wood that is used during the lifetime of a house. The lumber, magazines, newspaper, books, pencils, writing and wrapping paper, motors, sports goods and a thousand other articles from the wood in his cradle to his grave, the average individual's consumption is equivalent to at least 500 trees—Cotton Weekly.

Earth and Moon

The length of the earth's axis about 7000 miles, nearly a fifth of the diameter of the moon is 2100 miles, the earth's surface about 194 times as great as the moon's, its volume or bulk is 50 times larger, and, owing to its greater density, the mass of the earth is about 81 times greater than that of the moon.
