

Teaching School Children to Drive May Cut Accidents

Major factor in driving instruction is driving school, said present and future members of the Chicago Motor club. Among adolescents 14 years old, he said, rose between the beginning of 1932 and the end of 1933. The death rate for young drivers 14 years increased only slightly, but for children 15 years dropped 25 per cent.

Record of the young child has been credited to safety and the work of the school. Mr. Jack estimates which are not present in high schools. The advertisement is often taken to some degree from the school. In driving school, he may learn how to manage automobile controls, but he has to more knowledge. It would be picked up by observation. And if he has grown in the family that believes such things as "original sin" are not original, he will be a potential cause of serious accidents.

The present trend continues, and every 100 youths now 15 years old will meet accidents during their lifetime, he added. Statistics compiled by Paul Smith for the Illinoisating Motor Vehicle Society, 616 North Dearborn, Chicago, are included to meet minor injuries and 12 to be killed or seriously injured. The present trend growing out of the school into the college age is an even greater chance of injury or death. Mr. Smith said, "The death rate for the group over the 1932-1933 period rose 151 per cent. Additional instruction given when driving school is behind the steering wheel would reduce that figure, and the casualty lists of the state would be shorter, despite the growing numbers of cars on roads."

Guest of Fox River Grove Lad, 17, Commits Suicide

By swallowing a lethal dose of poison of his own mixture, Henry Hruska, 17-year-old Chicago youth, committed suicide Sunday night at the home of a friend, Henry Hense, in Fox River Grove. Saturday night he had attended a dance in Fox River Grove and Sunday night as the time came to return to Chicago, he swallowed the poison and died, leaving a note to explain his act to his mother, Mrs. Joseph Hruska, 2315 S. Sawyer avenue, Chicago. The youth had been a chemistry student at Harrison Technical high school where he had prepared the fatal mixture. The fact that he had recently lost his job and was also short $35.20 as treasurer of a youthful lodge apparently motivated his action.
